The Best in the World.
COLTON'S PATENT
REFRIGERATOR
It is emphatically the King of REFRIGERATORS.
It is economical in the use of ice. Always perfectly dry. No taint. No mingling of food. Has received a Silver Medal, and in all cases the highest premium at the State Fairs.
The water, as it runs from the ice, is retained
in an iron tank around the food chamber, thus aiding in the work of refrigeration. It is drawn
off through a faucet at pleasure, thus preventing any liability of having water dripping over into the food.
As a perfect
PRESERVER OF FOOD,
As well as a COOLER,
COLTON'S Refrigerator
has fully proved its Superiority Over All Others.

Poetry.

YOUNG AMERICA.
There's a bachelor over the river,
With a cabin and plenty of means;
He asked me to marry him, mother,
And I am but just in my teens.

He has a cat, a cow and a piggle,
Two hens and a barrel of beans;
He said, just enough for stuffing;
And what if I am in my teens?

There are Katie, and Susan, and Sarah,
And Jennie, and Dorothy Deane,
Were not done with crockery playthings,
And scarcely had got in their teens.

Till they had both married a twelvemonth,
And now I would like to know why
I can't have a bean and a wedding,
And not live a maid till I die.

There are some things in life uncertain,
As I am, you very well know;
And not in the least are the chances
Of getting and keeping a beau.

There's no use in saying he's older
Than I am; he's nearly a score;
He's had all these years to be learning,
And I shall be puffed the more.

And no use to talk of my waiting;
For John wouldn't do it, I know;
He'd marry some other young lady,
And I left minus a beau.

So now I'm in haste for the wedding;
I'm earnest, and can't be denied;
I seem such a beautiful romance
To be called, "the little girl bride."

Interesting Selections.

RHUBARB WINE. Take the green stalks of the rhubarb plant, and bruise them, to a pulp. Put this into an open tub, and to five pounds of pulp add one gallon of cold spring water. Let it infuse three days, stirring it frequently;
on the fourth day, strain off the liquor, and
to each gallon add three pounds of loaf-
sugar; stir it until the sugar be dissolved and there will be formed a crust, which should be skimmed off. Put the clear wine into a cask, but do not stop it down.
If it begins to ferment, rack it into another cask; in about a fortnight, stop
it down, and let it remain for six months,
when it should be racked, and again stopped down; but if the wine should have lost any of its original sweetness,
add a sufficient quantity of loaf-sugar
and stop it down; taking care, in all cases, that the cask be full. In a month, or six weeks, it will be fit to bottle.

TUMBLER CAKE. Two and one-half tumblers of sugar, three-fourths of a tumbler of butter, one tumbler of milk,
four tumblers of flour, five eggs, leaving
out two yolks, two teaspoonfuls of cream
of tartar, one teaspoonful of soda, spice
and fruit to taste.

Difficult punctuation—putting a stop to a gossip's tongue.
A French chemist asserts that, if tea be ground like coffee before hot water is poured upon it, it will yield nearly double the amount of exhilarating qualities. Another writer says that, if you put a piece of lump sugar, the size of a walnut, into a teapot, you will make the tea infuse in half the time.

The color of the wind was discovered by the man who went out and found it blue.
A lazy dyspeptic was bawling his own misfortune, and speaking with a friend on the latter's general good health and hearty appearance. What do you do to make you so strong and healthy?
inquires dyspeptic. Live on fruit alone, answered the friend. Fruit what kind of fruit? The fruit of industry, and I am never troubled with indigestion.

Strange that the prisoner on trial
for his life, should appear in court with such a smooth countenance! exclaimed Jones. "Oh, he was ironed just before he was brought in!" explains Bones.

A Good Return. A schoolboy, having very good-naturedly helped another in a difficult ciphering lesson, was angrily
questioned by the dominie, "Why did you work his lesson?" "To lessen his work," replied the youngster.

The wise man is cautious, but not cunning; judicious, but not crafty; making virtue the measure of using his excellent understanding in the conduct of his life.

A man from the country whose wife had eloped and carried off the feather-bed, was in search of them; not that he cared anything about the wife, "but the feathers," said he, "them's worth a dollar
a pound."

A Mississippian, in bragging about his wife, wound up with the declaration: "Why she'd make a regular high-pressure steamer, she's such a talent
for blowing-up!"

Happiness has many friends.—
The sunshine of prosperity has attraction for all those who love to bask within its influence, hoping to share in its sweets.

The saying that "there is more pleasure in giving than receiving," applies to kicks, medicines and advice.

Miscellany.

HOW TO WIN A GOOD WIFE.
Mr. Herbert de Browne sat in his luxurious bachelor establishment in Blank street, and pondered deeply. The subject of his cogitation was a wife, or rather how to get one. There were enough young ladies who would be glad to bless their lucky stars, for the privilege of becoming mistress of his home, as he well knew; but he also felt tolerably well assured the home was all they cared for.
For the fortune they would wed its owner.

"Deuce take the money!" he exclaimed. "I wish I'd never had a farthing,
and then—But botheration, then I should have been too poor to marry any way.—
Why couldn't I have had just wealth
enough, for all my wants, and nothing more? I'll think them though, the mean adventurers!"

A furious pull at the bell-ropes brought
the housekeeper to the room in a hurry.
"Pack up your traps, Mrs. Rinkle," he exclaimed, abruptly, "for I am going to close up the house."

It was evident he had come to some conclusion.
"Shut up the house, Mr. de Browne?"
ejaculated the housekeeper, almost believing she had lost her reason. "Why,
such a thing has not occurred since your lamented uncle took possession, five-and-forty years ago?"

"That makes no difference. I'm master here now, and I shall close it for the present. Meanwhile your pay can still go on, and that of such domestics as you consider indispensable. Have you no relatives you wish to visit?" he inquired.

That settled it. The proffer of continued pay removed Mrs. Rinkle's scruples quite effectually. She then remembered she had some friends she had not seen for years.

Three days later, Mr. Herbert de Browne was safely domiciled in a quiet lodging house, and shortly afterward he began to sell his diamond rings and seals,
and other paraphernalia of fashionable
life, as well as dress himself in plainer clothes. A rumor that his property had been lost through an unlucky speculation
was soon afloat. He lost friends rapidly.
By two and threes they ceased to know him as they met him in the street. He only laughed and snapped his fingers at them behind their backs.

Had this adversity been real, he would have felt like laughing.
Then came the time when this circle
of acquaintances got narrowed down to three. But three of his former friends still clung to him, true in adversity.

It is no wonder he grew so misanthropic.
Out in the street one day he met a carriage containing some of his former acquaintances, who had been absent from the city since he had closed his house.—
He thought they would not notice him,
but each inmate of the carriage bowed politely, as of old.

"They have not heard the news!" he muttered cynically.
He was mistaken. That night the owner of the carriage came to see him.

"Rather close quarters, my friend,"
he said as he took a calm survey of Herbert's not very pretentious surroundings.

"Pretty close, that's a fact," said Mr.
de Browne, icily. "But since I lost my property—which I which I suppose you haven't heard—have been quite economical!"

"But I have heard," cried his auditor, abruptly, "and this is why I came. I knew you needed friends now, if ever,
and the fact is—well, my daughter, sir—
I mean, I came to offer you the position of head clerk in my counting house.—
Will you accept it?"

"Ahem! Well, I'll think of it. But it is a long way from my lodgings!"
"Deuce take your lodgings! You can board in my family as a—well, as a sort of guest, you know."

Herbert looked him over closely.— John Bandard was a wealthy man—very wealthy he was called—and in his face
there was nothing to warrant the suspicion that he had learned Herbert's secret, and wished to curry favor by aiding him
while under an apparent cloud; so that idea was speedily dismissed. Of course, he quickly thanked him, and accepted.

Once cozily snuggled in the Bandard mansion, it was not long before he wondered why he had not noticed Susie Bandard before.

She did not seem to feel above him,
notwithstanding the wide difference in their positions, and treated him as cordially
—more cordially—than he thought—than before the change in his fortune. He would not have been human had he not learned to love her. The climax came when she gave a grand party. Then,
before the elite of the city, she did not hesitate to receive attentions from him,
on which but one construction could be placed. He thought her quite a heroine, and asked for no further proof that she could love him.

The next afternoon they met in her father's library, where he waited to see her.
"Susie," he said, as soon as the usual courtesies had been exchanged, "I come to you this morning to learn my fate. I know the difference in our positions, and would not urge you—only let your heart decide. My heart I lay before you."

She blushed prettily, and seemed confused for a moment; then she gave him
her hand.
"I have loved you, oh, so long!" she said; and I feared that you would never love me. You were so jealous before you lost your wealth that all women were more adventurers. I was heartily glad when papa said you had lost it, and I—
"You sent him to negotiate with me," cried Herbert, finishing the sentence, intuitively, and giving it liberal emphasis.
"I loved you so!" she murmured deprecatingly.

"I do not doubt it, dearest."
And Mr. Herbert de Browne believed himself the happiest of men.
They were married. The wedding was very unpretentious, as became the bridegroom's straitened circumstances;
and he was in a constant ecstasy as he thought of her surprise when he should tell her his fortune still remained. He sent for Mrs. Rinkle to come and re-open the house, and to put it in condition to receive its mistress. Meantime, they tarried at her father's.

"Herbert," said his wife one day, "I have a favor to ask of you. Will you grant it?"
"I will, if it is in my power, Sue, darling," he exclaimed.

"Well, poor papa is rather short of money; won't you lend him fifty or sixty thousand dollars?"
"Me! Why, you know—"
"Oh! I know what you have been pretending," was the quick reply. "But,
then, it wasn't so; you never lost your money."

Herbert de Browne was dumb with astonishment and chagrin.
"How did you find that out?" he gasped.

"I knew it all the time. When I heard that you were penniless, papa went directly to your banker and learned the contrary. I think we managed pretty well."

"I think you did cry her husband
desperately; but do you think I'll endure it?"
"How can you help yourself? We are married now. You can't apply for a divorce."

"No, I can't; but—"
"Then what will you do?"
"Answer me one question: Do you really love me?"
"Yes, I do."

"Well, if you love me we will drop
the subject."
"I think you'd better," she said,
quietly, and lend-papa the money."
"And, like a sensible man, he lent it."

WHO NAMED THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

It was Ferdinand de Magellaens, or "Magellan," as he is usually called, who named the Pacific Ocean. Balboa discovered it from the Isthmus of Darien
several years before, but did not give it
the name. Magellan was a native of Portugal, but had been several years in the service of Spain, when he formed the design of going westward from Spain to the East Indies. He started with five ships, in 1519; reached South America
in safety, but had to quell a mutiny
among his rascally crew before proceeding further. Then, continuing his voyage, he passed through the remarkable strait which bears his name, thus saving hundreds of miles of navigation around Cape Horn, where it is said, "Forever
and ever the wildest winds of heaven
seem let loose to vex the ocean into madness." Then finding the waters so much ## more placid than the Atlantic, he named the ocean Pacific. He reached the La- drones islands, and thence the Philippine islands, where he was killed in a quarrel among the natives. His ship was con- ducted by Cano, one of his officers, on- ward to Spain, being the first that had circumnavigated the globe. The voyage occupied three years and one month.

Natural Science in the Public Schools.
The following paragraphs clipped from a recent journal, though having especial
reference to the schools of New York,
are so truthful in their general application, that I have thought them worthy of reproduction in the columns of the PATRIOT.

Reverting to the subject of the introduction of natural science into the public schools, it "insists that education, to be complete, should create, develop and perfect the moral and intellectual faculties, as well as the physical powers. In a democratic country, where every man
is expected to contribute his quota to the attainment of good government, we are told "it is absolutely essential that education should be of a higher grade,
more comprehensive and take cognizance
of all the faculties." There are few facilities for obtaining the higher and more valuable branches of knowledge—
and this defect, it is urged, should not exist. The progressive tendencies of the present day demand that we advance,
not stand still.

The children of the present day are furnished with the tools of education, but not taught how to use them. A new facility has been created, but no provision has been made for its daily wants. What is the consequence? A race of beings unequally developed, possessed of great command of words, very few ideas and
but little power of thinking, better fitted to be the subjects of a despotism than citizens of a free country.

By the present system of education the only function of the brain that is exercised is that of memory.
The introduction of the natural sciences
would be a great and much needed improvement; it would give to instruction
a definite and a higher aim; its design
would be the development of the whole being, as it introduces order into teaching, and by it we proceed from the simple to the complex, from the known to the unknown, and through the senses
to the mind, developing habits of reflection. It will render education intellectually steady and morally healthy.

The natural sciences have no equals
as agents for developing the mental faculties; the powers of observation and discrimination are developed and perfected, and reason, the highest faculty of the mind, exercised in an easy, agreeable and profitable manner. The study is also eminently calculated to humanize
and ennoble."

HENRY WARD BEECHER ON DANCING.

In the course of his sermon a few weeks ago, Mr. Beecher said:
"Some persons, when they join a church
think that they must put all the glee and mirth and music out of their lives. Don't you do it! If a love song ripples up to the surface of your heart, sing it! Don't let it die! My second mother, for I remember no other—was my idea of womanly gentleness, propriety and elegance. She was not however very demonstrative. She used, before marriage, to be quite a belle, and was often known to trip the light fantastic."

"One evening, as my grandfather played a tune on the violin, my mother arose, and in the most graceful manner
possible to conceive, commenced to dance around the room. I didn't know what to make of it. I was speechless with contemplation and delight. My father looked on in surprise. Never in the whole course of my life had I seen such a thing attempted in my father's house.
It was delicious, and I got a lesson then which has lasted me ever since. I think to this day if my mother had danced oftener, and said the catechism a little less it would have been better for all of us. If you have a talent for music cultivate it; for dancing cultivate it; whatever gifts God has given you make the most of them, whether of the voice, foot or eye."

A Chicago woman says she don't get married for the reason that she don't know whose husband she might be marrying.

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

Report from the Centre District.

An article appeared in the last Patriot, under the above heading, in which it was stated that "the Centre District has been thoroughly canvassed;" and giving a long list of subscribers, asserts that "the whole amount subscribed and collected in this (the Centre) District, falls but a little short of fourteen hundred dollars."

Granted to all the unquestioned right to spread abroad their own praises, and to sound aloud their own trumpets, the thought was suggested in reading the communication that it would have been honest to have added—that the subscribers do not all reside in the "Centre," but that a small number are residents of other Districts; and that a part of the $1400.00 was collected by canvassers of the South (who did not raid beyond their District lines) and paid to the Treasurer of the Centre.

Should other Districts publish their Reports, it would gratify some of the truthful statements, and not have one section attempt to siphon the credit to which others are entitled. SOUTH.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. Pursuant to a call, representatives in various towns of Norfolk county, friendly to Total Abstinence and Prohibition, assembled in the vestry of the Baptist Church, Hyde Park, on Tuesday last. Rev. Edwin Thompson was called to the chair, and Rev. H. G. Park was appointed Secretary. A motion was unanimously adopted to form a County Society, auxiliary to the Massachusetts State Temperance Alliance. A Committee was appointed to present a constitution which subsequently reported, and after amendments their report was adopted, and the name of the new society was called The Norfolk County Temperance Alliance, auxiliary to the Mass. State Temperance Alliance. The following officers were chosen to remain in office until the 2d Tuesday of October, 1872, when the annual meeting will take place:—

REFRIGERATORS.

It is economical in the use of Ice. Always perfectly dry. No taint. No mingling of food. Has received a Silver Medal, and in all cases the highest premium at the State Fairs.
The water, as it runs from the ice, is retained
in an iron tank around the food chamber, thus
aiding in the work of refrigeration. It is drawn
off through a faucet at pleasure, thus preventing any liability of having water dripping over on the floor.

Poetry.

THE COMING WOMAN.

Ah, who does not see that the age is at hand,
When man shall no longer be lord in the land?
When the women shall lay by the needle; and take the sword, the plough and the rake!

But oh, what a day of deliverance, when
The editor lays down his wearisome pen,
The mason his trowel, the joiner his square;
And the bodman no longer his burden shall bear!

When the soldier shall surrender his musket no
more,
The sailor repose, and the constable snore;
When the shipwright shall throw down his pos-
sionous mast,
And the poor crying shoemaker give up his awl!

When man who has struggled for six thousand years
In the sweat of his forehead, in sorrow and tears
Shall rest from his labor, his worry and strife,
And resign all his cares to his strong-minded wife!

Oh, brothers! how sweet, how delicious 'twill be
To sit all the morning a sipping your tea!
With nothing to do from dawn till night—
No speeches to spout, and no sermons to write;
No bargains to make, and no battles to fight.
No kindlings to split, and no fires to light.

And only to handle a fork or a ladle;
Or perhaps—very rarely—to juggle the cradle;
Very rarely, I say, for long before then,
The boys and the girls will be women and men?
And some feminine Barnum will show with her lamb, the cradle in which the LAST BABY DID slumber!

MOLASSES POUND CAKE. Flour one and one-quarter pounds, sugar one-half pound, one teaspoonful of molasses, four eggs, one-half pound of butter, a tablespoonful of ginger, a teaspoonful of cloves, cinnamon and allspice. Mix the butter and sugar, then the spices, then a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a teaspoon
and a half of milk, then the flour and eggs.

SYMPATHY. Youth and age have too little sympathy with each other. If the young would remember that they may be old, and the old remember that they have been young, the world would be happier.

The proprietor of a hotel was bustling about with twenty things to do,
when some one asked him why he didn't call up his waiter. "I shall call him as long as I can help it," replied he; "for when he is in bed I know where he is,
but after he is up I don't know where to find him."

God made both tears and laughter,
and both for kind purposes; for as laughter enables mirth and surprise to breathe freely, so tears enable sorrow to vent itself patiently. Tears hinder sorrow from becoming despair and madness; and laughter is one of the very privileges of reason, being confined to the human species.

It is a great waste of raw material
to put ten dollars' worth of beaver on ten cents' worth of brains.

If a married man were asked to say which of his bones he could consent to spare, he would probably decide, with perhaps a tear or two, to part with his rib.

A country man, strolling through New London recently, hand-in-hand with his rural Phyllis, impatient to visit the circus, exclaimed upon seeing a bunch of bananas, suspended in front of one of the fruit stores, "I'll be mowed if they ain't
the biggest beans I ever see, Sophrony?"

Have nothing to do with a man in a passion, for men are not like iron, to be wrought upon when hot.

A school committee in a frontier
district are reported to have summed up their opinion of an examination which they had attended, by making the pupils
this address:—"You're spelled well,
and you're ciphered good, but you haint
not still."

A man advertises for a competent person to undertake the sale of a new

It frequently happens that painters splash plate, or other glass windows when they are painting the sills. When this is the case, melt some soda in very hot water and wash them with it, using a soft flannel. It will entirely remove the paint.

Making people happy, says Mr.
Becher, is neither a small nor an important business. As I regard good nature as one of the richest fruits of true Christianity, so I regard the making of people round about us happy as one of the best manifestations of that Christian disposition which we are commanded to wear as a garment.

Miscellany.

COALS OF FIRE.

"Never mind, Bill—he may be a better scholar than you, but after all he's only a nobody."

The subject of this cruel remark could not fail of overhearing it, as it was designed he should, for he was only a few steps in advance of the boy who had thus spoken. Turning hotly upon them
he exclaimed:

"Only a nobody, am I? Take care, Dick Burnett, for whatever I may be, I will not be imposed upon by you."

"Just hear him," cried the boy. "One would think to hear him talk that his father owned half the wealth of Fen-dale, instead of being a poor, miserable sot,
whom everybody despises."

"Don't say that again if you know what is good for yourself," was the thoroughly angry rejoinder.

"But I shall say it as many times as I please! You needn't think, because you can beat me at school, that I am going to knuckle to you outside. You are a nobody, and your father's a miserable drunkard, not fit for decent people to associate with."

Jasper Kennett's dark eyes flashed ominously, and his hand was clenched to strike, but with great effort he restrained himself, merely saying as he walked away:

"You may taunt me now, Richard Burnett, but the time will yet come when I shall be as good as you, if I am the son of a drunkard. And I will remember you THAN!"

But when he was out of sight of his tormentor he threw himself upon a grassy knoll, beside the quiet river, and boy-like,
gave way to a passion of tears.

"My poor boy what is this crying
for?"

A sudden flush overspread his face, as looking up he beheld the placid, benevolent feature of a gentleman dressed in the well known garb of the "Friends,"
regarding him pityingly.

"Nothing," he replied, springing hastily to his feet, and drying his swollen eyes with the sleeve of his neatly mended jacket.

"But there is not crying for nothing,
my boy—tell me what is troubling thee,
I pray thee?"

It is impossible for Jasper to resist the magic influence of that voice, and manner
and with another flood of tears out came
the whole story of his father's degradation
the life-long struggle of his mother with shame and poverty, and the taunts, and insults, which he encountered daily. The kind eyes of the Quaker also filled in sympathy, as placing his hand on Jasper's shoulder, he said gently:

"Thy lot has been a hard one, I can see, but thee should not despair. And there may yet be able to repay thee doubly
for all the contumely which thy evil schoolmates may heap upon thee. But thee must bide thy time."

"And when it comes," exclaimed the boy with flashing eyes, "I tell you they shall suffer!"

"I meant not that," the Quaker said,
with a quiet smile. "I meant that thee should punish them by kindness. For doing that, thee will heap coals of fire
upon their heads that cannot fail to burn.
But thee has not told thy name to me as yet."

"Jasper Kennett."

"Well, Jasper, how would thee like to come and live with me?"

The boy gazed earnestly into the kind and genial face a moment, and then in perfect confidence, he said:

"Oh, I should like it much, sir, but I cannot leave my mother. She says that I am all the stay and comfort she has in the world, and I can never leave her."

"I honor thee for that," exclaimed the Quaker warmly, "but I shall need a housekeeper, and if thee comes, she may come with thee."

With eager steps Jasper Kennett led the way to the miserable hovel where his mother toiled and suffered, and soon
the arrangements had been made by which they were to find a brighter, happier home. And in another week they left Fen-
dale, the mother to assume charge of friend Tilden's splendid residence in Philadelphia, while Jasper was to go to school under the patronage of the benevolent Quaker, to secure an education that should fit him to grace the highest circles in the land.

THE HUSBAND.

Ladies sometimes do not value their husbands as they ought. They not im-frequently learn the value of a good husband for the first time by the loss of him. Yet the husband is the very root-stone of the house—the corner-stone of the edifice—the key-stone called home. He is the bread-winner of the family—its defence and its glory—the beginning and ending of the golden chain of life which surrounds it—its controller, law-giver,
and its king. Yet, we say, how frail is that life on which so much depends. How frail is the life of the husband and father!
When he is taken away who shall fill his place? When he is sick, what gloomy clouds hover over the house! When he is dead, what darkness, sleeping agony!
Then poverty, like the murderous assassin,
breaks in the window—starvation,
like a famishing wolf, howls at the door.
Widowhood is too often an associate of sackcloth and ashes. Orphanhood too often means desolation and woe.

One day two men entered his office in great apparent trouble, and called for Mr. Kennett.

"We come to throw ourselves upon your mercy, sir," said one, in tones almost despairing.

"Upon my mercy, gentlemen—in what respect?" said Jasper Kennett wonder-ingly.

"Your agent, sir, holds now a mortgage on our store, and we are positively unable to meet the payments on it, already overdue. We, therefore, come to pray
you to extend the time."

"Your names?"

"Richard Burnett and William Ellersley."

"And did you ever live in the little village of Fen-dale?" he asked.

"That is our native place."

"And it is also mine."

"Then you will not refuse to spare
us?" they exclaimed in sudden hope.

"And do you remember me?" he immediately demanded.

"Remember you!" they said; how should we? We know some Kennetts
there, a drunkard and his family, but they could not be relatives of yours?"

"But they were relatives of mine, for I am Jasper Kennett!"

And like an ocean wave the memory of their school-boy persecutions of Jasper Kennett rushed upon their souls, and thinking of the threats he uttered then,
they sorrowfully turned away, and would have left the office.

But he called them back.

"Richard Burnett," he demanded,
"do you recollect the way you persecuted
me because, though only a poor boy, I chanced to be a better scholar than Squire Burnett's son? Do you remember both of you, the mental tortures, that I suffered at your hands?"

They answered not a word.

"And do you call to mind what I assured you then, that I should sometime be as good as you, and that I should not then forget you?"

"Yes," they answered moodily, "we recollect it all, and had we known who you really were, we never should have come to you for a favor. Your revenge has come at last."

"My revenge?" said Jasper Kennett, smiling now as he gazed pityingly upon their evident distress. "Ah! gentlemen, my words perhaps misled you sadly. I do not seek revenge for what I suffered then—not in the way you think. My agent shall have orders not to press you!"

"What!" they cried, in rapt astonishment, "and after knowing who we are,
do you still spare us?"

"You must not think that because I have forgotten what occurred in boyhood,
that I have not long ago forgiven," said Jasper Kennett, quietly. "The past is past, and if I ruin you, it will in no wise
do me any good, nor be a help for that.
My agent will not press you."

The tears of gratitude sprang into their eyes as they grasped his hands.

"You are revenged," they said. "A noble vengeance, that is heaping coals of fire upon us."

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

Our Correspondent "South," in his article last week, intimated that no small number of the subscribers to the $1400 raised in the Centre District, resided in other parts of the town. Now we wish to correct our Correspondent in this particular, as it is far from the truth; as he, or any of the readers of the PATRIOT can see by carefully examining the list we published with the report. He also says that "a part of the $1400 was collected by canvassers of the South; and paid to the Treasurer of the Centre." This the Treasurer denies in toto. He has not the first cent of money raised by canvassers in the South; and what is more, all persons interested in collecting this amount have been particularly requested not to receive any from other districts. Parties who have taken great pains to have the money carefully and fairly raised, in the Centre District, think it is unkind to make such public statements, without the least foundation; and we believe it to be the duty of our Correspondent, if he has any facts, to state them, and not give to the readers a "bombast" without having anything substantial to back it.

NEW STREET. The Highway Surveyor has completed the new street from Washington to Sea, or nearly so. There is a small corner near the entrance on Washington street, which has not been meddled with, owing to an injunction, which will probably be removed on Monday next, at a meeting of the Court to investigate the matter. The rest of the street is in good travelling condition.

This new thoroughfare, opens to the public some excellent building lots, and at the same time makes it very convenient for our citizens on Sea or Hancock streets, or even from the south part of the town, who may wish to visit Stearns's great boot and shoe emporium, or Keating & Spear's furniture warehouse; or for persons in that vicinity who may have business with the wheelwrights, blacksmiths, painters, and harness manufacturers on Hancock street.

There are several more places where cross streets similar to this, are much needed in this town. They would help its growth and at the same time make it much more convenient for its citizens. The cost to build them is not great, and the yearly repairs is nearly insignificant.

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT. As Mr. Morrill, our gentlemanly depot master, was passing the furniture store of Mr. N. B. Farnald who was about raising a lounge when he falls to the upper story of his building, on Tuesday last, he requested Mr. M. to give him a little assistance. They had raised the lounge but a few feet from the ground, when the rope at the top of the building gave away, the wheel falling to the ground, breaking it into small pieces. In its descent it came so near Mr. Morrill's head as to hit the pen he had behind his ear, but fortunately missing him. Had it struck him, it must have killed him instantly, as coming from such a height, it fell with great force. We congratulate him on his lucky escape from a severe if not fatal accident.

SUBSTANTIAL AND DESIRABLE RESIDENCE. We refer our readers to S. A. Walker's advertisement for a description of a thorough and desirable residence in this place, to be sold at auction on Monday next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

GRANITE ENGINE COMPANY. The members of this Company, with their invited guests, partook of a breakfast at their house on the morning of the 4th. The tables were beautifully loaded with the substantial as well as the delicacies of the season, a large fruit cake handsomely decorated, gracing the centre. After spending a social hour in discussing the good things, the party separated. The tables still giving evidence of a bountiful supply, a large party of boys were invited to assist in stowing away the fragments.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES. All grocers, merchants, milk dealers and others using weights and measures will do well to read an Act in relation to sealing weights and measures, published in our advertising columns to-day. All persons have occasion to feel more or less interested in this matter, and a careful perusal will be beneficial to all.

APPOINTED. Mr. R. F. Claflin of Hopkinton, for several years the Cashier of the Hopkinton National Bank, has been appointed Cashier of the National Granite Bank of this place, and entered on the duties of his new office on the 1st inst.

BASE BALL RE-ORGANIZATION.

To the Publisher of the Patriot.

We learn that the old favorite Active Base Ball Club, have come together once more after their long rest from successful games, and with most of their old nine with a fine representation from the junior players, propose to play the Lowell or Unknown Club of Boston, on Saturday next, at 3.30 P. M., on their new grounds at South Quincy. J. P. BIGELOW, Secretary.

ACCIDENT. Mrs. Julia Burns, employed at the Hancock House in this place, met with quite a serious accident, yesterday morning, by jumping from a train of cars while in motion. She left Boston on the eight o'clock train, and on arriving at this place, she was not aware that it was Quincy until after the train had started, when she proceeded to the platform where she jumped off; the train had gone some distance and was in front of Mr. Chas. Marsh's residence, at the time. She struck on her feet but the velocity threw her down, and badly fractured a bone near the ankle. She laid in a helpless condition nearly an hour before she was discovered. After being found her broken limb was dressed by Dr. Underwood, and she was sent to the hospital in Boston.

A NEW BELL. Arrived yesterday from the manufacturers, Messrs. Blake & Co., formerly Hooper & Co., of Boston, a new bell for the New Congregational Church, in this place. Its weight is 1800 pounds, and is of the letter F, of the best quality. It was hoisted to the belfry about three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

AUCTION. Henry H. Faxon, Esq. will sell on Tuesday next, the estate of the late James Muller, deceased, on the corner of Willard and Copeland streets, West Quincy. The estate consists of a house, barn and about three-fifths of an acre of land.

REGATTA. The Boston city Regatta, which was to have taken place at City Point, on the Fourth, was postponed on account of the fog, to the 20th inst., at 11 o'clock.

PROBATE COURT will be held in this place on Wednesday next.

DEDICATION. The services connected with the dedication of the New Congregational Church, will take place, Providence permitting, on Wednesday, July 19th, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

GOVERNOR CLAFIN. The Commonwealth intimates that Governor Claflin will, in a few days, decline to have his name used in connection with the next Republican nomination for Governor. This will tend to make the fall canvass both lively and interesting.

REVENUE STAMPS. The Internal Revenue Bureau will change all the stamps, on or about the first of August, substituting two kinds—one called sensitive stamp, so made that the use of acids to remove cancelling marks will destroy them beyond re-use; the other to be printed in black color as to prevent imitation by means of photography. A great amount of time and attention has been bestowed upon this subject, and it is presumed that a large sum will be saved to the government by taking these precautionary means against fraud in the re-use of stamps.

LOOK OUT, GIRLS. Occasionally when the train arrives at the Old Colony Depot, in Boston, a nice young man jumps off and kisses the best looking girl at the depot, supposing it to be his sister. He apologizes so nice that the girls are getting so they look for him regularly. Some big brother will jam his nose yet.

POLITICAL. The New York Herald of Tuesday last, had quite a lengthy article, in allusion to a letter written by our townsman, John Q. Adams, Esq., to the editor of the Augusta (Ark.) Bulletin, on the political situation, and the "new departure." In conclusion it gave the following:

TICKET FOR 1872. "A powerful ticket, therefore, is the great essential for the democracy, and the ticket of Chase and Hancock will meet this demand, for it will be a very powerful ticket. Let the democrats adopt it, and cause it to be understood that, in the event of its election, Mr. John Quincy Adams will be the Secretary of State of the new administration; and much additional strength will be given in the campaign to the democratic cause. Let the democracy put on their Presidential ticket a good strong popular Cabinet out and out, headed by Mr. Adams, and they will find it immensely to their advantage."

The income from Hon. Wm. M. Everts practice alone is said to amount to over $50,000 a year.

WESTERN CORRESPONDENCE.

RED ROCK, KANSAS, JUNE 22, 1871.

To the Publisher of the Patriot.

Farmers are now breaking up wild prairie, it requires a four horse team, and none but polished steel plows are used, which must be kept very sharp when in use. The grass roots are very strong, and it takes about a year for the sod to become rotten enough to be worked. When the land is broken early enough, they put the corn into the sod, and do nothing more to it, and in a favorable season gather very good crops in this way.

Irish potatoes do rather poorly, unless great pains are taken to destroy the small striped bug, which strips the vines as soon as they are out of the ground, but we are never troubled with the potato rot. No one manures their land. Farmers often move their corns and log barns to have cleaner places for them.

Prairie fires are common here, in the spring and fall, haystacks, fences, and sometimes houses and stables, are destroyed by them, prudent farmers never neglect plowing fireguards around their premises. Our principal fencing stuff is wire, it costs one dollar a rod and makes a very durable fence.

Lincoln county had but eighty-three inhabitants in 1869, now there are one thousand four hundred and thirty-four; one hundred and thirteen families are from Massachusetts. Three families that I know are from Quincy: The Lincoln County Gazette, calls the East "the deserted States." This county was organized last fall, and the county seat established 2 1/2 miles from our place; the town has been regularly laid out into lots, and is being built up fast.

DRAINTREE.

PICK POCKETS. Mr. Wesley Howard, of South Braintree, returning home from Boston on Saturday last, had his pocket book, containing $135, taken from his pocket at the Old Colony Depot.

IMPROVEMENTS. The spirit of improvement is abroad in Braintree. The new School House is progressing finely.

The Town Hall appears in a new dress, having been repainted and labelled, by Mr. T. B. Stoddard. Quite a number of houses are in process of building at the South, and also at the North part of the town, and others are soon to be commenced. Within a week, Mr. M. Hobar has sold some twelve or fourteen house lots, North of the Town House, near the site selected for the New Library; which will sooner or later be built.

FOURTH. The Fourth passed very quietly, and the good people of Braintree, kept cool, and enjoyed themselves independently.

THE EXCURSION. The Editorial Association will leave the Lowell Depot Boston at 8 1/2 o'clock Monday, on their excursion to Montreal when a general good time is expected. The associations have adopted very neat badges to be worn on the excursion. Massachusetts has a blue badge, surmounted by a gilt eagle, and bearing the name, "Massachusetts Editors' and Publishers' Association," and the name of the paper with which the wearer is connected. Maine will wear a white badge, New Hampshire a red one, and Vermont one of some other color.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT. Mr. Eaton's horses not seeming to feel satisfied with their adventure some four weeks ago when they left their load of ice rather unceremoniously in the street, started on a run, as they were on their return home after delivering their load on Wednesday. The driver finding that he was unable to control them, and fearing an upset attempted to jump out of the cart when near the residence of Mrs. William Newcomb, on Adams street, but was hit by the wagon, and thrown to the ground with great force, spraining his shoulder and receiving some severe bruises, but fortunately escaping a serious accident. The horses continued, on till brought up by the large stone post at the entrance of Mr. Eaton's yard.

The steamer Massasoit, while on the first trip to the city on Fourth of July morning, owing to the dense fog, ran on Pig Rock, in Boston Harbor, knocking a hole in her hull, causing her to leak badly. She was kept afloat by constantly working the bilge pump, and her passengers were safely landed in Boston, after which she proceeded to East Boston, and hauled up for a few days' repairs.

Lemuel Buck, an eccentric character, died recently in Conneaut, Ohio, in his 85th year. More than sixty years ago he was killed by a young woman, which affected him, that he retired from society and lived alone, until the day of his decease. In public he donned "man's habiliments"; but under his own roof he wore feminine attire, declared he was Mrs. Buck, and always spoke of himself and desired to be spoken of as a woman.

Summary Intelligence.

It is proposed in Philadelphia to erect a monument to the memory of Martha Washington, by means of twenty thousand one dollar subscriptions.

More than half a million sewing machines were turned out in this country last year.

The Yarmouth Register says cranberry vines are looking remarkable well. No worms have yet appeared, and the vines promise a good crop.

Mr. Shanley, the Hoosac Tunnel contractor, states that he shall have a hole through from the east end to the central shaft within 18 months, and have the tunnel completed by July, 1874.

Philadelphia uses forty million gallons of water per day. It ought to be a clean city.

The eight pin factories of the United States turns out 6,720,000 pins in a year. Where do they all go to?

The amount of United States currency now outstanding is $307,699,652.

The biggest shagbark record was caught recently near Hartford. He measures two feet four inches from nose to tail, and weighed 8 1/2 pounds.

The Danbury News tells a story of a new boy in one of the Ridgfield Sunday schools, who, being asked who made the beautiful hills about them, replied that he did not know, as his parents only moved into town the Friday before.

There was a double golden wedding in Joliet, Wis., recently. The brides were married on the same day fifty years ago. In the home of their mother, now a venerable lady of eighty years, they celebrated the half-century anniversary.

A recent writer says that the fences of the United States have cost more than all the craft that float on our waters, salt and fresh; more, indeed, than any other class of property except railroads.

Next Monday will be the 60th anniversary of the settlement of Rev. Dr. Storrs over the First Parish in Braintree. Not one of the persons who were members of the church at that time are now living.

The next gala day in Boston will be the 17th of September, when the cornerstone of the soldiers' monument is to be laid.

The Old Colony and Newport Railway Company kept an ambulance at the station in Boston on Tuesday for the convenience of "overcome" people to the station-house.

INCREASE OF TEACHERS' SALARIES. At HYDE PARK. At a recent meeting of the School Committee, the teachers' salaries were increased as follows:—
Male Teachers.—For first year, $1,200; second year, $1,300; third year, $1,400.
Female Teachers.—For first year, $600; second year, $550; third year, $600.

New Bedford and Boston will be trebly united on Monday, the Old Colony and Newport and New Bedford and Taunton roads having agreed upon an express time table whereby connection is effected at West Junction, Taunton. Trains will leave New Bedford at 8 A. M., and Boston at 3.30 P. M. Running time, one hour and forty minutes, a saving of twenty minutes.

The Justices of the Supreme Court of this State after having considered the question, have decided that by the constitution of this Commonwealth, women cannot be appointed and commissioned as Justices of the Peace, as they cannot exercise any legal or constitutional authority appertaining to the office.

Hon. Samuel Thatcher, of Bangor, Me., is said to be the oldest ex-Congressman now living. He was born July 1st, 1776, and was a Representative in Congress from Massachusetts from 1802 to 1805.

SENSIBLE. The managers of the West Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia, have built a movable chapel to protect those attending funerals from the rain during the services at the grave. It will accommodate seventy-five mourners. If the idea is an odd, it is decidedly a sensible one. There is no reason why, because one person has died of a bad cold, half a dozen persons should take cold in mourning for him; and bereaved ones should be made as comfortable as possible.

A young countryman stopping in Lawrence on Saturday, stole a ride on the sprinkler of the watering-cart, evidently not knowing how the old thing worked. The driver pulled the valve lever, and the countryman rose about three feet into the air, coming down wetter but wiser.

ALL BOYS. The Weymouth Gazette says:—The widow Malone, in reply to the queries of the census taker, Mr. Bates, said she had five sons, and they were all boys.

Somebody says the best way to keep food upon the stomach is to bolt it down.

HOUSEBREAKING. About 1 1/2 o'clock Thursday morning the residence of Mr. C. F. Martin at Milton Mills was entered through an attic window by means of a ladder. Mr. Martin was awakened by noise made by the burglar, who made a hurried escape without any booty.

CRIMINAL. John Penell of Milton was before a trial justice, Wednesday, on a complaint charging him with stealing a horse, wagon and harness valued at $445, the property of Harris Farnham of this town, and was held in $5000 for trial. Penell was also sentenced to thirty days imprisonment in jail for maliciously destroying bedding in the lock-up.

RE-APPOINTED. Hon. Josiah Quincy has been reappointed Commissioner of Boston Harbor.

Mr. Newcomb, of Louisville, aged nearly 70, has just been married to a beautiful young girl. Mr. Newcomb was, by special legislative enactment, divorced from his insane wife six weeks ago, and required to devote $2500 a year for her support.

A Cincinnati man, annoyed by a constantly cowering rooster, tried him with arsenic. The cunning bird wouldn't eat, and the owner got the injudicious neighbor fined $200 for careless distribution of poison.

A SWIFT DIVORCE. It took just eight minutes and a quarter to divorce Nancy Pinkham from her husband, at Bangor. Within the time named, the case was entered in court, notice to defendant proved, a default entered, testimony heard, divorce decreed, and certificate issued.

AN ACT
In Relation to Sealing Weights
and Measures.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:—

SECTION 1. All persons using scales, weights, measures or milk-cans, for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities, shall have them adjusted, sealed and recorded by the sealer of weights and measures of the city or town in which they reside or have their usual place of business, and shall thereafter be responsible for the correctness and exactness of the same; provided, however, that they shall have the right to have such scales, weights, measures and milk-cans tested and adjusted at the office of the sealer of weights and measures whenever they desire to do so.

SECTION 2. The sealers of weights and measures in each city and town shall go once a year, and oftener if necessary, to every hay and coal scale, dormer or other platform balance, within the city or town that cannot be easily or conveniently removed, and test the accuracy of and adjust and seal the same.

SECTION 3. All persons using any scales, weights, measures or milk-cans, for the purpose of buying or selling any commodity, may have the same tested and sealed by the sealer of weights and measures, in the city or town where they reside or have their usual place of business, at his office, whenever they desire to have it done.

SECTION 4. Whenever a complaint is made to a sealer of weights and measures under oath, by any person that he has reasonable cause to believe that any scale, weight or measure used in the sale of any commodity within the city or town is incorrect, the said sealer shall go to the place where such scale, weight or measure is, and test and mark the same according to the result of the test; and if he finds the same to be incorrect and cannot be adjusted, the said sealer shall attach a notice thereto certifying the fact, and the person using the same shall be liable to the same penalties as if he had knowingly used a false scale or measure.

SECTION 5. All scales, weights and measures that cannot be made to conform to the standard, shall be stamped "Condemned" or "C. D." by the sealer of weights and measures; and no person shall thereafter use the same for weighing or measuring any commodity sold or exchanged, charged for any official duty he may perform.

SECTION 6. Every city and town shall, within the limited period of January and July in each year, advertise the several sections of this act, by publishing them in some newspaper printed in such city or town, or by posting them up in one or more public places therein.

SECTION 7. This act shall take effect upon its passage. [Approved May 6, 1870.]

Commissioners' Notice.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, for the County of Norfolk:—

THE undersigned, inhabitants of the town of Quincy, in said County, respectfully petition your Honorable Board, and pray, that the Selectmen of Quincy, having been duly requested so to do, in writing, by more than one person, an inhabitant of said Quincy, have within one year from this date unreasonably refused to lay out a town way from a point in the town near the house of Mitchell Goodrich, in said Quincy, to a point on Mount Pleasant, so called, joining the Old County road, near the house of Lawrence Rossett.

Wherefore the undersigned, feeling aggrieved by such refusal as aforesaid, respectfully pray your Honorable Board to cause such way to be laid out, or to authorize such an appropriation of money as will improve the road as it now runs, and to take all and every such further action in the premises as the public convenience and way require, and the law prescribes.

Desirable Residence
IN QUINCY.
MONDAY, JULY 10, 1871,
AT 4 O'CLOCK, P. M.

WILL be sold the well constructed and pleasant lot located residence on Adams Street, in the beautiful and attractive town of Quincy, owned and occupied by Horace Eaton, Esq. The house contains ten apartments, good cellar, in which there is a fruit room. There are about 2 1/2 acres of excellent land, on which there is the purest water and about 150 choice pear, peach and apple trees, and some thirty barrels of apples have been harvested in a season. There are also 15 varieties of the choicest grapes, besides strawberries, currants, gooseberries, raspberries, blackberries, &c.

In the immediate neighborhood are the charming estates of Hon. Charles Francis Adams, N. H. Emmons, E. H. Dewson, W. W. Greenough, James Buxton, Jr., G. A. Brackett, Esq., and the time-honored mansion of ex-President Adams. The drives are numerous and splendid, while the surroundings are spotted out into gardens and fields, and the air is filled with fragrant odors from flowers springing up on every side. A sparkling brook runs through the grounds, land and graceful elms shade the house and grounds, waving their pendant branches to the summer breeze, while the song of the

"Woodland Minstrel" mingle in harmony with the melodious ripple of the stream. The retirement and beauty of locality are valuable considerations, they are here found, and the Adams Academy, schools, churches, and the beautiful town of Quincy, is within a few minutes walk of the premises. $200 to be paid on the spot. Terms Liberal. For further information apply to the Auctioneer.

Care leave the depot of the Old Colony Railroad at 3 1/2 o'clock P. M., on the day of sale.

Also, on hand watches of lower and higher grades from $15.00 to $200.00.

INDEPENDENCE, JULY 4, 1871.

BY F. M. ADLINGTON.

The rising sun looks down, what see's he here?
A land of Freedom, Justice and good cheer;
These are the fruits of seeds our fathers sowed,
Watered with tears, and nourished with their blood.
Their grateful offspring hail the Jubilee—
The day they vowed to perish or live free,
Almost a hundred years have passed away
Since that brave declaration met the day.
That all men were born equal and born free,
To God alone was due the bended knee,
And millions waited for that truth to reign;
Wailed and hoped and prayed and not in vain.
From Heaven's at last the glorious mandate came,
And all have equal laws and rights the same.
Shout to the living, proclaim the Jubilee,
Exultant thank our Father God to thee,
Who gave our gallant sires, the fire and force
Through peril's paths to tread the patriot's course,
To their children left the precious dower,<
Of sacred freedom, Justice and good cheer, Sagittar—about to leave a great Nation's voice,
Over all the land, bid every heart rejoice,
And with sweet incense fill his courts above,
Who rains down blessings from the Fount of Love.

THE CASE OF JOHN MORAN. The Supreme Judicial Court on Saturday overruled the exceptions taken by the prisoner's counsel in the case of John Moran, the Stoughton murderer, and affirmed the rulings of the court at his trial. He was accordingly sentenced on Wednesday to imprisonment for life. The prisoner complained that he had not been fairly treated, which is a rather silly acknowledgment of the labor performed in his behalf by Messrs. and Quincy Dumps, the counsel assigned him, and to whom he is indebted for the privilege of dying a natural death.

BOY DROWNED. A boy named William Watson, fifteen years of age, residing in Hyde Park, went into Neponset River on Monday evening to wash himself, in doing which he stepped into a deep hole and sunk. Efforts were immediately made by several persons to save him, but his body was not recovered till life was extinct.

THE RESULTS OF A SODDEN JOY is thus exemplified: Mrs. Annie Breed, of Norwich, Connecticut, died recently and left $20,000 to a faithful servant, Abby Niles, for twenty years of devotion. The domestic was so delighted with the legacy that she died of excess of felicity less than two weeks.

WE NOTICED among the appointments for this county, by the Police Commissioners, the name of Andrew J. Garvey of Weymouth.

LIQUOR LAW IN MICHIGAN. The liquor law of Michigan has been so amended as to authorize any wife, child, husband or guardian to bring a suit for damages against dealers who may furnish a relative with intoxicating liquors and also rendering jointly liable the owner of the premises on which the liquor was sold.

Marriages.

In Dorchester, on the 4th inst., Mrs. Sarah M., wife of Mr. Lewis Pierce, aged 82 years, 7 months and 11 days.

Special Notices.

NOTICE. No Bill against the Fire Department of Quincy will be paid by the Selectmen, unless approved by the Engineer in charge of the Company, which the goods or articles have been delivered.

Per order,
JOHN W. HALL, Chief Engineer.

REGULAR CONVOCATIONS.

The Regular Convocations of St. Paul's Lodge, No. 37, will be held every WEDNESDAY EVENING, at 8 o'clock, at their new Hall.
Per order,
C. A. SPEAR, W. C.

Twenty-Eight Years' Practice. In the Treatment of Diseases Incident to Females, has been a specialty, and enables him to guarantee a speedy and permanent cure in the worst cases of Quin's disease. All before for advice most, consult $1.
Office No. 9 Exchange Street, Boston.

W. H. BROWN has been appointed to take charge of the Boston, July 2, 1871.

WHAT IS ACCOMPLISHED. Some of our readers who have lived fifty years may be glad to know what they have accomplished in that time. According to a French statistician, the average man has, at that age, slept 6000 days, worked 6500 days, walked 8000 days, amused himself 4000 days, spent 1500 in eating, and been sick 500 days. He has eaten 17,000 pounds of bread, 16,000 pounds of meat, and 4600 pounds of vegetables, fish, &c., drank 7000 gallons of liquids. There are 18,250 days in a half century, and from the above statement it would seem that a man slept just one-third of the time.

IT IS A CURIOUS FACT that our hats and cap manufactures in different localities, use different sizes of hats and caps as standards: Boston and the eastern states use the smallest sizes; New York and the middle states use the medium to largest sizes, and Chicago and the western states require the largest sizes. Goods manufactured for one market cannot be sold for the other, only in exceptional cases. The South use a shape peculiar to themselves and of a large size.

THE FASTEST TRAINS on American railways are slow in comparison with those of England. A London paper says that an express train on the Bristol and Exeter and Great Western Railway now runs from Exeter to Paddington, a distance of 194 miles, in four hours and a quarter, including stoppages of fifteen minutes. On other roads trains run with almost equal speed.

AN ICE CAVE IN IOWA. The wonderful ice cave in Decorah, Winnebago County, Iowa, is a vertical fissure in the face of the cliff of Trenton limestone that forms a part of the Upper Iowa river. It is about 100 feet deep in all its winding, is from two to eight feet in width, and varies still more in height. In the winter the cave is free from ice, but upon the approach of hot weather the ice begins to accumulate, and solid, hard and dry cakes encrust the sides and bottom of the cave. When the weather is hottest the cave is most abundantly stored with ice.

OLD AND NEW.

We love the old—we love the new;—
We love the beautiful and true;
We love to see "improvements" made
In every branch of honest trade.
In passing down through "Old Dock Square,"
We like some late "improvements" there;
To speak of one we now propose,
Where Richards long has sold Boys' Clothes;
A few days since we stepped in there,
To see his "New Boys' Clothes Bazaar," Filled with a stock for Summer wear,
In which he gives such "bargains" rare,
That multitudes are trading there,
At 24 and 5 Dock Square.

THE HOT SEASON.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

The folks that on the first of May Wore winter coats and hose,
Began to say, the first of June,
"Good Lord! how hot it grows!"
At last two Fabrenheits blew up,
And killed two children small,
And one barometer shot dead
A tutor, with its ball.

Now all day long the locusts sang
Among the leafless trees;
Three new hotels warped into town,
The pumps could only wheeze;
And ripe old wine, that twenty years
Had cob-webbed o'er in vats,
Came spouting through the rotten corks
Like Joly's best champagne.

Plump men of mornings ordered tight,
But, ere the scorching noons
Their candle mounds had grown as loose
As Cosack pantaloons;
The dogs ran mad—men could not try
If water they would choose;
A horse fell dead—he only left
Four red-hot, rusty shoes.

But soon the people could not bear
The slightest hint of fire—
Allusion to caloric drew
A flood of savage ire;
The leaves on heat were all torn out
From every book at school,
And many blackguards kicked and caned
Because they said, "Keep cool!"

The gas-light companies were mobbed,
The bakers all were shot,
The penny press began to talk
Of lynching Dr. Nott;
And all about the warehouse steps
Were angry men in droves,
Crashing and splintering through the doors,
To smash the patent stoves.

BAKED PUDDING. Five tablespoonfuls of corn starch to one quart of milk;
dissolve the starch in a part of the milk,
heat the remainder of the milk to nearly boiling; having salted it a little, then add the dissolved starch to the milk, boil
three minutes, stirring it briskly; allow it to cool, and then thoroughly mix with it three eggs, well beaten, with three tablespoonfuls of sugar; flavor to your taste, and bake it half an hour.

SUMMER MINCE PIES. Two cups of sugar, one of molasses, one of vinegar,
one of butter, one of raisins, two eggs,
three Boston crackers, one cup of boiling water poured on the crackers; cloves and other spices to your taste. This quantity makes two large pies.

Patrick saw a bull pawing in a field, and thought what fun it would be to jump over, catch him by the horns and rub his nose in the dirt. The idea was so funny that he lay down and laughed to think of it. The more he thought of it the funnier it seemed, and he determined to do it. Taurus quickly tossed him over the fence again, somewhat bruised. Pat leisurely picked himself up with the consolatory remark: "Well,
it's a mighty fine thing I had my laugh
first."

Some slandering bachelor says it is much joy when you first get married,
but it is more joy after a year or so.

Let amusements fill up the chinks
of your existence, not the great spaces thereof. Let your pleasure be taken as Daniel took his prayer, with his windows
open—pleasures which need not cause a single blush on an ingenious cheek.

HEAVEN. Henry Ward Beecher
says: "When I think of Heaven, I do not think of angels standing like wax candles, in long altar rows, singing hymns of praise; I think of saintly life, of angelic life, the sweetest, the gayest, the most joyous, the fullest of every mood
of fancy and goodness. I think of beings that carry light in the eye and joy in the heart, and ecstasy of every touch."

A RECOMMENDATION. An English gentleman gave a discharged domestic the following character:—"The bearer has been in my employ a year—minus 11 months.
During that time she has shown herself
diligent—at the house door; frugal—in her work; mindful—of herself; prompt—in excuses; friendly—towards men; faithful—to her lovers; and honest when everything had vanished."

It is a great blunder in the pursuit of happiness not to know when we have got it; that is, not to be contented
with a reasonable measure of it.

Any work whereby men and women earn an honest livelihood is, neither to be despised nor ridiculed, except by brainless fops and silly belles.

A man who went fishing in a private pond in a suburban town complains that he only got one bite, and that was from a dog, whose master owned the pond.

He who refuses to do justice to the defenceless will often be found making unreasonable concessions to the powerful.

A MIDNIGHT ADVENTURE.

Females often possess presence of mind and the power of self-control under circumstances of imminent danger which seems almost foreign to their nature, and beyond the endurance of a delicate organization. Here is a striking instance of self-command by a lady whose fears never before given her nerves any severe test than is incident to the vicissitudes of domestic cares. We copy
the adventure, premising by way of explanation, that the lady was the daughter of a rector, residing in a quiet English country village, and was upon the eve of marriage.

The wedding-day was to be on the morrow of that on which our adventure happened. Grand preparations were made for the wedding; and the rector's fine old plate, and the costly gifts of the bride, were discussed with pride and pleasure at the Hare and Hounds in the presence of some strangers who had come down to a prize fight which had taken place in the neighborhood.

That night, Adelaide, who had occupied a room separate from her sister, sat
up late—long after the whole household had retired to rest. She had a long interview with her father, and had been reading a chapter to which he had directed her attention, and since, had packed up her jewels, etc. She was, consequently, still dressed when the church clock told midnight. As it ceased, she fancied
she heard a low noise like that of a file;
she listened, but could distinguish nothing clearly. It might have been made by some of the servants still about,
or perhaps it was only the creaking of the old trees. She heard nothing but the sighing of the winter winds for many minutes afterwards.

House-breakers
were mere myths in primitive Tyndon,
and the bride elect, without a single
thought of fear, resumed her occupation.
She was gazing on a glittering set of diamonds, destined to be worn at the wedding, when her bedroom door softly opened. She turned, looked up, and beheld a man with a black mask holding a pistol in his hand, standing before her.

She did not scream, for her first thought was for her father, who slept in the next room, and to whom any sudden alarm
might be death, for he was old, feeble,
and suffering from the heart complaint.
She affronted the robber boldly, and addressed him in a whisper:

"You are come," she said, "to rob us.
Spare your soul the awful guilt of murder. My father sleeps next to my room, and to be startled from his sleep would kill him. Make no noise, I beg of you."

The fellow was astonished and cowed.
"We won't make no noise," he replied, "if you give us everything quietly."
Adelaide drew back and let him take her jewels—not without a pang, for they were precious love-gifts, noticing at the same time that two other masked ruffians stood at the half-opened door.
As he took the jewel-case and watch
from the table, and demanded her purse,
she asked him if he intended to go into her father's room. She received a surly affirmative; he wasn't going to run all risk and leave the tin behind! She proposed instantly that she would go herself, saying:

"I will bring you whatever you wish,
and you may guard me thither, and kill me if I play false to you."

The fellow consulted his comrades,
and after a short parley, they agreed to the proposal; and with a pistol pointed at her head, the dauntless girl crossed the passage and entered the rector's room. Very gently she stole across the chamber and removing his purse, watch, keys, and desk, she gave them up to the robbers who stood at the door. The old man slept peacefully and calmly, thus guarded by his child, who softly shut the door, and demanded if the robbers were yet satisfied.

The leader replied that they should be
when they had got the show of plate spread out below, and that they couldn't let her out of sight, and that she must go with them.

In compliance with this mandate, she followed them down stairs
to the dining-room, where a splendid wedding breakfast had been laid, to save trouble and hurry on the morrow. To her surprise, the fellows—eight in number when assembled—seated themselves and prepared to take a good meal. They ordered her to bring them wine, and to cut her own wedding cake for them; and then seated at the head of the table, she was compelled to preside at this extraordinary revel.

They ate, drank, laughed and joked;
and Adelaide, quick of ear and eye, had time to study, in her quiet way, the figures and voices of the whole set.

When the repast was ended, and the plate transferred to a sack, they prepared to depart, whispering together and glance-ing at the young lady. For the first time Adelaide's courage gave way, and she trembled; but it was not a consultation against her, as it proved. The leader approaching her, told her, that they did not wish to harm her—that she was a jolly wench, regular game, and that they wouldn't hurt her, but that she must swear not to give the alarm till nine or ten the next day, when they should be off all safe. To this, of course,
she was obliged to assent, and they all insisted on shaking hands with her. She noticed during this parting ceremony that one of the ruffians had only three fingers on the left hand.

Alone, and in the despoiled room, Adelaide faint and exhausted, awaited the first gleam of daylight; then, as the robbers did not return, she stole up to her room, undressed, and fell into a disturbed slumber. The consternation of the family the next morning may be imagined;
and Adelaide's story was still more astonishing than the fact of the robbery itself. Police were sent for from London, and they, guided by Adelaide's description of the midnight guests, actually succeeded in capturing every one of the gang, whom the young lady had no difficulty in identifying and swearing to as
"the three-fingered Jack" being the guiding clue to the discovery. The stolen property was nearly all recovered, and the old rector always declared—and with truth—that he owed his life to the self-possession of his child.

SHOWING THE DEAD.
A writer describes a curious custom in Havana of laying out bodies in state during the night before burial. They are placed close to an open window fronting
the street, on a couch four or five feet from the ground. The corpse is surrounded by high wax tapers, and the whole room illuminated. Frequently,
when returning from a tertulia or ball,
I have been startled to see the fixed and rigid features of some old gentleman or lady, dressed in their best attire, and apparently reclining before the window.—
It used to appear an unnecessary mockery of death, dressing out a corpse in a new suit of clothes, with tight patent leather boots and a white neck-cloth. I remember one night in particular. I was returning home through one of the by-streets, when, seeing the lower windows
of a house illuminated, and concluding there was a body lying in state, I went towards it. There, close to the window, so close that I could have touched it through the bars, lay the body of a young girl about fifteen years of age. She was dressed as for a ball, with flowers in her hair, and white satin shoes on her feet;
her hands crossed on her breast, her eyes
closed, and her mouth slightly opened;
and, altogether, her face and expression
was one of the most beautiful I ever saw.

A SAFE PLACE TO CARRY MONEY.
An amusing incident occurred in a crowded passenger car near Hillsboro', on the North Carolina Railroad, the other day. While Mr. W. W. Davies, the gentlemanly conductor, was collecting tickets from the passengers, all responding promptly except one old fat lady who sat next to the door, and seemed to reach down as to get something she had dropped on the floor. When her time came to pay she raised her head and thus addressed the blushing conductor.

"I allers, when I travels, carry my money in my stockin'," for, you sees,
nothing can get at it thar, and I'd thank you young man, just to reach it for me, as I am so jammed in I can't get to it. I forgot to get a ticket at the depot."

The conductor, who by the way is a very modest young man, glanced at the other passengers, some of whom were laughing at his plight; one or two young ladies among them blushed scarlet, and he beat a sudden retreat, muttering something about not charging old ladies.—
His cash was short that trip the fare of one passenger.

THE SORROWS OF OTHERS.

There is no question that habitual cheerfulness is a great blessing. But when cheerful people are lauded, let it be remembered as a general thing that they are no more to be commended for it than a person for the possession of a pair of beautiful eyes. Cheerfulness is a matter of health and constitution. An invalid or a nervous person—a very sensitive person, easily affected by atmospheric and other influences—cannot be uniformly cheerful. He may do much towards endeavoring to be so, it is true, but it must be a thing of effort. Many people are cheerful because they are apathetic.
The sorrows of others, not being their own, are easy to bear. We do not wish to decry this social sunshine; but let us not forget that there are very sweet flowers that flourish and give out perfume
in the shade, and at intervals.

A REMARKABLE SPRING.

Silver Spring, Florida, is one of the greatest curiosities in the South. It bursts forth in the midst of the most fertile country in the State. It bubbles up in a basin near one hundred feet deep,
and about an acre in extent, and sending
from it a deep stream sixty to one hundred feet wide, and extending six to eight miles to the Ocklawaha river. In the spring itself fifty boats may lie at anchor—quite a fleet. The spring thus forms a natural inland port, to which three steamers now run regularly from the St. Johns, making close connections with the ocean steamers at Palatka. The clearness of the water is truly wonderful. It seems even more transparent than air;
you see the bottom, eighty feet below the bottom of your boat, the exact form of the smallest pebble, the outline and color of the leaf that has sunk, and all the prismatic colors of the rainbow are reflected. Large fish swim in it, every scale visible and every movement distinctly seen. If you go to the spring in a boat, you will see the fissures in the rocks from which the river pours upward
like an inverted cataract.

THE DAY OF REST.
I think with a shudder, sometimes, of what life would be without Sunday—if day after day the great wheel of the world went round with its ceaseless clatter, never rest in motion, never a pause in sound. I speak of the Sabbath only in its original meaning, as a word that signifies rest. And in this sense it is by most men, and ought to be by all, esteemed as the very greatest of all blessings
which Almighty benevolence has bestowed on man. The worst Sabbath-breaker of all is the ingrate who is not thankful when the Sabbath comes round. He may go to Church three times a day, and he breaks in all outward observance, but he sneers at the Sabbath in his heart if he rejoices when it is over. There are many kinds of worship, and I am humbly disposed to think that the giving of thanks is not the least acceptable of them. If it be true that laborare est orare, we are praying during six days of the week, and may devote the seventh to praise. He who thoroughly enjoys his day of rest lives from morning till night
in a state of thankfulness to the Almighty;
the increase of praise is continually rising from his heart. I do not envy the man who does not hail the advent of Sunday, and rejoice in the rest which it vouchsafes.

DIFFUSERS OF HAPPINESS.
Some men move through life as a band
of music moves down the street, flinging
out pleasure on every side through the air to every one, far and near, who can listen. Some men fill the air with their presence and sweetness, as orchards, in October days, fill the air with the perfume of ripe fruit. Some women cling to their own houses like the honey-suckle
over the door, yet, like it, fill all the region with the subtle fragrance of their goodness. How great a bounty and a blessing is it to hold the royal gifts of the soul that they shall be music to some,
and fragrance to others, and life to all!

It would be no unworthy thing to live for, to make the power which we have within us the breath of other men's joys;
to fill the atmosphere which they must stand in with a brightness which they cannot create for themselves.—Beecher.

CAUSES OF SUMMER DISEASES.

The Journal of Health for June, under a different heading, states the following facts concerning the causes of disease:

The mistletoe bough, like the Spanish
moss, which drapes the trees of Southern swamps in such sad funeral garb, is a growth outside of the natural condition of the tree; it is a parasite,

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

ST. ALBANS, JULY 11, 1871.

In company with Brother Editors and Publishers, we left the Lowell Depot, Boston, at 8 1-2 o'clock, A. M. on Monday morning last, on the grand excursion to St. Albans and Montreal. If any of the citizens of Quincy were present, they certainly must have called as a company of "Carpet-baggers," as nearly every person had a valise, or one or more bundles,—but trunks were scarce.

The company started promptly much to the disappointment of a few who were left behind. The train consisted of nine elegant cars, some of which were very tastefully decorated with flags, streamers, etc. The first stopping place was Lowell,—twenty-six miles from Boston,—which we reached in fifty minutes. Here one of the editors left us, saying that his wife had been left behind. After a moment's rest, the engine was again started, and we flew over the road with great rapidity,—stopping only a few minutes at Nashua, Manchester and Concord.

We arrived at White River Junction, 143 miles from Boston, a little past two o'clock, where we found an excellent dinner awaiting us, and it is needless to say the "craft" did it justice. This station is in Vermont, just west of the Connecticut river, and is quite an important one, being at the junction of three large and prosperous railroads. The hotel accommodation is ample, and we made a very pleasant visit of thirty minutes, which, together with an excellent dinner, greatly refreshed us.

Again we started; this time for St. Albans, the great butter and cheese market, at the extreme Northwest of Vermont,—265 miles from Boston. We passed numerous villages, some very beautiful and attractive, others rough and without any pretensions to beauty. Farmers were busy at hay-making. Many of them having horse rakes, mowing machines, and other modern agricultural implements. The hay crop is light, along this route, most of the way. We saw many fields that would not average over eight or ten hundred to the acre. The crops all appeared to us as being backward. Corn in many fields not over four or six inches high. Some of the best farms we noticed were in the vicinity of Northfield, Vt.

On arriving at St. Albans, about 7.30 P. M., we found a band of music and a large collection of people at the depot awaiting us. Escorted by the band, we marched to the Weldon House, Thomas Lavender, Proprietor, where we found excellent accommodations. In front of the hotel, after supper, there was a very fine display of fireworks, which was interspersed with sweet music by the band.

On Tuesday morning, carriages were furnished us to visit Bellevue, a very fine elevation, situated about two miles from the hotel. The prospect from this hill is magnificent,—a most lovely one,—commanding the ranges of the Adirondack and Green Mountains, and a wide stretch of Lake Champlain.

The citizens of St. Albans have used us handsomely, and the place will long be remembered by the editorial fraternity.

High School. We understand that the graduating exercises of the High School are to take place next week. Owing to the repairs on the Town Hall, the exercises will be held at Revere Hall. On account of the limited capacity of the latter only a small number of those who desire to attend, can be furnished with tickets.

Base Ball. The Active B. B. Club played a friendly "practice" game with the Excelsior Club of Boston, the latter scoring 22 to the Active's 8, in five innings. Being the first the Actives have played this season, we think they done very well. To-day at 4 o'clock P. M. the Unknown club of Boston or Dorchester district, will play with them, and we hope to see a good attendance to witness their fine playing. At 8 o'clock they meet to re-organize, choose officers and start on a good foundation and form a "Nine" that will be a credit to the town and themselves. All lovers of this kind of sport are invited to attend.

Pic-Nic. The Universalist Sabbath School will hold their annual Pic Nic, at the New House, erected by Mr. Reed, near the Old Squantum House, Tuesday, July 25, all friends are invited to unite and make it a pleasant occasion.

Diminished Debt in the Public Debt. It is estimated that the decrease of the debt in June will be $6,000,000 and it is estimated that Internal Revenue for 1872 will be $120,000,000, including $15,000,000 from the sale of stamps.

SCHOOLS. A corresponding member of the School Committee of Weymouth gives the Hingham Journal particulars of school matters, in which it is stated that few towns are under more thorough supervision in school matters than the town of Weymouth. The work of teacher and Committee is systematized, and the wheels of the educational car of that town generation runs smoothly. Two handsome and convenient school houses have been erected at Weymouth and East Weymouth during the past two years, and the whole value of school property in town cannot be far from one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars. The whole number of different schools in town is thirty-six. Two of these are high schools, located at the North and South parts of the town; nine are grammar schools, five of which are taught by males; thirteen are intermediate schools, taught by females, and twelve primary, taught by the same. Three of our schools have assistant teachers, making the whole number of teachers, thirty-nine. Twenty thousand dollars were appropriated at our last meeting for school purposes, and three thousand dollars for repairs in school-houses. The salaries paid teachers are as follows:—High-school principals receive $1200 each per annum; assistant in high school, $500; grammar school principals, $850 first year, $900 second year; female grammar school teachers, $40 per month; intermediate school teachers, $34 per month, and primary school teachers, $30 per month. The number of school children in Weymouth, according to the Assessors' returns, in 1870, was 1,903 between the ages of 5 and 15; the number of different scholars in all the schools during any part of the year 1870-71, 2,007.

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

Report from the Centre District.

MR. EDITOR.—An article appeared in the Patriot of the 1st inst., over the signature of "South," which was somewhat rudely criticised in the Editorial of last week,—you asserting, that the suggestion: "that no small number of the subscribers resided in other parts of the town," "is far from the truth."—"that the Treasurer of the Centre" "has not the first cent of money raised by the canvassers of the South."—"that all persons interested in collecting this amount ($14,000) have been particularly instructed not to receive any from other districts."—"that it is unkind to make such public statements without the least foundation."—"and" "that it is the duty of our correspondent if he has any facts, to state them, and not give to the readers a 'bombast' without having any thing substantial to back it."

Allowing the "bombast" of the style (and this is merely a matter of individual opinion and taste), your correspondent would state that every word was honestly believed to be but the exact truth, with "facts," "substantial to back it."

The Treasurer of the Centre denies having received any money from the South; his assertion to that effect will not be questioned—but at a meeting of the canvassers of the South, it was reported that money collected had been paid (as the Treasurer did not receive it) into the Treasury of the Centre; and the Trustee of the Library, then present, gave assurance that the money so paid should be properly credited.

The Report of the Committee of the Centre, "who have taken great pains to have the money carefully and fairly raised," was published; and unless the District lines are strangely flexible and contorted, some one must have disobeyed the very impartial instructions of the conscientious Committee of the Centre, "raised" beyond their bounds, and attempted "to filch the credit to which others are entitled."

With these "facts" it may not be deemed very "far from the truth," that your correspondent was induced to write: "that the thought was suggested in reading the communication, that it would have been honest to have added—that the subscribers do not all reside in the 'Centre,' but that no small number are residents of other Districts; and that a part of the $1400, was collected by canvassers of the South, and paid" ("not to the Treasurer") but into the Treasury of the Centre, where outstretched hands stood ready to receive the funds, willing persons recorded the names, and the capacious Treasury greedily absorbed the spoils. ## COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Norfolk, ss. By the Co. Commissioners.

At their Regular Meeting on Tuesday, the 27th of June, 1871, it was voted to publish the following statement and order for information:

The General Statutes in chapter 43, section 47, provide as follows:—"When a highway is finally laid out and established, altered or discontinued, or specific repairs are ordered on an existing highway, all the expenses of the proceeding, and also all damages allowed therefor, and sums awarded as indemnity, shall be paid by order of the Commissioners by the County, except as herein otherwise provided."

One of the exceptions referred to as above is contained in the 12th Section of the same Chapter, as follows:

"When application is made to the Commissioners by a Town or by five inhabitants of a Town to locate anew a road within such Town, whether the same were laid out by the Authority of the Town or otherwise, they may, either for the purpose of establishing the boundary lines of such road, or of making alterations in the course or width thereof, locate it anew, after giving like notice and proceeding in the manner prescribed in laying out highways. The expense shall be assessed upon the petitioners or upon the Town or County, as the Commissioners order."

It will be seen by the latter section that under a petition for "locating anew" any existing road, whether highway, Town-way or private way, the expense, including land damages, as appears by a decision in the 2d Gray, 274, may be assessed either in whole or in part upon the petitioners or upon the Town or County, as the equity of each case may require.

In view of the fact that lands in many towns and villages in this County have become very valuable—exceeding one dollar per foot in some cases—and that the streets in some of the older towns are very narrow, and alterations by widening often involve the removal of trees, hedges, fences and buildings, of much real (and sometimes of much greater imaginary) value; and that these improvements in streets are required mostly for the local necessity and convenience of sidewalks, horse railroads, better building facilities, greater symmetry and beauty of curve, and perfection and ease of grade; while for all the purposes of thorough or County travel, they may be reasonably satisfactory. And considering also that the land damages consequent upon widening narrow streets, often chiefly for local accommodation, is a heavier burden upon the Treasury of this than of any other County in the State—it would seem but equitable that in many cases a part of the land damages at least should be borne by the towns, and sometimes by the petitioners.

It has doubtless escaped general attention that the General Statutes greatly enlarge the scope of the Revised Statutes in re-locating an existing way. In the latter the town, in its corporate capacity, could make application; while in the former, any five inhabitants can do the same thing, and thus give the commissioners authority to assess the expense of the whole improvement where, in their judgment, it rightfully belongs.

This change in the law of widening or altering an existing way, by a petition for a re-location, was a wise foresight into the changed relations of the local and general wants of the public for wider avenues of travel. The increasing density of our population requires wider streets for local convenience than were formerly required in territory sparsely populated; and the law has been wisely modified so that the cost may be more equitably proportioned between the local and general public.

The Commissioners, therefore, commend the following order for the consideration of those who contemplate improvements in existing highways:

Ordered—That when any town, or five inhabitants of a town, desire the widening or alteration of an existing highway in such town, involving the taking of valuable land and especially the removal of trees, hedges, buildings, and other structures, they are respectfully advised and requested to bring their petitions within the scope of the 12th section of Chapter 43 of the General Statutes, as above quoted, that the way may be "located anew."

Ordered—That an attested copy of the above statement and order be published and circulated throughout the County, for information.

DEATH AMONG POLITICIANS.

The New York correspondent of the

Rochester Democrat:—The recent death of Vallandigham calls my attention to the remarkable exception which it forms to that of other departed political leaders. It is indeed worthy of notice that this class of men have lived to an old age or to its near approach, and that they have seldom been removed by violence. On this account Mr. Vallandigham's case attracts particular notice. His death, and that of Peter Cogger, are among the rare instances of the death of political leaders by accident. The death of A. P. Upshur, Secretary of the Navy, by the bursting of the big gun aboard the Princeton, in 1843, is the nearest parallel; but he was not a political leader. The Revolutionary patriot of Massachusetts, James Otis, who died Faneuil Hall ring with his eloquence, died by a stroke of lightning. Lincoln was slain by an assassin, and was the only one of our Presidents who died by violence. To these may be added the inferior name of Hiseock, whose fate while a member of the constitutional convention is fresh in the memory of our readers. Webster, while in Albany in 1845, was on the point of taking passage for New York in the steamer Swallow, which was wrecked near Hudson, and had he done so he might have been among other victims. Among the short-lived politicians, the most distinguished was Hugh S. Legree, the bright star of Tyler's Cabinet, who died at Boston in 1842. He was only forty-six, and had served as United States attorney for less than two years, but had won eminence in that time. Of our statesmen, Clay reached the age of seventy-five; Jackson, seventy-eight; Calhoun, sixty-eight; Webster, seventy; John Quincy Adams, eighty-one; Buchanan, seventy-eight; Van Buren, eighty-two; Taylor, sixty-four; Cass, eighty-two; Marcy was seventy-one, and Edward Everett the same; Benton was seventy-six, and remarkably, Webster, Calhoun, Cass and Van Buren were born the same year 1782. Going back to men of older date, John Adams saw his ninety-first year, Jefferson his eighty-third, both dying on the fourth of July, 1826. Burr lived to eighty-one, which was a striking contrast with his ancestors, for his father was forty-two at the time of his death, and his grandfather Jonathan Edwards, was only fifty-six. Monroe lived to seventy-three, John Jay to eighty-four, Patrick Henry to sixty-three. We thus learn that our politicians, notwithstanding their cares and vexations, enjoy an existence much beyond the average, and that the death of such men as Legree and Henry J. Raymond forms the exception.

DEDICATION. All those who may be interested in the Dedication of the Congregational Church, will please take notice that a change has been made in the time. The services will occur on Wednesday, July 19th, at 7 1-2 o'clock, P. M., at 3 o'clock as previously announced.

Summary Intelligence.

A Gloucester young lady was about throwing away a withered bouquet, lately, when she discovered in it a note containing an offer of marriage from a bashful but really exemplary young man of her acquaintance.

Willard Young, Brigham's son at West Point, says he has 16 brothers and 22 sisters.

California has made the first bar of tin ever manufactured in the United States.

The dental profession in the United States, it is estimated, comprises 13,000 members, who earn an aggregate income of twenty-four million dollars.

A gentleman in Boston has been regularly shaved by one barber for forty odd years.

Never, in any single season, were there so many American travellers abroad as now.

Grapes are sold at a cent and a half a pound in the vineyards in California, and would pay handsomely at half the price.

The Alabama claims foot up about thirteen millions of dollars, for two hundred and thirty-four vessels destroyed.

Abbott Village, Andover, is proud of a circular saw nearly five feet in diameter, with teeth a foot apart.

"A girl of twenty, at Alton Ill., is digging a well for her father, at seventy-five cents a foot. She has already put down two feet." Usually when a woman puts her foot down it does no good; but in Illinois, when she puts down two feet, it means well.

The names of one hundred and fifteen persons were proposed for admission to Henry Ward Beecher's church on a recent Sabbath.

The First Congregational Church of Abington has extended a call to the Rev. Samuel H. Virgin of North Somerville, and the Central Church of Middleborough to the Rev. Ellis R. Drake of Weyland.

SINGULAR DEATH.

Four young men, residents of West Lynn, ate some raw clams that they obtained from a man who was digging them, at Chelsea beach on Thursday of last week. They all became very sick in a short time and immediately started for home and one of them died soon after their arrival in Lynn. Three physicians were called, and after questioning the survivors attributed their sickness and cause of death to eating raw clams.

TRAVELERS. Three years since Mr. and Mrs. Z. M. Smith set out for a long journey from Boston in their own carriage. They returned a few days ago, having accomplished 12,000 miles with their horses and 80,000 by steam, saddle and canoe in the far West and Mexico at an expense to themselves of $25,000. They visited every place of the smallest importance in whatever region they traveled.

PUBLIC LIBRARY. The Trustees of the Public Library acknowledge the receipt of several volumes of books from Mrs. E. Hayden, and also from the Agricultural Library of all the books belonging to the same.

We are also requested to state that the canvass of the town for the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, for the Library fund, is nearly completed in accordance with the plan and under the direction of the Trustees, and the friends and contributors, may expect in a few days an authorized and correct report of the total amount so obtained, and of the amount raised in each district.

AN ACT.

In Relation to Sealing Weights and Measures.

Be it enacted &amp;c., as follows:—

SECTION 1. All persons using scales, weights, measures or milk-cans, for the purpose of selling any goods, wares, merchandise or other commodities, shall have them adjusted, sealed and recorded by the sealers of weights and measures in the city or town where they reside or have their usual place of business, and shall thereafter be responsible for the correctness and exactness of the same; provided, however, that, whenever they desire to have their scales, weights, measures and milk-cans tested and adjusted at the office of the sealers of weights and measures whenever they desire to do so.

SECTION 2. The sealers of weights and measures in each city and town shall, once a year, and oftener if necessary, to every lay and coal scale, dormant or other platform balance, within said city or town that cannot be easily or conveniently removed, and test the accuracy of and adjust and seal the same.

SECTION 3. Any person using any scales, weights, measures or milk-cans, shall have the same sealed and sealed by the sealers of weights and measures, in the city or town where they reside or have their usual place of business, at his office, whenever they desire to have them done.

SECTION 4. Whenever a complaint is made to a sealer of weights and measures under oath, by any person that he has reasonable cause to believe that any scale, weight or measure used in the sale of any commodity within the city or town is incorrect, the said sealer shall go to the place where such scale, weight or measure is, and test and mark the same according to the result of the test applied thereto, and if the same be incorrect and cannot be adjusted, he shall attach a notice thereof certifying the fact, and forbidding the use thereof until the same has been made to conform to the authorized standard. Any person using any scales, weights or measures after a sealer of weights and measures has demanded permission to test the same, and has been refused such permission, shall be liable to the same penalties as if he had knowingly used a false scale, weight or measure.

SECTION 5. All scales, weights and measures that cannot be made to conform to the standard, shall be stamped "Condemned" or "CD" by the sealer of weights and measures, and no person shall thereafter use the same for weighing or measuring any commodity sold or exchanged, under the penalties provided in the case of the use of false scales, weights or measures.

SECTION 6. Every sealer of weights and measures shall receive such compensation for his services as may be fixed by the city or town within which he is appointed, and no fees shall be charged for any official duty he may perform.

SECTION 7. Every city and town shall, within the first ten days of January and July in each year, advertise the several sections of this act, by publishing them in some newspaper printed in such city or town, or by posting them up in one or more public places therein.

SECTION 8. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

WONDERFUL PRODUCTION. The venerable R. D. Munson of Williston Vt. has completed his wonderful musical calendar clock. It is regarded as a wonderful production, and has attracted visitors from far and near. It is in every detail the handiwork of an old Vermont farmer, who has spent his spare hours in working upon it, for the past eight years. He has produced an eight day clock, whose dial marks the second, minute, hour, day of the week, day of the month, and year; a thermometer rests against its pendulum, giving, the state of temperature; the ball of the pendulum contains a miniature timepiece which derives its motive power solely from its vibrating position, and keeps accurate time. There is also a cylinder musical attachment, which may be set to play any one of seven tunes at the end of each hour. In this last feature it can be so adjusted as to suit the intention of the maker—as to play "Old Folks at Home," "Swiss Waltz," "Star Spangled Banner," "Hail Columbia," "Yankee Doodle" and "Sweet Home" respectively on each successive day of the week. The entire mechanism is handsomely encased in a black walnut case, which measures ten feet high, twenty inches wide and ten inches deep. The case is highly polished, and its front bears the inscription in raised letters, "Our Union forever," "U. S." Mr. Munson, who is sixty-two years old and quite feeble, naturally feels proud of what he has accomplished, and proposes to place his clock on public exhibition at an early day.

BRAINTREE.

STONE BREAKING. Rogues on Monday night last, entered the Union Store, and also the Store of Mr. White, both at the South part of the town, the Safe was blown open and left a complete wreck at the store of Mr. White, but the rogues must have been disappointed, as nothing of value to them was found within the Safe—at the Union Store, they were more successful, for after having opened the large Safe in the same manner, they found and carried off $40; nothing more of any amount was taken from either store.

A DOUBLE WEDDING. On Tuesday evening the South Congregational church was crowded with spectators, to witness the marriage ceremonies of Mr. A. R. French of Dorchester, to Miss S. L. Porter of Braitree, and of Mr. S. A. Willis to Miss C. E. Thayer, both of Braitree. Rev. Mr. Allen, assisted by Rev. Mr. Waldron and Rev. Mr. Richardson, performed the ceremonies.

Rev. Mr. Patterson, of Boston Highlands, will preach on exchange with the pastor of the Universalist church, next Sunday afternoon.

QUINCY SAVING'S BANK. It is gratifying to learn of the prosperous condition of this institution, and that it continues to retain and enjoy the confidence of our community to a very satisfactory degree, as evidenced by the fact of the steady and rapid increase in its business. The amount of money received on deposit for the present quarter, and the number of new accounts opened, exceeding that of any previous time.

"Corner loafing," with the use of abusive, indecent or insulting language, whether addressed to any person, passing upon any highway, to any other person or to no person in particular, has been made a statutory offense in Connecticut, punishable by a fine not exceeding seven dollars.

AUCTION. Mr. J. W. Lombard, sells at auction this afternoon, at 3 o'clock P. M., the fixtures belonging to Wm. H. White's market house. Those desirous of purchasing a good lot of market fixtures, will find it to their advantage to attend the sale.

EXPENSES IN WIDENING STREETS &c. All persons interested in widening streets, building new avenues, &c. should read an article found in another column, recently published by the County Commissioners, for the information of citizens of this County.

TIT FOR TAT. A good story is told of a Nashville physician who recently vaccinated a family of twelve persons in a town hard by, and for said job charged twelve dollars. A few days thereafter he took a dozen cabbage plants in part pay, as he supposed, but upon final settlement learned that Mr. Farmer charged doctor's prices—"One dollar a head."

ROOT BEER, A DESIRABLE SUMMER DRINK.

This Beer is in many respects, the BEST DRINK of the kind ever manufactured, as its medicinal properties render it exceedingly valuable in any derangement of the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, as a free use of it keeps these important organs in a healthy condition. These facts have induced the Proprietors to manufacture a Root Beer, and it has this advantage over the other Root Beers, that it is made by a pure and simple process, and is of the highest quality.

THE EMPTY CRADLE.

In the lonely, quiet chamber,
There's a cradle-bed,
With a print upon the pillow
Of a baby's little head.

"Tis a fair and dainty cradle,
Soft and downy pillows white;
But within the blanket fold
Lies no little form to-night.

Once the mother sat beside it
While the day was growing dim,
And her pleasant voice was singing,
Low and soft, a cradle hymn.

Now there's no more use of singing
While the evening shadows creep;
For the little bed is empty,
And the baby's gone to sleep.

Little head that used to nestle
In the pillows white and soft,
Little hands and restless fingers
Folded there in dreams so oft.

Lips were pressed with fondest kisses,
Eyes were gazed for purest ray,
Underneath the charyard daisies
Have been hidden all away.

Ah! the empty, empty cradle!
We will put it out of sight,
Lest our hearts should grieve too sorely
For the little one to-night.

We will think, how safe forever
In the better field above,
The young lamb for whom we sorrow
Resteth now in Jesus' love.

MULCHING BEARING FRUIT TREES.

There is no doubt now by our most intelligent horticulturists, about the practical advantages to be gained by mulching the surface of the orchard and fruit garden. This should be more generally practiced in fruit-producing districts, for it is the least expensive and most effective method of protecting the fruit trees against the bad results often following the frequent and sudden changes of temperature during the summer and fall months, when the surface of the ground is left exposed to the direct rays of the sun. Again, when the mulch is put two or three inches in thickness, the surface soil is constantly moist and loose, even when no rain falls for a term of several weeks, and the trees or fruit receive no check for want of moisture and food under such circumstances.

My method is to cultivate the space between the rows of trees in the orchard, using a small one-horse plow and cultivator, running not more than two inches deep, during the early part of July, first having put on a heavy coating of salt hay, covering the surface as far as the branches extend. After this there is no more trouble with weed or grass. There may be a few scattered ones start up, but they are easily destroyed.

Every fruit grower knows that two or three weeks before the time of gathering the main crop of fruit, fine specimens are constantly falling off by strong winds. When the ground is mulched the majority of such specimens are not bruised or injured for sale. This saving alone I consider, pays me for my trouble of mulching the orchard.

There is only one serious drawback to the application of mulch, that is the danger of hay or straw getting on fire when rendered dry by continual warm weather.

—P. T. Quinn, in N. Y. Tribune.

HOW TO APPLY MANURES.

A medium course in the manner of applying manures may be adopted with safety and profit, viz: Carry out the plan of deep cultivation but keep the manure and vegetable decay as near the surface as possible by means of shallow plowing and harrowing; in this way nine-tenths of its fertilizing quality will be retained, the remaining tenth being more than made up by the moisture attracted from the atmosphere.

Inednotes.

The late Rev. Daniel Isaac was both a great wit and a great smoker. "Ha! there you are," cried a lady who surprised him one day with a pipe in his mouth, "at your idol again."

"Yes, madam, replied he, coolly, "burning it."

Indigent Widow—Why, my child, you have three dollars a week pocket money now. You surely can't spend more than that!

Little Gent—Yes that's all well enough—but where's my cigars and smashes to come from? and that Newfoundland dog has such a d—d of an appetite! I'm sure he'll eat me out of house and home one of these days!

An artist showing his pictures to a customer received the following sharp retort: "Well, I don't think much of this," said the customer, holding up the picture before him.

"Rare! I've no doubt it is rare—it certainly is no doubt it is!"

"Mamma," said a little boy, who had been sent to dry a towel before the fire, "it is done when it's brown!"

The Best in the World.

COLTON'S PATENT

REFRIGERATOR

Is emphatically the King of

REFRIGERATORS.

It is economical in the use of ice. Always perfectly dry. No taste. No mingling of food. Has received a Silver Medal, and in all cases the highest premium at the State Fairs.

The water, as it runs from the ice, is retained in a tank around the food chamber, thus aiding in the work of refrigeration. It is drawn off through a faucet at pleasure, thus preventing any liability of having water dripping over on to the floor.

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

In our last number, we gave our readers a short account of our trip as far as St. Albans. Of the very hospitable manner we were received, &c. The city is one of the largest in Vermont. It being market day, our attention was attracted by the large number of horses hitched at the sidewalks. Every person driving a vehicle—even an open buggy, would have two horses attached. And, according to Friend Easterbrook's account, good horses could be bought quite low.

As we left the St. Albans depot, at three o'clock p. m. on Tuesday, the 11th inst., we were startled by loud reports caused by the explosion of torpedoes, which were placed on the track to give us a parting salute. We were now on our way to Montreal, where we arrived about six o'clock.

As we crossed the Vermont line into the Queen's Dominion, we were much surprised at the smoothness of the country. We saw thousands of acres along the track nearly as level as the floor. The houses are low, nearly all of one story, without paint, and indicated poverty. But if we could judge of the soil, from the large and handsome fields of grass and grain, we should say the poverty stricken appearance was caused more from indolence, and a lack of ambition, than from the natural resources of the country. The most important town we passed on the route was St. John's, a regular Dutch settlement.

At St. Lambert we entered the eastern end of the famous Victoria Bridge, a magnificent structure two miles in length which spans the St. Lawrence. It is a large iron tube resting on heavy abutments of solid masonry. Two hundred and fifty thousand tons of stone and eight thousand tons of iron were used in its construction. The steamboats pass under it on their way up and down the river.

On arriving at the depot, carriages and hacks were found ready to convey the party to the St. Lawrence and St. James, two of the largest and finest hotels in Montreal, and kept in excellent style and taste by H. Hogan & Co. By sunrise the next morning, many of the editors with their ladies, could have been found in the French Cathedral, Jesuit, and other handsome churches,—more for sight-seeing than for devotion.

The Cathedral is a very large Gothic building, capable of holding over seven thousand people. In front is two towers which are two hundred feet high; in one of them is a chime of bells, in the other an immense bell which weighs nearly thirty thousand pounds and is the largest in America. From this tower, a splendid view can be obtained of the city, the St. Lawrence river and the surrounding country.

At 8 o'clock we were conveyed by horse cars to the Grand Trunk Depot where, on invitation of His Worship, Mayor Council, a trip to Lachine by steam cars and down the Rapids by steamer to the city was made. The ride down the Rapids was very fine, but not so exciting as many had supposed from the exaggerated reports they had heard of them. We passed under the great bridge on our way back to the city.

On landing we entered the Bonsecour Market, which is a magnificent structure. Here we saw chickens and turkeys at 10 cents a pound; best of steak for 15 cents; eggs 12 1-2 cents; and other things at low prices. Many of the stalls under the market for the sale of vegetables, berries, crockery ware, &c., were attended by women.

Early in the afternoon the Montreal Fire Brigade was called out, to show the Yankee visitors their skill. In less than a minute from the time the alarm was given, a stream of water was thrown on to a building designated by the alarm. Montreal has one of the improved "Telegraph Fire Alarms," and one pull of the lever at any box tells the firemen the exact locality their services are needed.

Many New England cities can proudly and honestly boast of a good fire department, but we think Montreal may justly boast of the best arranged fire department and means of extinguishing a fire of any city on this continent. They have plenty of water in all parts of it; their hydrants are only three hundred feet apart, so that any fire can be reached with but very little hose; then their firemen, only thirty-six in number (for a city of 160,000 inhabitants) are regularly enlisted and drilled the same as the regular military, and make this their entire duty, being stationed at the horse-houses night and day. Their fire apparatus consists of nine one-horse, four-wheel horse carriages, with two wheels at each carriage, and four men to a company. No steamers or hand engines are used, the hydrants being of sufficient force to throw the water anywhere needed. The houses are nearly all built of stone or brick, and a large fire is of a rare occurrence.

After this display we embarked in the horse-cars by invitation of the Mayor, and proceeded to his splendid residence. Here we met with a handsome reception. Having strolled through the grounds and viewed his lordly mansion, a beautiful collation awaited us, to which we did ample justice—and it was astonishing to see the party eat. After some short speeches and toasts by the Mayor, American Consul, Editor of Montreal Herald and other gentlemen, the band discoursing sweet music at intervals, we all, gentlemen and ladies, gave three rousing cheers for the Mayor, before our departure. On leaving the Mayor's grounds, His Worship stood near the entrance and cordially shook hands with each of the party as they passed along.

Arrangements had been made for a social dance at St. Lawrence Hotel in the evening, but owing to the death of Mrs. Hogan, the landlord's wife, it was changed to a social gathering, with speaking by the American Consul, several prominent men of Montreal, and from the different Press associations, and a humorous poem by George A. Marden of the Lowell Courier.

Thursday morning we started for Newport, Vermont, by the Grand Trunk Railway. For the first fifty miles the country was very level; the soil appeared rich, and the farms quite attractive. The next thirty-five or forty miles were through woods, with here and there a rough log house. Richmond was the first place of note, some forty miles from Newport.

The excursion train arrived at Newport about 4 p. m., after some seven hours travel,—the party being somewhat tired and dirty. The dust flew into the cars badly, the last part of the route. Dinner was soon ready, and all eat as if they had good appetites. On leaving the table the party found the beautiful steamer "Lady of the Lake," ready to take them on an excursion down Lake Memphremagog. After a very fine sail of 18 miles the steamer was turned about, and again we started for Newport, where we arrived a little after dark, and found a very fine display of Chinese Lanterns suspended from the hotel. On nearing the shore fire works were sent off in great profusion.

On entering the house supper was found ready and after enjoying another hearty meal, the members of the Mass. Association assembled in a private parlor, and elected the following officers for the year ensuing:—

President—George S. Merrill, Lawrence American.
Vice-Presidents—Frank B. Sanborn, Springfield Republican; Chas. W. Slack, Commonwealth; E. B. Haskell, Boston Herald; J. A. Dresser, Webster Times; and E. Anthony, New Bedford Standard.

Treasurer—John S. Baldwin, Worcester Spy.
Recording Secretary—C. B. Fisk, Palmer Journal.

Corresponding Secretary—Francis Proctor, Cape Ann Advertiser.
Auditor—Henry Chickering, Pittsfield Eagle.

VALUATION. The Assessors of this place have been busily engaged for some weeks in assessing the taxes upon the real and personal estates. They have proceeded so far as to be able to give us the following facts:—
Amount of real estate $3,876,350
" personal property 1,059,100
Total amount of property 4,935,450
State tax 9,925
County " 4,375
Number of Polls 1,847
Rate of taxation is $16 on a thousand.
Last year it was $13.60. An increase of $2.40 on a thousand, which is accounted for in part by the large additional amount to be raised, and partly by a new law which requires bank stock to be taxed in the town where the bank is located, thus reducing the amount of personal property. The real estate valuation however has been increased some seven hundred thousand over last year.

FLORAL CONCERT. The Orthodox Sunday School will hold their Concert in the Audience Room of the new Church to-morrow evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.—The exercises will consist of recitation by the children, singing, addresses, &c. Subject—Flowers; of which there will be a display.

For the Patriot.
The Trustees of the Public Library, take the opportunity to acknowledge the receipt of fifteen volumes, and two pamphlets, relating to one phase of religious belief and experience; the same being the gift of John J. Glover, Esq.

C. A. FOSTER, Sec.
The First Brigade will go into camp at Lovell's Plains, near Quincy Point, on Thursday, August, 23d.

DEDICATION.

The new Orthodox Congregational Church in this place was very appropriately dedicated on Wednesday evening last. The audience was quite large, and the exercises were listened to with marked attention. The singing was excellent. The choir was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Church street Methodist Episcopal Church, Boston, and members of the Unitarian Church, in this place.

After a voluntary on the organ, the choir sang an anthem which was followed by the invocation offered by Rev. E. P. Thwing, the former pastor of the Church. A hymn was then sang: the Scriptures read by Rev. S. Wheaton, Allen of South Braintree, and a prayer offered by Rev. C. Cushing, D. D., of Cambridge. After another hymn, the dedicatory sermon was delivered by Rev. James E. Hall, the pastor. It was founded upon a clause of the eleventh verse of the fourteenth chapter of John, and was a representation of the moral, intellectual, practical and civilizing influences of Christianity.

He commenced by saying that Christ appealed to his works as proof of his divinity. He also promised that the spiritual works after his death should be still greater, and the history of Christianity is a proof of its divine origin. As an example in demonstration of this, he cited the history of the Jews, who under that religion from which Christianity sprang, and whose commandments it did not abrogate, remained in character a purer people than any other on earth, possessing a higher morality than any other. Since the coming of Christ, Christianity had manifested its power in the regeneration of individual hearts, and in being the fountain of the highest moral life. The contact between Christian and non-Christian countries was enough to satisfy any one of the divinity of this religion. By Christian countries he meant those which have a religion founded upon the Bible, and not to Catholic nations which have a form of christianity but where the Bible is kept from the masses, who base their religion upon the Word of God. The dissemination of biblical truth produces the highest moral life in individuals and nations. France had no biblical religion, and the result has been seen. A nation like France fails because the moral life of her people is lost.

The influence of Christianity is also seen in individuals, and while not intended primarily to act upon anything but his spiritual nature, yet it will be, and is true, that the great influences upon that will strengthen and develop and change the whole mind and nature of a man. Webster acknowledged his obligation to the Bible, a reading of which elevates any man, and the speaker thought Shakespeare must have been a careful student of the Bible to have pictured as he did, sin and its consequences.

He then referred to the influence of biblical Christianity upon the literature of the world, and upon the laws of the land, both of which were greatly indebted to it for all in them that was valuable. After pursuing this line of argument at some length in support of his first proposition, and to show the greatness of the works of Christ in the world since his death, he passed to a history of the church in Quincy, (a sketch of which will be given in our next issue.)

At the close of the sermon an anthem was sung; after which Rev. J. H. Means, of Dorchester offered the Prayer of Dedication. After another hymn the exercises were closed with the benediction.

EXAMINATION. Applicants for admission to the High School will be examined on Monday morning next, as will be seen by a notice in another column.

PUBLIC TOWNS LIBRARY. The sum of Forty Dollars has been collected for the Library Fund from residents of the East District. The following persons contributed, viz:—

Samuel Crane, Maria P. Crane, Frank F. Crane, Friend Crane, Ralph G. Crane, Henry S. Crane, N. B. Holmes, William Emerson, H. Gilkey, Benjamin Hick, Hiram Prior, Joseph Veader, K. W. Freeman, Byron Rich, James Bradford, Samuel Belcher, Henry Littlefield, Nancy W. Littlefield, Mrs. James Mears, Miss Hattie L. Mears, Miss O. S. Fogg, J. H. Wheelie, Mrs. J. H. Wheelie, E. R. Wheelie, Addie M. Wheelie, Ella A. Wheelie, Jane C. Swift, Charles C. Hodgkinson, Mrs. H. B. Hoff, Miss P. C. Sheldon, Eugene Freeman, a Friend.

PEACHES. The Wilmington (Del.) Commercial says of the peach trade that "the shipments are unprecedentedly large, positively immense for so early in the season. The fruit is not yet, however, really first-class, little, if any, of it being entirely ripe. Considering the immense quantities of it likely to be on hand this season, however, there is no room to wonder that the growers get all they can to market as soon as possible."

GRADUATION. The Annual Exhibition of the High School was held Thursday evening, at Revere Hall. The limited capacity of the Hall allowed but a small number of spectators, and the cramped space accorded the scholars prevented in some measure the scholars from doing themselves full justice. Under the circumstances the Exhibition must be pronounced a success, and reflected much honor alike on the school and teachers. The diplomas were awarded by H. Farnam Smith, Esq., whose appropriate remarks and advice to the class were listened to with much attention. The names of the graduating class are as follows:—Mary Ellen Ryan, Abby Otis Spear, Jennie Reede Hollister, Mary Veronica Dorrity, Mary Ann Kaples, Francis Almarine Spear and Henry Everett Hardwick.

SALES. Real estate in the west part of this town is in good demand, and prices paid appear to be as high, and in some instances higher, than that asked in other parts of the town.
House and about quarter of an acre of land, belonging to the estate of James Mullen has recently been sold for $1950, to Bernard Maloney of Boston.
Also, about ten thousand feet of land to Columbus Lary, for $625.

We learn that Mr. Lary has also purchased of Mr. Chapin Thayer, four cottages lots, near Mears', at Houghs Neck, and intends erecting sea-shore residences.

STRANGE FEARS OF A HORSE. The Boston News says, "On Saturday last a man named Patrick Barry, of West Quincy, purchased a horse at Howe's auction room on Federal street, for which he paid in cash about $80. Before he took his property away he was cautioned not to pit it single harness on him, for if he did he would be in danger of his life. The purchaser did put a harness on the animal and led him as far as the Boston Harford and Erie Depot, when the horse jumped and put his fore feet on to his leader, knocking him to the ground, and then ran away in the direction of Summer street. Here the affrighted animal ran into the open door of a small low wooden building, No. 150, occupied by Mr. Chas. J. Bacon, who with his family were at dinner at the time. Their consternation can be imagined, to be thus so suddenly surprised by the horse. They soon clambered out of the back windows. The horse jumped on to a bed, which was in the dining room, and soon kicked it to pieces, scattering the feathers in every direction. Officer Upham of Station 2, soon made his appearance, and secured the horse, but before he could get him out of the house he kicked over a cooking stove with his hind feet, which was completely demolished. The horse also damaged the door and was the cause of other minor injuries. It is a wonder that some of the inmates were not killed.

Summary Intelligence.
The northernmost town on the globe is supposed to be Valde, a small village in the north-eastern extremity of Norway. The electric telegraph has just been extended to that point.
A bank note—an old dilapidated one, is going the rounds with a piece of yellow paper pasted on the back of it, on which is written, "Go it Bill; I'll back you!"
Over two million dollars' worth of pianos are manufactured in Boston every year.
The intermarriage of two families in Maine is remarkable. One consisting of four sons and one daughter has married all of a neighbor's children, four daughters and a son!

Iron telegraph poles have been introduced in Switzerland, and are found to be a great improvement on wood, both in appearance and durability.

There are 6,000 manufacturing establishments in Philadelphia, employing 120,000 persons.

Many young ladies drive on the Brighton road in small basket wagons, with a tulle tiger on the back, and a large umbrella fastened to the seat of the carriage.

Forty thousand dollars' worth of Portland brown stone is used by Pullman, of palace car renown, in building his residence in Chicago.

"Through tickets to go round the world" are for sale in London for $1,250.

This country produces annually 300,000,000 pounds of cheese and 375,000,000 pounds of butter.

It is estimated that about six miles of railroad per day will be built in New England for the next two months.

France now boasts the largest public debt in the world, amounting to 22,000,000,000 francs.

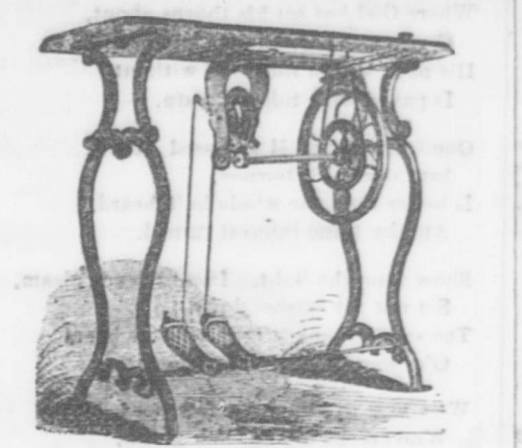

Renne's Pain-Killing Magic Oil is sold by most of our Druggists and Merchants, and has become a standard article in market. This position it has won by its great merit. It cures pain, and the people like it and will have it. One man says his wife would not be without it if the bottles cost one dollar.

PICNICS. The Unitarian Society hold their annual picnic on Thursday next, at Abington, as will be seen by an advertisement in to-day's issue.
The Universalist Sabbath School have their picnic at Reed's at Squantum, on Tuesday next.

The dry weather of late has had bad effect on the growing crops. The tops of many potatoes, not more than half grown, are beginning to turn yellow, and the prospect is that the crop will be quite light in this vicinity.

A NEW PHYSICIAN. It will be seen by a card in our columns to-day that J. A. Gordon, M. D., has taken an office on Temple street, where he will be pleased to receive patients; or he will call at their residences, either by day or night, when his services are required. He comes with good references, and no doubt will be greatly disappointed if he finds no ailing ones to require his services.

THE HALL TREADLE!

For Sewing Machines
AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age,—using one or both feet for operation. With this Treadle the machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking pieces or thread, consequent upon the reversal of the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as used in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use,—plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at

KEATING & SPEAR'S
Furniture Rooms, who are the agents for Quincy. K. & S. will apply this Treadle to machines at short notice, and warrant its satisfactory. They also Repair Sewing Machines, and furnish Oil, Needles, and findings for various Machines. Quincy, July 22.

Commissioner's Notice.
To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners, for the County of Norfolk:
THE undersigned, inhabitants of the town of Quincy, in said County, respectfully petition your Honorable Board, and say, that the Selectmen of Quincy, having been duly requested so to do, in writing, by more than one person, an inhabitant of said Quincy, have within one year from this date unreasonably refused to lay out a town way from a point in the town near the house of Mitchell Gooding, in said Quincy, (a point on Mount Pleasant, so called, joining the old county road, near the house of Lawrence Russell).

Wherefore the undersigned, feeling aggrieved by such refusal as aforesaid, respectfully pray your Honorable Board to cause such way to be laid out, or to authorize such an appropriation of money as will improve the road as it now runs, and to take all and every such further action in the premises as the public convenience and way require, and the law provides.

UNDER THE DAISIES.

[Suggested by an etching with that title, by True Williams, in the Chicago Art Review.]

BY EARL MARBLE.

"What does this mean, papa?" says Pet,
As, turning the leaves, she stops and gazes
At the pictured page, which has oft been wet
With tears. "These words here—'Under the Daisies?'"

A woman so sad-faced, tearful-eyed;
A little mound of earth so lowly,
With daisies covered from side to side;
And all around a calm so holy.

What does it mean, my pet? Ah me!
To some, a poem; to others, a story;
A poet's rendering—don't you see?
Of the Latin harsh—'Memento mori.'"

Look again, my pet—the marble slabs
Are hidden quiet by the daisies growing:
Those are surely the a-b-a-b-s,
That the veriest child must need be knowing.

Six feet or more the stones between,
"Under the Daisies" tells a story:
Half that number—ah me! I ween,
A poem, a tiny rosebud, amore

"Under the Daisies" means, my pet,
A body has settled below earth's quarrels;
And a soul has escaped earth's spider's net,
And gone above for his shining laurels.

"Under the Daisies" is a little mound!
For you will the poem had to learn never,
Until little heart-strings twining around
Your own have unloosed themselves forever;

Until, with your own hand, immortal
Over aasket you have scattered,
And felt that every stroke of the bells
Your heart to its inmost depths had shattered.

—Folio for July.

Interesting Selections.

"I think," said Mr. A. Bronson Alcott once in conversation, that when a man lives on beef he becomes something like an ox; if he eats mutton, he begins to look sheepish; and if he eats pork, may he not grow swinish?" "That may be," said Dr. Walker, of Cambridge, "but when a man lives on nothing but vegetables, I think he's apt to be pretty small potatoes."

A proprietor of a cotton mill who is something of a philosopher, posted on the factory gate the following notice:—"No cigars or good-looking men admitted." When asked for an explanation, he said, "The one will set a flame going among my cottons, and the other among the girls. I won't admit such inflammable things into my establishment at any risk."

No homely male candidates have any show in Wyoming, where the women vote.

A Physician said of a quack that "he was such an ignoramus that, if he could take a lantern and go down inside his patient, he couldn't find out what the matter was."

An old lady was very much troubled by the prospect of the introduction of gas in her village, asked with much earnestness: "What is to become of poor whales?"

A bridge at Denver, Colorado, sports this notice: "No vehicle drawn by more than one animal is allowed to cross this bridge in opposite directions at the same time."

A clever repartee is attributed to the member from Mormonism in the last Congress. A brother member asked him how many wives he had. "Enough to keep me from running after other people's," he promptly replied.

Never be worried by trifles. If a spider breaks his thread twenty times, twenty times will he mend it again.—Make up your mind to do a good thing, and you will do it.

A young man wrote to a paper, asking whether it would be advisable for him to marry a "young and tender angel, who had never done her own washing and dressmaking." In reply, the editor advised him to do so by all means, and mentioned a similar case in his own experience, where the bride had never done her own washing, but after marriage she became so fond of the washtub as not only to work for her own family, but, for several families among her acquaintance.

A little dissolved alum is very effective in cleaning muddy water. If thrown into a tub of soap-suds, the soap, curdled and accompanied by the muddy particles, sinks to the bottom and leaves the water clear and pure. In times of scarcity of water, this may be used a second time for washing clothes.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said a blundering counsel, in a suit about a lot of hogs, "there were just thirty-six hogs in that drove. Please to remember that fact—thirty-six hogs; just three times as many as in that jury-box, gentlemen."

The counsel didn't gain his case.

KITTY'S STRATAGEM.

"Kitty Wells, have you taken leave of your senses? Why can't you be reasonable and be guided by them that know better than you what's good for you?"

"Why mother, what would you have me do? You can't expect me to marry that old man, and live with him and that cross, contrary old Hetty? And what would poor Joe say if he should come home again, as you know he may, mother?"

"If Joe Malin is in the land of the livin' he is some other woman's husband; and you will never see him again. But I don't believe he is livin'; if he was we should have heard something of him before this. And as for that old man, you call John Thorne, what do you call an old man? Why he ain't a day over forty; don't I know his age? I ought to, for many's the sleigh-ride he took me—and many a nice walk we used to have to church and singin'-school before I knew your father."

"Then it seems to me that if you are old enough to be my mother, he is too old for my husband," retorted Kitty, desperately.

"Nonsense! Better be an 'old man's darling than a young man's slave.' I don't want you to live the life I've led, workin' and toilin' to help a young man make his fortune; marry a fortune ready-made, and you can enjoy it before you get too old. Why John Thorne must be the richest man in the township; he kin keep you a lady, and you will live nothin' to do but to look after things a little."

"His sister Hetty will do that, and a wife would not be allowed to have much to do in the management of her own house."

"So much the better for you then; you would hev nothin' at all to do but ride about and enjoy yourself."

And busy, scheming Mrs. Wells betook herself to her bread-baking; while Kitty put on her sun-bonnet, and taking up a small basket went into the garden to gather currants for pies.

Kitty was the only child of a farmer in one of the southern counties of Pennsylvania—a farmer who had never "got along," with whom everything went wrong.

Poor Mrs. Wells had been obliged to work harder than the Maryland slaves across the border, and what wonder if she came to regard money as the one great good of this life, and a "managing" man as the crowning glory of woman.

What if the "managing" man did have a few gray hairs sprinkled among his black ones, or a few wrinkles on his manly brow? All the better, for gray hairs indicate wisdom; and wrinkles, care and forethought. And when John Thorne began to ask Kitty to accompany him to camp-meetings and singing-schools, and drove up, radiant in blue coat and brass buttons, in a buggy new and shining behind a spanking pair of bays, Kitty's fate was sealed, and she was mentally set down for John's wife.

She resisted all the more bravely, that she believed her lover, Joe Malin, would yet return from the wars and claim her. He had enlisted in a regiment ordered to the far South during the war; and though all the other members had been accounted for as killed, wounded, or returned, no account had ever been obtained of poor Joe. Kitty had been hoping against hope, and her mother had long believed that he either filled an unknown grave, or had married in the South and settled there. This was her biggest gun against Kitty's determination to wait for him—and she always noted with secret satisfaction, that Kitty had no answer for it.

At last Kitty must decide. John Thorne, little doubting the answer he should receive, as he believed so sensible a mother as Kitty's could have none but a sensible daughter, put the question, one day, sitting in his shining buggy, on a camp ground, a few miles from her home.

"You know Kitty," said he, "you won't hev nothin' to do but to set and sew, and ride about, as Hetty will 'tend to the kitchen work. She says she don't want no young girls about her, and that she'd rather you'd just keep out of the kitchen and bakery, for she knows what young girls is, and she'd rather have their room than her company."

"But, Mr. Thorne," faltered Kitty,

he left his son in charge of the horses and carried his tin pail over to the water. It proved to be a hot spring, and the old Dutchman cried out in terror to his son, with a loud voice: "Hans! trive on! trive on to team, for God's sake! Hell is not von miles from dis place!"

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

We have in previous numbers given our readers an account of the pleasant trip enjoyed by us, in company with brother editors and publishers, to St. Albans, Montreal and Newport. The welcome and hearty manner we were received at these places. Now we propose to give a sketch of the remainder of the excursion, including St. Johnsbury and the White Mountains.

On Friday morning, July 14th, before leaving Mousmag House, the party gave three rousing cheers for the host, and then started for the depot, but had proceeded but a few steps before we came to a "halt." Anxious to see what was the matter, we peeped over a friend's shoulder, and saw a small sized cannon, mounted on three tall wooden legs, aimed at the crowd, backed by a diminutive man, with his head covered by a cloth, which appeared to surprise the party, and they huddled together like a flock of frightened sheep. After submitting to be shot at twice by an importunate photographer, the editorial party moved for the cars.

Having received a very urgent invitation from the Fairbanks Scales Company, a large part of the excursionists stopped at St. Johnsbury, and visited their extensive establishment. They were there met by Col. Fairbanks and escorted through this extensive and famous establishment which manufactures scales for all parts of the world. The works cover the space of ten acres, and about 600 men are employed. We were shown all the processes from the foundry to the sealing and packing for shipping. After passing through the shops, carriages were ready to take the party to the hotels, where excellent dinners had been gratuitously provided for them. After a hearty meal we were again summoned to the scales for the day.

Soon we were swiftly flying along at railroad speed for Wells River Junction. At Wells River one hundred or more took the train for the Mountains, stopping at different points and taking stages for the Profile House, the Crawford House, the Twin Mountain House, &c. Before reaching their destination for the night a heavy shower suddenly came up, and those perched upon the top of stages had their joys suddenly turned to weeping. One party stopped at the Twin Mountain House for supper, and very wisely concluded to remain until morning, having journeyed about ten miles from the railroad station. This house was found to be one of the very best in all the mountain region. The table was furnished with almost every luxury and the waiters very attentive. The rooms are large and airy, and the beds are not beaten anywhere. For comfort and everything that goes to make up a good hotel, it will be hard to find a better one than the Twin Mountain House.

Saturday morning, bright and early, stages were taken for the mountain railway, ten miles distant. Here was found one of the wonders of the age, a Railway to the top of Mount Washington. A brief description of which may not be entirely uninteresting to some of our readers. It has two tracks like any railway, and in the centre another made of the best of steel, and having spaces in which the cogs on the centre wheel go, and pull the car up. A "dog" lies loose on a ratchet wheel and falls into the teeth as each comes round, so that wherever the car stops the dog holds it. The only chance for accident is the breaking of thirty-six cogs, or the failure of the teeth in the centre rail, or the bursting of the boiler and the general demolition of the cars. The road is actually safer than any other in existence. And since the cars commenced running on it some four years ago, not an accident has happened.

The distance up the mountain is about three miles, and the time occupied in the ascent varies from one hour and thirty to forty minutes. The descent is made a little quicker. Some of the workmen have slid down the whole distance in ten minutes, by the use of a small sled, made to fit on the centre rail, and controlled perfectly, as to speed, by brakes. In going up, the engine is behind the car, pushing instead of drawing it. It moves quite slow, not so fast as a man usually walks, as the reader will notice by the time given above. The engine is small, but said to be mighty, and reckoned at two hundred horse power. So great is the exhaustion of steam that the engine is obliged to stop three times in going up the mountain to take in water,—and that it uses about forty-eight barrels to each trip. The grade varies,—the greatest rise is 13 1-2 inches to a yard,—and the first time one passes up, it looks frightful, although everything appears perfectly safe.

The cost of the road is said to be $125,000; and there are yet some additional expenses, which will probably bring the whole thing up to about $150,000. It has not so far been a paying investment; the season is so short, that but for a few months it is of any use.

A regular old-fashioned New England dinner was served in the Tip-Top House, kept by Mr. Hitchcock, of Gorham, and the remaining time was spent in gazing upon the splendid panorama drawn out before us at every point: as far as the eye could reach. It was a glorious day, and old ocean could plainly be seen without the aid of a glass, and before the eye came up the thousand peaks of the New-Hampshire, Maine, and Vermont mountains; lakes Winnepesaukee, Umbagog, Sebago, Ossipee, and numberless other sheets of water that go to make the view perfectly lovely, beside the valleys of the Connecticut, Israel, Saco, and Androscoggin rivers dotted with numerous villages. But few days in any season are so favorable as this one was for viewing this wonderful landscape, and we could hardly consent to leave its enchantment. We returned by the same route to the Twin Mountain House, arriving about dark, somewhat tired, but after a delightful day's journey.

The next morning we had a pleasant ride to the Profile House,—some eighteen miles. Here we had the pleasure of visiting the Flume, Pool, Basin, Echo Lake, Trout Ponds, &c. In returning from the Basin through the woods, some two miles south of the Profile House, we saw a sight seldom witnessed by tourists in this vicinity. A huge black bear, weighing about three hundred pounds, crossed the road only a few rods in front of our carriage. Bruin somewhat frightened our party at first, but we soon mustered courage, and followed him a short distance into the woods, but as none of the party had firearms, we thought it more prudent to return to the hotel, where we related our story, but the guests seemed rather inclined to doubt the fact, as a similar sight had not been seen there for years.

Nothing attracted our attention more, while in this delightful scenery, than the profile of the "Old Man of the Mountains." Our guide, Edward W. Capron, informed us that a party measured it, only a few days before we were there, by means of a long pole let down from the mountain, with a white handkerchief tied to the lower end. The measurement surprised us, as probably it would any one, who had ever seen it. It looks from the roadside but eight or ten feet, but was found on measurement to be one hundred and twenty-seven feet, from chin to forehead. The next morning at 7 o'clock we took the stage for Littleton, and on arriving we jumped aboard the cars and started for home, where we arrived about eight the same evening, after one of the most delightful journeys we ever experienced in the short space of eight days.

During the trip votes of thanks were passed to the numerous railroad corporations, to proprietors of hotels and stage lines for favors granted and courtesies received, which was done in each case with a hearty good will. Throughout the entire journey every one tried to do their best to entertain and please the excursionists—from the waiters in the hotels, the rough mountain stage drivers, to the polite conductors of the various railroads, seemed to vie with each other to do the handsome thing by the editors, with one exception, which we are sorry to say was on the O. C. & Newport. There a conductor was found by some of the party who returned on Monday, and others on Tuesday, who showed the opposite disposition. We are sorry to print it, but justice to the traveling public, we believe demands it. For, if we are rightly informed, it is not the first instance of the kind. His rough, overbearing manner, together with his ungovernable remarks, unfits him for the position.

Picnics. The Universalists had quite a large picnic at Mr. Reed's, at the old Squantum House, on Tuesday last. The enjoyment of the party was a little marred by the easterly storm, but in other respects they had a very pleasant time. Mr. Reed has his grounds well arranged for the comfort of parties. If any of our readers wish to spend a day pleasantly by the seashore they will find this a most delightful spot.

The Unitarians went to Abington on Thursday. The party was quite large and a grand good time was had. Scolded equalled on former occasions.

AUCTION. Joseph W. Lombard will sell a splendid schooner rigged Yacht, this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the head of Quincy Canal.

THE NEW ORTHODOX CHURCH. HISTORY OF THE SOCIETY.

The first record of a church in Quincy has a date as remote as 1639. But little of interest is known of it, however, until about the beginning of the present century, when the Unitarian element manifested itself very strongly, and at length caused a division upon the question of the Trinity. When this division took place, the Unitarian element being in the majority, took possession, or remained in possession, of the property of the society. For many years after this there was no Orthodox church in Quincy. In 1832, however, sixteen men met and formed the present society. Of the originators of this enterprise not one remains in Quincy, though some are still living in other places. Shortly after the formation of the society a church was also formed, consisting of twenty-one members, sixteen of whom were women and only five men. Of these members three are still living in Quincy.

The first pastor of this church was a Rev. Mr. Field, of whom there is no record save his name, and the fact that of his pastorate. He was followed in the pastoral office by Rev. S. S. Smith now of Chicago, and he in turn by Rev. Wm. M. Cornell, now a practicing physician in this city, and editor of "Pastor and People." Rev. Wm. Allen, now of Lowell, Rev. Nelson Clark now of Somerset, Mass., Rev. (now Prof.) J. H. Thayer, of Andover Theological Seminary, Rev. Oliver Brown, now of Breckenridge, Mo., Rev. E. P. Thwing, now of Portland, and the present pastor, Rev. J. E. Hall, who was installed in 1868.

For two years the church worshipped in a hall near the new church, but in 1834 they built the church recently vacated, upon Hancock street. In 1844 the congregation had increased so as to make an enlargement necessary, and it was accordingly made, and in 1852 the building was remodeled as it now stands.

The constant gain of the church and society had made a new church the subject of discussion for several years prior to the installation of the present pastor, and soon after that event a vote was passed to build, and steps were taken to carry out their purpose. Time was necessarily taken for the selection of a suitable location, and the peculiar division of the town into small villages, almost distinct from each other, rendered this a difficult task. At length the present site was agreed upon almost unanimously. A more eligible one could hardly have been chosen, situated as it is at the junction of Sea and Hancock streets, the church standing in a commanding position. The lot was purchased at an expense of $7,500.

THE BUILDING. The main building, which has been built from plans furnished by Mr. S. J. F. Thayer, 89 Court Street, is 51 x 90 feet, the audience room being 48 x 76, the balance being occupied by a vestibule at the front end, containing a staircase to a gallery over the vestibule, and connecting with the tower which stands in the northern corner and forms a covered driveway or Porte cochere.

The chapel and other social rooms are in the rear and across the end, which is 39 x 66 feet, with two entrances, which also connect with the audience room. The chapel with the adjoining room will seat about three hundred persons. There are 100 pews in the audience room each seating six adult persons. The organ and choir is located in the gallery over the vestibule and the pulpit is at the opposite end adjoining the chapel. All the pews and other wood-work in the lower portion of the rooms are of black-walnut and ash, and the timber-work of the roofs, which inside are open and exposed to the ridge, is of pine, painted in parti-colors to harmonize with the decorative painting. The windows are of stained and enamelled glass. All the conveniences required throughout, as library room, kitchen, etc., are provided for. The pastor's study is up stairs in the small tower, and is finely adapted to its purpose.

The architectural character of the building is an adaptation of Gothic, and being constructed of wood, the effort has been not to disguise its material by imitating the forms common to stone construction. The roof and spire are banded with purple and green slate. The small tower at the chapel entrance is 50 feet high, and that upon the main building is 123 feet high. In this tower has been placed a bell weighing 1800 lbs., pitched in the key of F, and of a very fine tone. It was from the factory of Messrs. William Blake & Co., bell founders, of Boston.

Going inside the church we find it neatly painted in colors which please the eye by their quietness. The pews are cushioned in crimson damask, and the floor is covered with a Lowell three-ply carpet from the establishment of Learnard & Hartley, 134 Union street. The cushions were furnished by Messrs. Haley, Morse & Co., 411 Washington St. The chairs upon the platform are from Blake & Alden, and are very handsome. The organ, which is the one used in the old church, has been refitted and painted to correspond with the rest of the church, and occupies its place in the gallery. The audience room is lighted with gas, from small circular pendants, and by brackets at the ends of the room. Everything about it is in excellent taste.

The house has been furnished entirely by the ladies, at a cost of about $2,500. Much of which was obtained at a levee held nearly three years since. The chapel was furnished by the contributions of the Sabbath School.

The cost of the building and land has been about $36,000, all but $5,000 of which has been paid, and the payment of the balance has been pledged. Some of the money has been contributed by liberal friends in Boston, and of the balance, which has been raised in Quincy, less than $200 has been given by persons outside of the Society.

The church has good reason to feel proud of its success in this enterprise, and in looking back upon the history of the past thirty-eight years, has abundant cause for congratulation and gratitude for its progress. It has in that time come to see evangelical religion in Quincy out of obloquy and disgrace, and assume one of equality with other sects. It has won the respect of its opponents, and has made itself a power which will never cease to be felt for good.

The congregation for some months has been constantly increasing, and there is every reason to hope and believe that with the dedication of this new edifice, it has entered upon a career of renewed and extended usefulness.

NARROW ESCAPE. As Mr. Timothy Gould, an expressman from Hingham, was returning through this place from Boston, on Tuesday afternoon last, he met with a narrow escape while passing over Black's Brook, in front of Mr. Peter Butler's. The driver it is said, was in a stupid condition, and the team passed so near the edge of the wall that one of the horses was shoved off, and there hung by the harness, some fifteen feet from the ground. Mr. Gould was thrown under the other horse, and there received some severe bruises. He was soon discovered by passers-by and removed from his perilous position, and brought to the Hancock House, where his wounds were dressed, and he was carried home by W. M. French, Esq. The horse that was hanging, was cut loose and fell to terra firma, without any serious injury.

A CANDY "SELL." Some of the manufacturers of candy in Roxbury have been doing a "big thing," in this place, for quite a number of evenings, in selling candy at five cents a stick, from a wagon located near the Stone Temple. They do up prizes of five, ten, twenty-five and fifty cents, and occasionally a silver dollar. And the way the candy "sells" is marvellous. On Saturday evening last over $130 were taken at this carriage. All the little boys hanging about, (who should have been in bed) were liberally treated by the buyers, who appeared more anxious to get a silver dollar than they did the candy. A handsome silver dollar, a rare thing to most of us, looked more attractive to the buyer, than three or four dollars in currency, which in many cases it cost to get one.

LIQUOR SEIZURES. State Constable Eldridge visited the Hancock House, in this place, on Tuesday afternoon last, and seized quite a good variety of liquors, as will be seen by a notice in another column. This is the first time this house has been meddled with since it has been kept by its present proprietor. Constable Eldridge also made a small haul the same afternoon, at the saloon, corner of Hancock and Granite streets.

FLORAL CONCERT. The Floral Concert at the new Congregational church last Sabbath evening was a very pleasant affair; and the interest exhibited, by the large audience in attendance, must have repaid the Superintendent for all the time and labor which it evidently cost. The floral display was choice and tasteful; and the general surprise of the audience on turning from the choir to find the homely green paper cross transformed, as if by magic, into a cruciform flower-bank, contributed no little zest to the occasion. The recitations of the children were quite distinct but altogether too low to be heard in the back part of the house. Speak up a little louder next time children.

POST OFFICE. See notice in another column of change in time.

APPOINTED. D. Howard Bills, Esq. of Quincy Point, has been commissioned and qualified as a Justice of the Peace.

HINGHAM AND QUINCY BRIDGES.—The Selectmen of Quincy have received the present week a decree from the Commissioners appointed under the provisions of "An Act to amend chapter 127 of the Acts of 1862, concerning the Hingham and Quincy turnpike and bridges."

The decree asserts that the towns of Weymouth, Quincy and Hingham are the only towns "specially and directly benefited," and that the said three towns, shall defray the expenses for the maintenance and repair of said bridges, together with the reasonable expenses, costs and charges of this commission, and all other expenses properly incurred under said Acts, in the following proportions:—Weymouth,—one-half, Quincy,—five twenty-fourths.

And that the Chairmen of the Selectmen of Weymouth, Hingham and Quincy shall have the care and superintendence of said bridges.

SALE. We learn that Mr. John H. Venzie, has purchased of Mr. Rufus Foster, for about $1000, one of the fine building lots recently thrown into the market by the new street, cut from Washington to Sea street. These lots being near the Depot, Post Office, &c., and on high land, will certainly command the attention of buyers,—and are among the best now offered for sale in the centre of the town.

ATTRACTIVE. The new store recently opened in the Square by our former townsman, J. A. McLellan, is attracting considerable attention. The ladies cannot go by the handsome show windows, without noticing the fine display of goods which meet their gaze. He has a rich assortment of dry and fancy goods, patent medicine, &c., and by a very liberal weekly distribution of circulars is drawing quite a large trade.

INDIAN RELICS. Some laborers employed in digging a trench for the Cookhouse water pipes on Chickawabut street, Neponset, on Saturday last, excavated the skeleton of an Indian. It was found about six feet from the surface, and was in an excellent state of preservation. The long hair on the skull was perfect, and the teeth were sound.

FIREMEN'S MUSTER. The firemen of New England propose having a muster to take place in Portsmouth, N. H., in September next. The municipal government of that city has appointed a committee to act in conjunction with the committee of the fire department on the New England firemen's muster, and the general committee has decided to offer prizes to hand engines as well as steamers. The ladies of the city are to form a committee to furnish refreshments for all visiting firemen, who will be provided with tents for quarters during their two days' stay.

Summary Intelligence.

New hay is selling quick at thirty dollars a ton in Maine.

A four ounce dog was sold for $250 in Boston recently.

Poetry.

For the Patriot.

DOUGEREL.

Since by vote of the Town, it is duly decreed,
That the Tax upon Dogs and our Library's shelves,
We may look with respect on the animal race,
Who, as annual donors, give a text for our elves.

Not by force, but by free willing hands may we send
Our mite to increase the rich garner of lore,
Not once, but whenever dogs cross o'er our pathway,
Let us think there's a chance yet to "do so
some more."

No nine days of wonder, but in mind ever fresh
Let us cherish a care for our Library here,
With devotion as strong, as e'en that of the dog,
That increases as time adds year unto year.

Let us hope it may never know the disgrace,
Of being "embarrassed" by dogmatic cred,
Or the books on its shelves ever "go to the dogs," Though so free in their use, that "who runneth
may read."

North Quincy, July 18th, 1871.

Farmers' Department.

CARE OF HORSES' LEGS.

Few men who handle horses give proper attention to the feet and legs. Especially is this the case on the farms. Much time is spent of a morning rubbing, brushing and smoothing the hair on the sides and hips, but at no time are the feet examined and properly cared for. Now, be it known that in this six-thousand-year-old world of ours, the feet of a horse need more care than the body. They need ten times as much—for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything, if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered, and the legs will get badly out of fix, and with bad feet and bad legs there is not else of the horse fit for anything. Stable prisons generally, are terribly severe on the feet and legs of horses, and unless these buildings can afford a dry room, where a horse can walk around, lie down or roll over, they are not half so healthy and comfortable to the horse as the pasture, and should be avoided by all good hostlers in the country.—Rural World.

CURIOUS DISCOVERY.

Some years ago a curious discovery was made by a gentleman of West Roxbury, Mass., and from it a fanciful idea has been developed upon the apples and pears in his orchard. Having observed that an apple did not rot in that part of the fruit where a leaf happened to lie upon it, he cut out letters from newspapers, and when the apples were yet green, he pasted the letters upon them with gum-tragacanth. The apples would rot in all parts not covered by the pasted letters. When the fruit had reddened to perfection the letters were removed, and they would appear perfectly outlined in green. So, again, when he pasted on the apples a paper in which the letters were cut out, the parts covered by the paper would be green, and the letters would appear, distinctly turned in red, the green ground surrounding them. The experiment is a very pretty one; an orchard in Roxbury exhibited last fall many familiar names and inscriptions, all produced in the skin of the fruit, without abrasion, or any foreign impression.

SAVING FLOWER SEEDS.

The American Agriculturist says:—If one waits until his Phlox, Pansy, Balsam and some other seeds are ripe, he will gather none. These plants and others have a way of bursting their capsules as soon as ripe, and throwing the seeds as far as possible. The only way to manage these is to take them as soon as the seed vessel is fully formed and shows signs of maturity, and put them where they can scatter without loss. We have used wire sieves to cover seed pods, and found them to work admirably. It is necessary for one who would save seeds, whether for his own use or for sale, to study the habit of each plant, see what its natural mode of distributing its seed is, and anticipate it.

Anecdotes.

ASLEEP IN HIS WATCH. "Papa," said a little boy to his father the other day, "are not sailors very small men?" "No, my dear," answered the father; "what leads you to suppose that they are so small?" "Because," replied the young idea, "I read the other day of a sailor going to sleep in his watch."

"Sir," said a lad, addressing a well known merchant, "Sir, have you any berth for me on your ship? I want to earn something."

"What can you do?" asked the gentleman.

"Whatever I am put to, sir."

"What have you done?"

"I have saved and split mother's wood for nine years."

"That's enough," said the gentleman.

"You may ship aboard this vessel, and I hope to see you master of her some day."

The Best in the World.

COLTON'S PATENT

REFRIGERATOR

Is emphatically the King of

REFRIGERATORS.

It is economical in the use of ice. Always perfectly dry. No taint. No mingling of food.

Has received a Silver Medal, and in all cases the highest premium at the State Fairs.

The water, as it runs from the ice, is retained in an iron tank around the food chamber, thus aiding in the work of refrigeration. It is drawn off through a faucet at pleasure, thus preventing any liability of having water dripping on to the floor.

As a perfect

Poetry.

A PLEA—FOR FUN.

I never regret,
The fun that I get,
In plodding this wearisome world,
For missives of mirth,
Brings blessings to earth,
When kindly the weapons are hurled.

I never regret,
The fun that I get,
To lighten the burdens of life;
'Mid jostle and jar,
'Tis better by far,
To start up a laugh than a strife.

The fun that I mean,
Is sport without speech,
Or aught that brings shadow of pain;
The clear ringing laugh,
Like grain without chaff,
That echoes back gladness again.

Don't come to my side
When pain has me tried,
With a dull and sorrowful face;
A word of good cheer,
Perchance rather queer,
May turn away sadness apace.

The good God above,
Whose spirit is love,
Of joy the first Anthem and Cause,
Sure will not look down
With forbidding frown,
On the lovers of Harmony's laws.

Then never regret
The fun that you get,
If it comes by a harmless plan;
Rather lighten than load
The pack on life's road,
By saying a word when you can.

JOHN J. GLOVER,
North Quincy, July 21st, 1871.

Interesting Selections.

ROLLED JELLY CAKE. One cup of sugar; one tablespoonful of butter; one and a half cups of flour; two-thirds of a cup of milk; one egg; two measures of Professor Horsford's baking powder, or one teaspoonful of cream tartar; half of a teaspoonful of saleratus. Bake in a shipping pan, and when done, spread over with a thin coat of jelly. Cut the sheet into strips three or four inches wide, roll up. Mock cream can be used instead of jelly, made thus: Beat together
one egg, one teaspoonful of corn starch,
one teaspoonful of wheat flour, and two of sugar. Boil half a pint of milk, and stir in the mixture rapidly, not letting the egg curdle. Boil ten or fifteen minutes, remove from the fire, and add a teaspoonful of vanilla, lemon or almond.

SNOW PUDDING. Two tablespoonfuls of tapioca soaked over night in enough water to cover it, one quart of milk, let
it boil, three eggs and one cup of sugar;
beat the yolks, tapioca and sugar together
and stir into the boiling milk; let it boil till it thickens, flavor to taste; beat the whites to a stiff froth and put them in your pudding dish and pour the hot pudding over them.

"My dear," said a husband to his wife, "I am going to start a coffee plantation." "How'll you get the land?"
"Oh, there's no trouble about that; I always have a plenty of coffee grounds in my cup."

A drawing master, worrying his pupil with contemptuous remarks upon his lack of ability, ended by asking—
"Now, sir, if you were going to draw me,
what part of me would you commence first?" The boy, with a meaning look into the master's face, answered very quietly, "Your neck, sir."

A HAPPY IDEA. "Martha, my dear," said a loving husband to his spouse, who was several years his junior, "what do you say to moving to the far West?"
"Oh, I am delighted with the idea? You recollect when Mr. Morgan moved out there he was as poor as we are; and in three years he died, leaving his widow worth a hundred thousand dollars."

Some folks talk of economy very naturally. We know of an old lady who has taboos candles, and is now burning gas, because the latter is cheaper. She says she can get four feet of gas for a cent, while candles are four cents a foot.

A man lately made application for insurance on a building situated in a village where there was no fire engine. In answer to the question, "What are the facilities for extinguishing fires?" he wrote: "It rains sometimes."

An exquisitely dressed young gentleman, after buying another seal to dangle about his elegant person, said to the jeweler:—"I would-ah like to have-ah something engraved on it ah, to denote what I am." "Certainly, certainly,
I will put a cipher on it," said the tradesman.

Like most garments, like most carpets, everything in life has a right side and a wrong side. You can take any joy, and by turning it around, find troubles on the other side; or you may take the greatest trouble, and by turning
it around find joys on the other side.
The gloomiest mountain never casts a shadow on both sides at once, nor does the greatest of life's calamities.—From Crumbs Swept Up.

Miscellany.

SMITH'S NEW CLERK.

Jenkins met Smith, his senior partner,
at the depot, who had been absent on a business tour.

"How's business?" inquired the latter.
"All right; got a new clerk."
"Got a new clerk, eh? Where's Jones?"

"Discharged him. An idle, extravagant, impudent young dog!"
"True enough, and the new one won't be any better. Drinking, gambling, late hours, and fast horses—that's the way with 'em all."

And Smith groaned.
Jenkins' eyes twinkled. He well knew the peculiarities of his good-hearted,
but eccentric bachelor partner.

"Well the clerk don't drink nor gamble I'm certain of that, and has thus far been very industrious and attentive."
"Thus far? Oh, yes. Wait a month.
New brooms sweep clean."

"Oh, well, if the new clerk don't suit
you can send the new clerk adrift, that's
all. I only took her—ah!—the new clerk on trial."

Mr. Smith stared at his partner.
"I suppose the new clerk has a name?"
he remarked, dryly.

"Oh, yes. Her, that is to say, the new clerk's name is Gardner. But here we are."

As was his usual custom, Mr. Smith went through the store, past the array of clerks on either side of the counter, without glancing to right or left. But when he reached his private office at the further
end, he looked through the glass door,
which was so situated that he could see
all that was going on in the store.

As his eyes fell on the occupant of a desk near the door, he started:
"What's that?" he said turning sharply upon his partner, who had followed him.

Jenkins gazed very composedly upon
the slender form, whose graceful head
was bent intently over a ledger that lay,
open upon the desk.

"That?" Why, that's the new clerk."
Smith rubbed his eyes and looked again.

"Why, it is a woman?" he exclaimed,
with an air of incredulity and horror.
"I should say it was," said Jenkins,
coolly; "and a confoundedly pretty one
at that."

Smith gave his partner a look of virtuous indignation.
"Jenkins, this is no place for a woman!"

"Think not? Now it strikes me that she fits the place very neatly."
"The proper place for a woman is in the sanctuary at home."

This was a pet observation of Mr.
Smith's which he had read somewhere,
and which he considered as a clincher in such an argument.

"But suppose she hasn't any?"
That was a poser, and, in his efforts to surmount it, Mr. Smith got excited.

"Hasn't any? Why sir, she must—she ought to have one?"
"Very true. In fact, so confident am I on that point, that I've some thoughts of offering her mine—or, at least, to share
it with her."

"Mr. Jenkins, this is not a fit subject for jest?"
"It's a serious matter, I know; so, on the whole, perhaps, I'd better think it over a while longer. Besides, there's no knowing if she would accept the offer
together with the embezzlement that goes with it."

"Jenkins," returned Smith severely,
"will you cease trifling and attend to the business in hand? This woman must go."

"Very well, you told me you wanted
a clerk that would be faithful and industrious, that didn't spend his salary,
and all he could steal on fast horses, and faster women; and I got you one. It's an easy matter to send her off."

"Of course it is," said Smith brightening at the suggestion. "Just tell her she don't exactly suit, and that we shan't need her after to-day."

"But she does suit me; and if you're not suited, all you have got to do is to tell her so."

"You hired her."
"And for that very reason, I won't discharge her without some good cause."
"No matter," returned Smith, with an air of lofty indifference. "I can discharge
her. I think I am equal to that much."

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, AUG. 5, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

TOWN HALL. Mr. Perkins, who contracted a few weeks since to make the improvements in the Town Hall, voted by the town at the last annual meeting, is pushing the work forward very rapidly. A few more weeks and our readers may expect to see a decided change in the interior of the building. A well has been dug in the cellar the present week, and an abundance of water has been found at the depth of fourteen feet from the bottom of the cellar. All parties, concerts, levees, &c., in the Hall, will find in future all the water they require for drinking, cooking and toilet purposes, without going out of the building.

ACCIDENT. Mr. Thomas E. Fernald met with an accident on Monday evening last, while engaged in cleaning a part of his Roper gun. He had taken from the weapon three shells that contained charges, and went to his chamber, in his father's residence, to clean them. It being required in the room, but he used caution enough to see that it was placed some distance from where he was at work. He had removed most of the powder from the shells and turned the same into a small box in front of him; and was endeavoring to shove off the cap, by means of a piece of steel, about the size of a knitting needle, by placing the same inside the shell, when the cap exploded from some cause. It ignited not only the powder that remained in the shell but also that which he had turned into the box, which was on the bureau in front of him, and only a few inches below where he had the shell. The explosion threw him to the floor, stunning him for a few seconds, and burning his hands considerably; the left quite badly. Dr. Gordon was called who dressed the same, and he is fast recovering.

MUSTER. The First Brigade will go into camp at North Weymouth on Tuesday next. The grounds will be known as Camp Davis. Six special trains will run each day during the muster, between Boston and this place; making in all twenty-five each way daily. There will be any quantity of thieves, pick pockets, roughs, &c., visiting this place during the encampment. We would advise our readers to be on the guard against intruders of all kind. They have already commenced coming. Constable French sent back to Boston the present week, two chaps, who said they were bound for the muster grounds. They were stealing fruit, breaking trees, &c., along the route.

Mr. Keith, who has been employed for some time at the Quincy Station, in assisting the Depot Master in the various duties there required, relinquished his position on Tuesday last, and has commenced taking charge of Sampson's Express, a new line between Boston and this place,—the packages to be sent on the cars.

ROWDYISM. Last Sunday evening, a large party in an express and other wagons, passed through this town, on their return from the beach. It was evident by their screaming, singing and shaking bottles as they passed dwellings, that they had but little respect for the Sabbath, and we blush to say it, the females were even ruder than the men.

HORRIBLE. A fearful ferry-boat explosion took place at one of the wharves, in New York city, on Sunday last. A party of nearly four hundred men, women and children had collected on one of the Staten Island boats for an excursion, when the boiler exploded. Nearly one hundred were killed or have since died; and about one hundred more are severely wounded. In some instances whole families were killed or wounded. It is one of the most horrid accidents of the kind that has happened for many years, and has caused intense excitement in New York throughout the week.

REMOVED. At a Cabinet meeting at Washington this week, it was decided to move Gen. Pleasanton. This will probably settle the difficulty between Boutwell and Pleasanton, which has caused considerable stir of late.

A good thing has been done on Hancock street, in removing the large quantity of pebbles on the sidewalk in front of Adams' Block, and substituting a small amount of fine dirt.

VERY SUCCESSFUL.

As a proof that the young people who leave Quincy for fame and fortune are reaping success, we are pleased to note the following from "The Tripod," a paper published by the Literary Societies of the North Western University, at Evanston (near Chicago) Ill.

PRESENTATION. At the close of the public examination of the Primary Department of the North Western Female College, Miss Ellen F. Nightingale, who has been the very popular and successful Preceptor of that department for two years, was made the recipient (in a very pretty speech by Miss Lillie Purington) of an elegant writing-desk and exquisitely carved paper-folder, as a token of the esteem with which she is held by the whole school and its patrons.

Also the following: CALLED TO IOWA. We learn that Prof. Nightingale, whose popularity, as acting President of the North Western Female College for three years, has been so well deserved, has been called to fill the chair of Greek in the Simpson Centenary College, Indiana (near Des Moines) Iowa. We congratulate this institution upon its excellent choice, but regret that Prof. N. severs his connection with the educational interests of Evanston. He leaves here followed by the gratitude, esteem, and good wishes of all who have been favored with his excellent counsels, and most thorough instructions, during the past three years.

PUBLIC LIBRARY. A writer wishes to know "Why are not the subscriptions, to the Public Library in North Quincy also mentioned in the Patriot?"

We cannot inform our Correspondent what the reason is; but would say that we would be pleased to publish the list any time when furnished.

For the Patriot.

PICNIC. The Annual Picnic of the First Congregational Society, at Abington Grove, last Thursday, was a decided success. Over four hundred persons were present. Both old and young entered with zest into the spirit of the occasion. "What a good time we had!" is on everybody's lips.

We learn that the entire expenses, amounting to over $250, were paid by our liberal fellow-citizen, Henry H. Faxon, Esq. Nor was this gentleman content to give his money only; he literally gave himself; and by his personal and indefatigable exertions contributed in no small degree to the enjoyment of the day.

ONE OF THE PARTY.

AUCTION. This afternoon at 4 o'clock Joseph W. Lombard will sell a lot of carriages, harnesses, etc., in front of the Post Office. A good chance for bargains. Call and see.

CONVENTIONS. The Democratic State Convention will be held at Springfield on the 14th of September. Besides nominating a State ticket, the convention will choose delegates to attend the National Democratic Convention next summer.

The Republican State Central Committee have voted to hold the State Convention at Worcester on the 27th of September. Although there is a movement on foot to change it, if possible, to the 12th of September.

The Labor Reform State Convention will be held at Lowell about the first of September.

No time has yet been fixed for the State Convention of the Prohibitory Party. No action in the matter will be taken, until the next meeting of the Committee, August 30.

TEMPERANCE. A National Convention of the Sons of Temperance, comprising representatives from every State in the Union, and from the different parts of British North America, will assemble in Boston, on the 6th of September, and occupy five days.

ERRATUM. In the lines of poetry on our first page, fourth verse, read "Come not to my side," in place of "Don't come to my side."

The cruise of the Dorchester Yacht Club for 1871 will be to Duxbury and Plymouth. Yachts will report at Hull on the evening of Tuesday Aug. 8, so as to be ready for an early start on the morning of the 9th.

MUSIC GIVEN AWAY! We have received the August Folio, a journal said to have a larger circulation than that of all other musical papers combined, edited by Dexter Smith, the well known Song Writer. "The Folio is the largest, handsomest, best and cheapest musical journal in the world." The publishers offer to send a specimen copy, containing over one dollar's worth of new music, beautiful songs and piano pieces, to any one free! Send for it. Address White, Smith & Perry, Boston, Mass.

TAXES FOR 1871.

We commence publishing this week a list of all persons and firms paying taxes in Quincy for 1871, with the amount taxed to each, with the exception of fractions of a dollar which we have omitted; also, those paying only a poll tax. The rate is $1.60 on a hundred. A portion of the list will be published each week until completed.

LE CERCLE.

Will anybody ever forget the furor created by Croquet upon its first introduction? Young people were carried away completely, as was natural; older and staid persons, fathers and mothers, old maids and meek young curates gazed askance for a little while, but soon the gathering current of enthusiasm swept them along with the rest. It was such a healthy game—so invigorating; the exercise, without being too violent was agreeable and refreshing. That was what the grave physicians said. Young ladies liked it because it admitted of exquisite toilets, and afforded such a charming opportunity for the display of a pretty hand and wrist, or a graceful figure; nice young men liked it because, without the taint of dissipation, it had all the charms of billiards; fast young men rather fancied the facilities it afforded for a sly flirtation. Dignified fathers of families found the gentle relaxation and excitement of play beneficial to the harassed minds and wearied nerves. Take it all in all, there really was nothing to compare with it—until recently.

The excitement over Croquet has died away almost entirely. Its most enthusiastic votaries have grown lukewarm in its service. Suddenly bursts upon them a new game, possessing all the positive advantages of Croquet, and many more exclusively its own. An entrancing, luring game, which holds one fascinated against his will—if one ever could will to play it—requiring little brute strength, but a quick, accurate eye, plenty of skill and dexterity, and no little science. The successful player must need have a quick hand, a clear head, else he need not hope to win. And this game is Le Cercle. Wherein it differs from Croquet, and in what its advantages over it consists, may be briefly mentioned.

It admits of much more skill and variety in playing than Croquet, and can also be set up and played to advantage, when required, on about half the space usually allotted to Field Croquet; this fact renders the game eminently desirable to those who have but a small enclosure, or who, living in the city, have limited yardroom. The patent ball-shaped, or spherical mallet, is also a new and important feature. It secures perfect leverage, and is destined eventually to supersede the old style mallet in all games of the kind, even as the present round bat has, with all skillful ball-players, entirely taken the place of the old square sided bat. Another peculiarity of Le Cercle, as will be seen from the cut, are the swinging balls, which when struck by the players ball, vibrate like a pendulum, indicating, beyond the possibility of a mistake, which ball was hit. The wickets are of wood, neatly turned, and thus, all rustling of the clothes by iron wickets, which ladies complain of bitterly in Croquet, is done away with.

Another striking feature of Le Cercle is its simplicity of play, from which great skill can be developed by a thoughtful, calculating, and skillful player. A child can readily comprehend and play it, and the scientific player will find full scope for the most intricate play. Croquet players who use the square-faced mallet may not like the round mallet at first, but after a little practice with it, would not use the old style for any consideration. This mallet is now being introduced into Croquet sets, and will eventually become the mallet.

The implements of the play consist of six stakes, with a prettily painted cross-bar on top of each; to each end of these bars is suspended a ball nearly touching the ground. Then there are twelve wicket pins, six playing balls, six mallets, a large ball for the centre of the circle, called the Joker, a starting post, and a score table with six dials. The latter is simply to show the number of direct plays as made by each player, how far he is on each course, etc., and it can also be decided by it how fast each side—when playing as such—is progressing in the game.

We have endeavored to give herein a general idea of this charming and fascinating game; but the special rules governing its playing, may be found more explicitly stated in the regular manuals of the game. Its popularity is not to be denied, and to one who has played Le Cercle, this will seem nothing at which to wonder.

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

THE Trustees of the Free Public Library, would take this opportunity to inform the public, that several large and valuable donations of books have already been made to the Library, by the Adams Library Association, by the Adams family, Dr. Stetson, and others, amounting to about twelve hundred volumes. It is believed that many of our citizens have bound volumes, suitable for circulation, which they would be glad to donate. All such persons are invited to do so; and if they will leave such bound volumes at the Adams Academy, or, if this is not convenient, will notify the Trustees, they will be called for. By thus doing, this Institution, free to all, will be greatly benefited. C. A. FOSTER, Sec. Trustees Public Library. Quincy, July 1. 1f

THE HALL TREADLE!

For Sewing Machines.

AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age—using one or two feet or either alternately. With this Treadle machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking of the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as used in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use—plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at

GRANDFATHER'S BARN.

O don't you remember our grandfather's barn,
Where our cousins and we met to play;
How we climbed on the beams and the scaffold
so high,
Or tumbled at will on the hay;
How we sat in a row on the bundles of straw,
And on it to "Boson" we rode?
And then we kept, and sold barley and oats,
And corn by the bushel or bin;
And straw, for our sisters to braid into hats,
And flax, for our mothers to spin.

Then we played we were biddies, and cackled
and crowed.
"Til grandmother in haste came to see
If we were killing the old speckled hen,
Or whatever the matter might be.
How she pulled our heads when she saw her mistake,
And called us her sweet "chicken-dears!"
While a tear dimmed her eye as the picture recalled
The scene of her own vanished years.

How we tittered and swung, and played meeting
and school,
And Indian, and soldier, and bear?
While up on the rafters the swallows kept house,
Or sailed through the soft Summer air
How we longed to peer into their curious nests
But they were too far overhead;
So we wished we were giants, or winged like the birds,
And then we'd wonder, we said,

And don't you remember the racket we made
When selling at auction the hay?
And how we wound up with a keel-over leap
From the scaffold down into the hay?
When we went in to supper our grandfather
said,
If he had not once been a boy,
He should thought that the Hessians were sacking the town,
Or an earthquake had come to destroy.

How the years have gone on since in grandfather's barn
To play with our cousins we met?
Our eyes have grown dim and our locks have turned gray,
Yet still in my heart there's an evergreen nook,
Where childhood's sweet memories stay;
And no music to me has a charm that can thrill,
Like the voices of children at play.

THE WAY TO KEEP HIM.

"Out again to-night?" said Mrs. Hays, fretfully, as her husband rose from the tea table and donned his great coat.

"Yes, I have an engagement with Moore. I shall be in early. Have a light for me in the library. Good night."
And with a careless nod Wm. Hays left the room.

"Always the way," murmured Lizzie Hays, sinking back upon the sofa. "Out every night—I don't believe he cares
one bit about me now, and we've only been married about two years. No man has a more orderly house, and I am not a bit extravagant, and yet I don't believe he loves me any more. Oh, dear, why is it? I wasn't rich, he didn't marry me for money, and he must have loved me then; why does he treat me with so much neglect?" and with her mind filled with such fretful queries, Lizzie Hays fell asleep on the sofa.

Let me paint her picture as she lay
there. She was a blonde, with a small, graceful figure, and a pretty face. The hair, which showed by its rich waves its natural tendency to curl, was brushed smoothly back and gathered into a rich
knot at the back; her cheeks were pale,
and the whole face was a discontented expression. Her dress was a neat chintz wrapper, but she wore neither collar nor sleeves. "What's the use of dressing up, just for William?"

Lizzie slept soundly for two hours, and then woke suddenly. She sat up, glanced at the clock, and sighed drearily at the prospect of the long interval to be spent alone before bed time.

The library was just over the room in which she sat, and down the furnace flue,
through the registers, a voice came to the young wife's ears; it was her husband's.

"Well, Moore, what's a man to do? I was disappointed, and I must have pleasure somewhere. Who would have sprightly, and loving, could have changed to the fretful dowdy she is now? Who wants to stay at home to hear his wife
whining all the evening about her troublesome servants, and her headache, and all sorts of bothers? She's got the knack of that drawing whine so bad that, 'pon my life I don't believe she can speak pleasantly."

Lizzie sat as if stunned. Was this true? She looked into the glass. If not dowdy, her costume was certainly not fit for an evening at home, with none but William to admire. She arose and went softly to her own room, with bitter,
sorrowful thoughts, and a firm resolution to win back her husband's heart—and then, his

unpicturable desolation of the whole canyon—add to what you see and hear and feel, what you must perforce imagine below your sight and hearing, consider what there is above ground and what there must be under ground, and you get a good many thoughts and sensations that don't often come to human minds and human nerves.

CAMP DAVIS.

The encampment of the First Brigade at North Weymouth, has caused considerable stir and excitement in this place and vicinity throughout the week. Teams loaded with camp equipments and other things commenced passing through our village for the grounds as early as Friday last, and continued through Saturday, Sunday and Monday. On the latter day the troops commenced their journey to the encampment, and since that time there has been a continual stream of visitors. The heavy shower on Tuesday morning, together with a few slight sprinkles throughout the day completely laid the dust, and made it excellent riding to Camp Davis for a short time. But the immense travel soon kicked up a dust the whole length of Washington street, and at times it has been almost suffocating.

On Tuesday morning, a large number of our citizens collected at the depot to witness the arrival of troops, which made quite a good display, and was much enjoyed by old and young.

On Wednesday morning, the First Battalion of Cavalry came to the depot to receive some military gentlemen from Rhode Island. On their arrival the line of march was taken for the camp, the Prescott Light Guards and the Roxbury Horse Guards performing the escort duty.

The Lancers and Dragoons waited to receive Gen. B. F. Butler, who arrived about thirty minutes later. The General looked much as he did ten or fifteen years ago. We could not see the effect of the war, or the weight of the "silver spoons" had reduced his corpulence in the least. No doubt the fall campaign will give it a harder trial than either. Gen. Butler reviewed the troops about 12 o'clock, and shortly after returned to the city. It was estimated that upwards of 5,000 spectators witnessed the review.

Friday morning, a second review took place, the Governor being present. He came to the camp in the steamboat, Mahoning and was received with the customary honors, and escorted to Headquarters by the Cavalry.

The State Police, under charge of Capt. Garey, by their vigilance, have kept everything quiet round the encampment. It has been nearly or quite impossible to obtain liquor outside the camp lines, and for this reason the grounds have been unusually quiet,—no drunken persons, rough or disorderly conduct of any kind was noticed about the grounds, which is usual at all the muster fields.—Much credit is certainly due our State Police for the good work they have done on this occasion.

Capt. Garey well understood his duties, attended to them faithfully, and deserves much credit. E. C. Bumpus, Esq., of Weymouth, has acted as Trial Justice at Camp Davis, throughout the week. He was at Capt. Garey's headquarters, ready to try any one brought before him for misdemeanor, but we are pleased to say he was not kept very busy.

The camp grounds in many respects, were excellent,—high, pleasant and airy, and very level. The facilities for bathing ample, and were improved by hundreds of soldiers each day.

THIEVES. The muster week has passed without any very serious disturbance or robberies in our village. On Tuesday morning, the Saloon owned by Messrs. French & Bryant, was entered by three young rascals about two o'clock, by breaking a pane of glass, and lifting a window, near the rear end of the building. They helped themselves to a small amount of money, which they found in the drawer and also to the nuts, candy and other things found on the shelves. As they were about to leave, one of the party stumbled over a chair, which awoke a young man who slept in the room, causing a hasty retreat. We learn that officers are on their track, and it is thought that one or more may be brought to justice.

On Wednesday night the store of Mr. Frederick Hardwick, on Franklin street, was broken into and the place completely ransacked and some thirty dollars taken.

RESIGNED. We learn that Mr. I. W. Thayer, has resigned the office of Postmaster, at Wollaston Heights. He intends to sell his fine estate at that place, or exchange it, and move to another location.

WESTERN CORRESPONDENCE.

RED ROCK, KANSAS, JULY 25, 1871.

To the Publisher of the Patriot.

Thinking some of your numerous readers might be interested in a brief description of the Harmonious Family, so often seen on the western prairies, I send you the following account written from personal observation:—

THE HARMONIOUS FAMILY.

Hearing much about this family and being very skeptical concerning it, I determined to fathom its mysteries as far as possible, and after watching their movements and killing some of them have come to the following solution of the matter:—

The Prairie Dog is something like a squirrel with a short tail, and is about the size of the gray squirrel. They congregate in numbers from fifty to one hundred, sometimes more, each family digs a hole and makes a nest a long way under ground; the owl and rattlesnake find these nice and comfortable quarters, which they also occupy, without opposition or labor.

The snake thus proving, as in other respects, the word of Scripture, "cunning as a serpent." He retires to the hole when in danger; at other times he comes out, stretches himself on the pile of dirt at the entrance and lies in the sun to enjoy his leisure, and he unto the animal that comes up on him by surprise,—his jump is quick as lightning. If he sees a trespasser he invariably sounds the alarm and retires very slowly to his home; if he is foiled in this, he coils himself in a ring, his head in the centre, running out his forked tongue and opening his mouth.

All ready for any one who gets within his reach, (which is about two-thirds his length), and remains in that position until his enemy retires, or is himself killed.—Hogs have no fear of him, his bite never takes effect on them, and when poorly fed, will eat him with good relish. Horses are very much afraid of the snake and when near him seems to smell, or in some way to be aware of his presence, and either stops, or if going fast will jump one side very quickly; sometimes leaving his rider on the ground. We have never known of neat cattle being killed from the bite of the snake, but horses, hogs and dogs have. He feeds about once in six weeks on young prairie dogs, owls, and other small animals. In winter he is dormant.

The owl is of a small species; about the size of a pigeon. He goes in and out, winter and summer alike, without molestation. If a dog or an owl is killed near the hole, he is quickly pulled in and eaten. The dog is devoured by the owl, and vice versa; the snake by both outside the hole.

The owl fights for the family; often attacking large dogs. Pouncing on their back he gives a scratch and a bite, and leaves. Sometimes he flies at small children.

The dog is the sentinel, giving warning of danger by a short quick bark; but he is a coward, and very shy, seldom being caught, dead or alive. When captured alive he is easily tamed and makes a pretty pet.

HOT HOUSE. Col. Abner B. Packard intends to build, just north of his residence on Hancock street, a very fine green house, at a cost of several thousand dollars. Workmen have already commenced preparing the foundation. It will probably be one of the finest in this town or vicinity, and will greatly add to his already beautiful estate.

ONE WEEK LONGER. Cushman & Brooks, are giving their customers great bargains, in Summer goods, at their large and commodious store, 37 and 39 Temple Place, Boston. Ladies visiting Boston should not fail to call at this store, as they will find some of the most desirable goods at greatly reduced prices. Read their advertisement.

The Spiritualists had a very large mass meeting at Abington on Sunday last. Some ten thousand persons it is estimated were present, including quite a number from this place. Rev. Mr. Aldrich formerly a Universalist minister in this place, was present and spoke to the assembly. He said among other things that he had withdrawn from the Universalist denomination.

The .Aina Sewing Machine, as improved, claims to be superior to any in the market. If you are about to purchase, examine this machine at their office, 24 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

The manufacture of broom-handles keeps 3,000 men at work.

Poetry.

THE RAIN.

My little boy stood at the window,
His face pressed against the pane,
Watching with childhood's happy zest,
A summer shower of rain.

The big drops splashed down on the side walk,
They chased down the glass in mirth,
And even the puddles bubbled up,
To see the joy of the earth.

But my darling at last was silent,
And his face was thoughtfully still,
Though outside the rain kept pouring
Fierce down on the window sill.

I could see that some thought was working
Inside of his little brain,
So at a venture I asked him,
"What do you think of the rain?"

His wee mouth quivered, his bright eye shone,
As he made me this reply:
"I think the drops are tears of God
That the beautiful earth is dry."

Then I thought how the Giver of sunshine,
Who stills the tempest with Oft speaks in His loving wisdom
By the mouth of a little child.

And I prayed that with earthly knowledge
Our gracious Father above,
Might make us see with childhood's faith
In all that He does His love.

GEORGE RANPALL.

Farmers' Department.

DOES FARMING PAY?

We often hear it said, there is no longer any money in farming. In the course of our experience we have heard similar statements concerning other occupations. A printer, adhering in these days to the old-fashioned hand-press, might make the same complaint, and with as much justice as the present farmer, who carries on operations in the old style, or a carpenter who makes his moldings by hand and planes boards. The improvements in machinery of all kinds have so quickened the demand for labor in every branch of industry, that the farmer as well as the mechanic must abandon hand labor and use machinery, or his profits must be eaten up in expenses.

Hay may be made and put in the barn by machinery at the rate of one dollar per acre. By hand the cost would be four dollars. The old style of crop is half a ton per acre; now three times that is a fair crop. The same is true of most other crops, grain and roots especially. In feeding stock and making and using manure, equally large differences result. So of breeding stock; the old style rooter, and the modern Berkshire, are not more unlike than are their several values when made into pork. The same of the ill-fed, rough-coated native heifer or steer, and the sleek, well-fed grade Jersey or Ayrshire.

The same is true of many farming communities in respect to roads, fences, and schools. All these must be fitted up with modern improvements, or farming as a business must suffer. We know whereof we speak, when we emphatically deny that farming is an unprofitable business. The capital invested will, if rightly used, return in this branch of industry as good an interest as in any other, besides having the invaluable merit of indestructibility. A work-shop or factory may burn up, but land remains not only intact, but from uncontrollable circumstances is ever advancing in value. So the labor of the farmer is sure of some remuneration if properly directed. Poor farms and poor farmers are the ones whose crops fail through drought or excessive wet. On a properly conducted farm these may damage the crop, but will never destroy it. The divine promise of seed-time and harvest is for the especial benefit of the farmer; but it rests with himself in a great measure whether the fulfillment comes to him individually or whether his more enterprising neighbor secures it.—American Agriculturist.

Anecdotes.

Teacher in loud tones: "What is your name?"
Boy, in a weak voice: "Johnny West sir."

"How old are you, Johnny West?"
"Twelve years old, sir."

"Now, John, tell me who made this grand and glorious universe?"
"Don't know, sir."

"What! twelve years old and don't know who made this noble sphere? Jas. Smith, go and cut me a whip."

The birch is brought and held over the trembling boy. In thundering tones the rigid disciplinarian demanded:
"Now tell me who made this great world we live in?"

"I did sir, but I won't do it again."

A patient complained to his physician that he was pursued by a ghost the night before, as he was going home from the tavern.

"What shape was it?" asked the doctor.

"In the shape of a jassaw," replied the man.

"Go home," replied the physician, "and keep sober. You were drunk last night and frightened at your own shadow!"

A student at Yale started the class at recitation the other day. "What stars never set?" asked the professor.

"Recessars!" was his prompt reply.

The Best in the World.

COLTON'S PATENT

REFRIGERATOR

Is emphatically the King of

REFRIGERATORS.

It is economical in the use of Ice. Always perfectly dry. No taint. No mingling of food. Has received a Silver Medal, and in all cases the highest premium at the State Fairs.

The water, as it runs from the ice, is retained

in an iron tank around the food chamber, thus

aiding in the work of refrigeration. It is drawn

off through a faucet at pleasure, thus preventing

any liability of having water dripping over on to the floor.

As a perfect

PRESERVER OF FOOD,

As well as a COOLER,

COLTON'S Refrigerator

has fully proved its

Superiority Over All Others.

YOU KISSED ME ON THE STAIRS.

BY EARL MARBLE.
An hour we'd spent in rambling through
The Athenaeum's halls,
And gazing at the pictures fair
That hung upon its walls.
Sweet dreams of love and beauty far
Awoke all our cares;
And then we blithely went our way
Adown the winding stairs.

The echoes from our footsteps rang
Through silence else so still;
For none in sight nor hearing were;
And then around your waist
I stole my arm, and pressed you close,
As lover only dares,
And while you marvelled at my act,
I kissed you on the stairs.

How rosy red your sweet face grew,
I yet recall full well,
And how you looked to see that none
Had spied us, darling Nell.
And sweet the memory of that day
I took you unawares,
Close clasped you to my throbbing breast,
And kissed you on the stairs.

And well I too remember, Nell,
I yet recall full well,
How you let me press you close,
And smothered half a sigh,
Which waked a memory in my heart
Of half-remembered airs;
And as my pressure you returned,
You kissed me on the stairs.

How dear that moment's transport sweet
Still to my memory clings,
And to my longing, lonesome heart
A love-song ever sings!
Forgotten were the pictures seen,
Forgotten all our cares,
As I kissed you, my darling, and
You kissed me on the stairs.

—Bullion's Monthly Magazine.

Interesting Selections.
TOMATO SIRUP. Take the juice of ripe tomatoes, and add a pound of sugar
to each quart of juice; bottle and set it aside: in a few weeks it will have a wine-ish flavor; mix it with water when used for a beverage. Good in some cases of sickness.

A NOVAL MOUSE TRAP. Mr. John Gibbs of Washington, Me., recently bought some clams and took them home.
Mr. G. desired to have his purchase last as long as possible, so he put the clams
into the cellar and sprinkled Indian meal moistened with water over them. In the morning when he went for his clams he met a sight that struck him with astonishment. The mice on the premises scented
the meal and went for it, while the clams
had received them with the utmost hospitality. When Mr. G. reached the cellar
he found the top of the tub covered with the little rodents, each one held firmly by the tail by a clam.

A Fall River (Mass.) photographer was called on a recent Sunday
to take some pictures of a deceased child.
The latter was placed in a chair, and over it was arranged an array of roses,
with one sprig hanging down from the centre. It is related by an eye witness that several pictures were taken, and in the sixth, partly obscuring the pendant sprig, appeared clearly defined the face of the child's mother, who had been dead
several years. Considerable local excitement is said to have resulted from this
"spiritual photograph," if such it was.

The want of ability to sleep well
is an indication of impaired health which demands prompt attention. As a remedy for this, Dr. Hall recommends that present associations be broken up, whatever may be the sacrifice; that some more active employment be undertaken; or a long journey be taken on horseback, if possible, and with a good companion. A great specific is to be vigorously employed in the open air a large portion of the time.

"Johnny," said one of the boys
to a bereaved friend, who had just lost his father, "yer behaved well at the funeral."
"Oh, pshaw!" replied Johnny, with the air of one whose merits were only half recognized, "you should have seen me at the grave."

"A German, who lately lost his horse, published the following notice:—
"Run away, or stolen, or was strayed,
mine plack horse, about 18 hands high.— He had four plack legs, two behind and
two before; he is plack all over his body, put he has got some vite spots pon his pack, where the skin was rub off, but I greased 'em, and the vite spots is all plack again. He trods and kanters, and sometimes he walks; and when he walks,
all his legs and feet goes on von after ander. He has two cars pon his head poth alike, put von is placker don der
and a small bit longer. He has two eyes;
von is put out, and toder is pon de side
of his head; and when you go toder side he von't see you. When he eats good deal, he has pig plack. He has long dail, dat hangs behind; but I cut it short toder day, and now it is not so long vat it vas. He is shoed all round put his hind shoes comes off, and now
he has got on shoes only before."

Miscellany.
RIGHTED AT LAST.

Edith Tracy sat in a superbly furnished apartment, with her magazine upon the scarlet cushioned reading desk before her. For the last hour, she had read scarcely five lines. Her eyes had been fixed upon the glorious landscape; now
she turns to the mirror opposite her, and the reflection is evidently a pleasant one.
It gives back a figure arrayed in the most beautiful tint of rose-colored muslin.
A few laces were neatly arranged in neck and sleeves. She wore but little jewelry, plain bands of gold upon her prettily rounded arms, jet jewels hung from her tiny pink ears, her dress was simple but rich—no superfluity was visible. Before her was a small writing desk, bound with silver; from this she took some papers written over with ink that was now nearly faded. One of these she perused again and again. It read thus:
"Edith, I love you! Never were those words uttered with more sincerity
by human being. If it is reciprocated, do not delay in answering. If not, why,
spare us both pain by being silent."

Evidently there was an answer sent,
for there was a large package, in the same hand of letter dates, and then, there was a single letter tied up mournfully,
with a ribbon of that sad hue, that denotes
the death of friends. This was more, mournful still for it told of the death of love in the writer's heart.

"I come now to bid you farewell—not
the light parting of daily occurrence
when we thought a few hours were a long space, a week almost an eternity.— Strange that we are such victims of change! but so it is—and I come for that brief word, before I go to that shore of the old world from which I may never return, and that word Edith,
—is, farewell!"

This was all, no explanation was given. Very bitter were the tears she shed, as she read these two, the first and the last. There was a bright curl of hair in the first—she folded it carefully up and consigned all to the writing-desk
with a deep sigh that seemed to come from the depth of her heart. A moment
after she was applying rose water to her eyes to efface all traces of her recent weeping. Rosa, her maid had announced a visitor. A young man entered, who paid her the compliments of the day, with a careless grace, more winning than the most courtly politeness
could have been. She closed the writing-desk, and turned to converse with him in a light laughing tone, as if sorrow had no part in her soul, and had never cast its bonds around her.

"I must tell you," said her guest "that I make my parting call. To-morrow I sail for Europe in the Steamer!"

The lady's brow clouded at these words. In a seclusion, which notwithstanding she had sought herself, was still painful to her, the society of young St.
Elms had been the first rose that had blossomed for her in many seasons.—
They loved each other as fondly as if brother and sister. Something he knew not what, had strangely bound him to this lonely and isolated woman. Young men with whom he was intimate, had attempted to jeer at him for his apparent devotion to one older than himself. But he resented it deeply, and still was attached to her openly. To her, who for some strange cause, seemed to be abandoned
by others. The way their acquaintance opened was thus: He had been charged with a message by a lady in England for Miss Tracy, and one of his first visits
was to her. Charmed with her conversation, mode of living, her reception of himself, so unaffectedly kind and cordial,
he had continued to call daily, until her friendship had grown deep and lasting.

We will now return to their conversation which we have neglected too long already.
"I shall return at no distant day, believe me, my dear Miss Tracy," said St.
Elms, "and then I trust you will return with me to England, as your friend is so desirous of your doing. Had not my affairs required me to return so speedily,
it would have given me the greatest pleasure for you to accompany me. But,
as I did not think of returning before autumn, I did not speak of it before."

A bright flush on the cheek of Edith Tracy, evinced her pleasure at this. It was a glow of anticipation, and St. Elms thought he had never seen anything more beautiful. Something he might have allowed for the subdued light in which she sat, but the expression of tenderness, that was diffused all over the face, veiled the ravages which sorrow

had made.

Twelve years before this scene, Edith Tracy had just entered upon her seventeenth birthday. Beautiful and accomplished, she made no little sensation
in the high circle in which she moved.— Her wit sense and beauty, were indeed themes of admiration everywhere,
and society did its best to spoil the favored child of fortune. Mr. Tracy was rich, and Edith an only child. The butterflies of fashion flitted around until a new object divided the fickle crowd. Ralph Benson, a man nine years her senior, admired and loved her. He strove to attract and impress her light and careless heart, and found no one else had made an impression there. Heartily wearied of the foolish flattery which surrounded her, and sensible of its light value, she had turned with a real sense of relief and love to the noble heart that thus offered to her for acceptance. Then after months of daily meeting, a cloud arose in the haven
of their love, and Benson, with natural jealousy, thinking from some rumor that was afloat, that she preferred some one younger, penned the farewell missive
that had been so carefully preserved in the little writing desk. From that moment she had never seen him. Months and years rolled away, and brought sorrow and suffering enough to subdue
a more careless spirit than hers. Mr.
Tracy died, and his wife survived the shock but a few years. Edith was alone.
How grateful she would have been for Ralph Benson's protection. To have laid her head on his breast for a moment
she would have resigned all her wealth.
There was a lingering hope in her heart,
that Benson would return, and she entered on the lonely life with the resolve that her heart should never be given to another.

Every time she had read the missive that had so darkened her life, she said to herself "He will come." The years that had gone by, the chances and changes of life, the unlikelihood of all affection existing in his heart, never occurred to her.
In her lonely state of mind, it was a great pleasure when young St. Elms came to her from England, and brought her news
of an old schoolmate, whom she had known in her girlish days. Somehow her heart warmed towards this youth, and to him she gave the entire of her house,
a privilege never granted to another.—
He was not slow of availing himself of this offer, for nowhere had he found such true cordiality nor such refined views of real English comfort, as in her lonely home. And now that he came to announce his departure, and saw how deeply it affected her, he felt a sorrow for which he could not account.

"You will go away," she said, "and new scenes will drive all memory of our pleasant intercourse from your mind.— Perhaps you will forget to claim my promise of accompanying you. It would be an era in my eventful life, to visit England, and I have partly decided to do so."

St. Elms did not go; a letter from his father, informing him that he was thinking of joining him, precluded the necessity
and the next steamer brought Mr. St.
Elms himself. After the business which had occupied his mind was disposed of the son begged his father to accompany him on a morning call.

"I would rather not renew my list of old acquaintances here, my son; many of them are painful from their associations
with painful events."

"But this one, my dear father," is a lonely and desolate woman, who has been very kind to me. Come with me, and I will engage you shall see no one else." Yielding to his wishes, Mr. St.
Elms entered a carriage with his son,
without asking the name of the lady. A few moments of rapid driving, brought them to a locality so utterly changed from its former surroundings, he did not remember of ever seeing it before.

"I thought you were taking me to see a poor lonely woman. Surely none of that stamp dwells in the midst of such magnificence."

"You shall see. I should not have brought you here, had I not first obtained permission."

He then spoke to the servant to let them in, who returned in a moment to conduct them to her mistress. Miss Tracy rose at their entrance, but at the first glance at the elder visitor, she fainted.

When she recovered from her swoon
Mr. St. Elms was kneeling by her side, and his son had vanished. A voice that had been sweet in her ear, was pouring out the story of long ago and, as she listened, she felt a soft calm pervade
her whole soul.

"But your name Ralph, how can I reconcile that?"
"Simply by hearing that an estate bequeathed me, was clogged by request that I would sink my own identity, in that of the bestower; an awkward thing for a man to do, but I was weak enough to accept the conditions for what it brought.
I took care however, to write my name
Ralph Benson St. Elms."

"How strange? Strange too, that I should have taken so much interest in your son!"
"He is not my son, Edith. I have never married! One of the conditions was that I should adopt the youth, a near relative to my deceased friend. I love him as my own."

One thought only seemed to possess
Edith Tracy. "Never married?" she repeated. "Never Edith? Like you I waited and hoped, when years brought
no proof that you had forgotten the cloud that separated us. I ceased to hope, I always waited. Let me not think I have waited in vain."

And B—avenue was in a fever of astonishment and curiosity, when a carriage with bridal favors, stopped at the rarely opened door of Miss Tracy, and that lady came out radiant with happiness,
attended by a noble looking man, and they were driven to the steamer that was ready to start for England. Next summer they returned to pass the season at one of the fashionable resorts. They are crowning the happiness of a lifetime into the years that remain. May pleasure attend them, and God send the happiness
they so truly deserve.

THE BEST PLACE FOR BUSINESS.

Where can we go to secure the best
opening for a permanent, paying business,
this is a question often asked by young men about to embark in the race for a fortune, and it is of the utmost importance that this question should be well considered and thoughtfully weighed before embarking in any enterprise.

It is almost impossible to decide what business is best for a young man, but a great deal depends upon the physical ability and constitution of the young man himself; for instance, a puny, sickly young man with effeminate desires and tastes, should not be put to the blacksmith's trade; a boy who cannot draw a straight line on a plate or a sheet of paper, should not be apprenticed to an architect, or to an artist, and one that is always building dog
houses, chicken coops, and sail boats
should not be put behind a dry goods
counter; and a boy that cannot add up a column of figures, should never be installed as clerk in a bank, or as bookkeeper in a mercantile house.

If the vocation is properly selected,
there is no difficulty in making a living with industry and prudence, no matter what the calling is.

MAKING PEOPLE HAPPY.

Some men move through life as a band
of music moves down the street, flinging
out pleasure on every side through the air to every one, far and near, that can listen. Some men fill the air with their strength and sweetness as orchards in October days, fill the air with ripe fruit.
Some women cling to their own houses
like the honeysuckle over the door, yet
like it fill all the region with the subtle fragrance of their goodness. How great a bounty and a blessing is it to hold the royal gifts of the soul that they shall be music to some, and fragrance to others and life to all! It would be no unworthy thing to live for, to make the power which we have within us the breath of other men's joy; to fill the atmosphere which they must stand in with a brightness
which they cannot create for themselves.

An old lady from one of the rural districts astonished a clerk in one of the stores a few days ago by asking if he had any "yellow developments" such as they did up letters in.

THE DUTCHMAN'S INSURANCE.

A story is told of a Dutchman who had taken the precaution to insure the life of his wife for five thousand dollars,
and his stable for nine hundred dollars,
believing the former might die, and the latter be burnt, and he could not get along without some compensation for the loss. Both policies had been taken from the same agent. In a few months after the stable had been insured, it was destroyed by fire. Schmidt quietly notified the agent, and hinted to him that he should expect the nine hundred dollars at the earliest possible moment. The agent at once sent a carpenter to ascertain the cost of erecting a new stable of the same dimension, having ascertained that the property had been insured for more than it was worth. The builder reported that he could replace the stable with new material for five hundred dollars, but unfortunately there was an ordinance preventing the erection of frame buildings—
the old stable having been of wood. He was asked to estimate the cost of a brick stable, and reported the amount at seven hundred and fifty dollars. The agent then notified Schmidt that he would build him a new brick stable in place of the old frame one; but Schmidt became very indignant at the proposition, saying,—"I do not understand this insurance business.
I pay you for nine hundred dollars, and when my stable burn down you make me a new one. I don't want a new stable,
—I want nine hundred dollars." The agent reasoned with Schmidt, but all to no purpose. When the stable was nearly finished Schmidt went to consult a lawyer, thinking that he could still get the amount of the policy, besides having the new stable. The lawyer, however, informed him that the company had a right to make good the loss by building a new stable, and expressed surprise at the idea
of bringing a suit against them.

"But," said Schmidt, "I insure for nine hundred dollars, and this fellow put up dem stable for seven hundred and fifty; I do not understand de insurance business." Finding that he could not compel the payment by law, he became disgusted with the insurance business altogether. Calling upon the agent, Schmidt said,—"Mr. Agent, I want you to stop dem insurance on mine frow. I do not pay any more monish dat way; I do not understand dis insurance business." Agent (surprised): "Why, Mr. Schmidt, you are doing a very foolish thing. You have paid considerable on this policy
already, and if your wife should die you will get five thousand dollars." "Yaw,
dat ish vat you tell me now," said Schmidt. "Ven I pays you on my stable
you say I get nine hundred dollar if it burn down. So it was burn, and you not give me mine monish. You say, 'Oh, dat was an old frame stable,—ish not word anydings. I make you a brick stable?' and you no pay me my nine hundred dollar. Ven mine frow die den
you say to me, 'Oh, she vash an old Dutch woman; she not word anydings;
I get you a new English wife!' And so I lose mine five thousand dollars. You not fool Schmidt again. I not understand dis insurance business."

OLD SHOES.

You probably think that if you look very sharply at an old shoe, when you throw it away, you will know it again if it ever comes back to you. But that doesn't at all follow. One of these days you may button your dress with an old pair of slippers, comb your hair with a boot, or grasp a cast of gutter while you eat your dinner. You don't see how this can be? Well, we'll tell you. Old shoes are turned to account by manufacturers in the following manner: They are cut into very small pieces, and kept for a couple of hours in chloride of sulphur. The effect of this is to make the leather hard and brittle. Next the material is withdrawn from the action of the chloride of sulphur, washed with water and dried. When thoroughly dried, it is ground to powder, and mixed with some substance like glue or gum that causes it to adhere together. It is then pressed into moulds and shaped into buttons, combs, knife-handles, &c. So you see how it may come to pass that you will comb your hair with a boot, and fasten your clothes with a slipper.

A woman that loves to be at the window is like a bunch of grapes in the highway.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, AUG. 19, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

ROBBERIES. The muster closed with a few additional robberies to those announced last week. None of them were very heavy, yet some were quite bold and startling. Taking all in all, it was rather a quiet muster and less damage was done than usual.

About two o'clock on Saturday morning, some rogues succeeded in entering the boot and shoe store of Mr. David B. Stetson, on Washington street. They first removed a square of glass in the rear end of the building, and then reached in, lifted the fastenings, and succeeded in opening the window. Then they were obliged to move a large number of boxes piled up by the window, and creep along cautiously, by the aid of matches it is supposed, to the front store. So far, so good. No doubt the rascals had begun to put on smiling faces at their good success. Their next move was to open the front door, so as to have a free and easy access, and also for the convenience of moving the goods to a wagon near by.

But lo! the door was up. In opening the door a bell up stairs, connected by wire to a spring over the door, was rung, which aroused Mr. Stetson's daughter, who went to the window, thinking that some one was at the side door. The noise made by opening the window caused the burglars to flee to a carriage, into which they rapidly leaped and quickly drove away. In their hurry they did not have time to take any of Mr. Stetson's valuable stock with them. Not even as much as a pair of new boots, to replace the old pair found by the rear window, which it is supposed one of the party took off, before entering, to prevent noise.

The same night an attempt was made to get into Mr. Abercrombie's store, near the Canal. But from some cause the labor proved fruitless and but little damage was done.

Also, on the same night several houses on President's Hill, in close proximity, were entered but no great amount stolen. Mr. Joshua Jones had some provisions and a new axe taken. Mr. Stephen Morse, Jr., also lost some eatables; and at Mrs. Lunt's a tub of butter was taken. It had been purchased that day, and only a small piece taken from it for tea; the rogues took the rest. The butter was "gone" quicker probably than any tub ever purchased by that family before.

The heaviest robbery, however, was at the new house recently completed by Mr. Wm. Parker, Jr., for C. F. Adams, Jr. Here the rascals cut off some lead pipes by means of the axe stolen from Mr. Jones' residence, and took two large copper boilers, valued at $100, and a few other things, besides doing more or less damage, amounting in all to about $300. The loss will fall upon the builder, as Mr. Parker does the work by contract, therefore, if any damage is done to the building before it is finished, he is the loser.

The house is one of the best in Quincy, and has cost about $25,000. It commands one of the finest prospects found anywhere in the State. The ocean and landscape scenery is magnificent.

APPOINTMENT. Mr. William A. Thayer has been appointed Postmaster at Wollaston Heights, in place of I. W. Thayer, who resigned a few days since.

PICNIC. The St. John's and St. Mary's Sunday Schools, with their parents and friends, had a very large and pleasant picnic at Abington, on Thursday last. About seven hundred were present. The day, although unusually hot, was quite cool and comfortable in the grove, and was considered by many, as one of the happiest passed in a life time. The music was furnished under the direction of Mr. George Monk, and was very highly praised by the party.

Quite a number of picnic parties have passed through this place this week. The Baptist Society, of East Stoughton, accompanied by the Randolph Brass Band, attracted considerable attention on Tuesday last. They spent the day at Reed's, at the Old Squantum House. A more lovely and pleasant seashore place cannot be found in this vicinity, and we learn that this party enjoyed it very much. On their way home the Band stopped a few moments near our office, and discoursed some excellent music, which was listened to by quite a crowd which soon gathered.

OMITTED. Owing to the lateness which it was received we are obliged to leave out this week an advertisement of Mr. Joseph W. Lombard, but would inform his friends that he can be found at No. 90 Hancock street, next door to the old stand, where he is prepared to cut, make, and trim garments, in his usual excellent style. Also to attend sales of real and personal estates.

Poetry.

CHEEK.

Upon the world's vast battle field,
Amid its wail and strife,
Where men their weapons bravely wield
To gain the prize of life.
If any fall and some do fall—
To win the goal they seek,
Be sure it is the coward pale,
And not the man with "cheek."
If there's a place needs to be filled,
Of all the men that seek,
'Tis surely none however skilled,
By him who has the "cheek."
He gains the place and many fear
His fitness will be small.
Deficiencies will ne'er appear,
For "cheek" conceals them all.
The ladies—bless their gentle hearts!
For him have special smiles,
And though by him they suffer smart,
He all their fears beguiles.
They thought he was so very good,
And then at times so meek,
It seems they never understood,
He did it all by "cheek."
The man of cheek—he is the chap
Whose praises now I sing.
Though he may hit your head a rap,
You think 'tis quite "the thing."
Let others praise the modest man,
Whose soul is mild and meek,
But I shall ever lead the van,
That lauds the man of "cheek."

Interesting Selections.

RICH PLUM CAKE. One pound each of sugar, butter and flour, ten eggs, one pound of raisins, two of currants, one-half pound of citron, one teaspoon of cloves,
one-half of mace, one nutmeg, juice and grated peel of one lemon, and one-half teaspoon of molasses; before mixing scatter
one teaspoon of cream tartar in the flour.
Before adding the fruit, dissolve one-half teaspoon of soda in a tablespoon of boiling water—add it to the mixture and beat thoroughly. Bake in two pans one and one-half hours. If frosted it will keep nice almost any length of time.

GRADUAL DEATH. We do not die wholly at our death: we have moldered away long before. Faculty after faculty, interest after interest, attachment after attachment disappears; we are torn from ourselves while living, year after year
sees us no longer the same, and death
only consigns the last fragment of what we were to the grave.

SICKNESS A NUISANCE. "Sickness is the most expensive nuisance on the face of the globe. There may be instances where it makes people better, but generally it makes people selfish, sad, misan-
thropic, nervous, mean and miserable.
The best way to make ourselves happy and good is to keep ourselves well. Then we are apt to be sweet and kind and wholesome."—Herald of Health.

street called Pall Mall. It is said to have been a favorite pastime of Charles II. and the Duke of York.

says, speaking of comets: "You know that these extraordinary bodies sometimes throw out tails 100,000 miles in length, and 50,000 miles in diameter."
Of course we know it. We have taken a yard-stick and measured the length and diameter of thousands of such tails, and we have seldom found one that came under those figures.

Miscellany.

THE BROKEN GOBLET.

"Clara, are we short of goblets?"
Harry Thurber asked the question of his wife, at the breakfast table. He was book-keeper in a down-town store, in reception of a fair salary, and had been married five years.
"Goblets?" repeated his wife, with a start; and her delicate, handsome features were wrought upon by something which very much resembled fear.
"Yes," added the husband, with emphases. I asked if we were short of goblets."
"You remember, Harry, I told you several days ago that we needed a few
more."
"How many goblets, in mercy's name,
am I to buy in a year?"
"Not many, Harry. You have bought only two dozen since we were married."
"And what has become of them?"
"They got broken."
"Broken! I should say so!"
Mr. Thurber had split a mufin upon his plate, and now looked for the syrup.
He was very fond of maple syrup upon hot mufins,—for his wife's folks in the country sent him the purest and most delicate syrup to be found anywhere; and his wife was not to be excelled in the art of cooking.
"Ah! how is this?" he exclaimed, as his wife handed him the syrup in a small glass pitcher. "Where is our syrup-pot?"
"I am sorry, Harry—"
"How? Is that broken, too?"
"Yes. Eva hit it with her elbow while she was helping me clear off the table last evening. Poor little thing! She has been sadly—"
"Great help you must have expected from a child like that!" interrupted the husband, sneeringly.
Upon this little Eva, a bright-eyed child of almost four summers, cried out that she could "help mamma lots."
But Mr. Thurber was not to be turned from his bent.
"Goodness gracious!" he exclaimed,
"if a man were made of money, he could not run such an establishment! You must remember that times are not as they were a few years ago. Things cost almost double what they used to. That syrup-pot I paid a dollar for! My soul!
I may dig, and dig, and dig, and I'll never get a dollar ahead if we are to go on in this way. Yesterday it was a new platter for meat—"
"Harry," interposed the wife, beseechingly, "the platter was not to replace a broken one."
"But I bought it, didn't I?"
"Yes."
"And, next, goblets are wanted. Are these to make broken ones good?"
"Of course. But, remember that for five years—"
"O, yes,—I remember very well that during the five years it has been break-
ed, break, something, all the time.
And now it's a new syrup-pot! Thunder!
I'll buy an iron one, and see if that will stand the racket!"
"Harry!" pleaded the wife, "you magnify
the evil. I think there are very few families that break less crockery than we do. I am as careful as I can be, and I am sure Eva is not at all destructive."
"And yet," retorted Harry, with unnecessary vehemence, "I find myself called upon alarmingly often to make good your breakages. I tell you I can't stand it!"
Like all men who assume untenable
positions, endeavoring to hold the same against reason and good-sense, Harry Thurber became more and more indignant and harsh as his wife interposed the gentle remonstrance of truth and necessity, until at length he arose from the table,
with the exclamation upon his lips
that:
"A man, nowadays, needs to have an independent fortune, if he thinks to marry and keep house!"
"O! Harry!"
"It's so, Clara! Zounds! You don't have to earn the money. If you did you'd be a little more careful."
"Careful of what?"—My-of everything—of goblets, and syrup-pots, and—
O, bah!—Smash away!—break 'em up!
—tip over the pots and kettles!—rattle
the glass, and shiver the china!—It's all right!—I can pay for it!—O, yes!" Clara could make no answer to this speech; and giving way to the emotion

that had been pulling for a long time at her heart-strings, she covered her face
with her hands, and burst into tears.

"O, yes!" cried Harry. "That's the way! That's a woman's argument! O, batter!" And with this he seized his hat, and hurried from the house.

Let it not be thought that Harry Thurber was willingly unjust, or inclined to fault-finding. On the contrary, he was naturally frank and honorable, and entirely free hearted; but like thousands of other free-hearted men he was swayed
greatly by his emotions; and his emotions
often ran into wrong channels. He wended his way toward his place of business
under a cloud. He loved his wife dearly, and he was never happy when he left his home with the shadow of ill-feeling upon the parting.

"Plague take it!" he muttered to himself, "a fellow can't stand this kind of thing all the time. It costs too much to buy crockery were just to break up."

So led the evil spirit; but the spirit
of consideration would have told him that but very little of his substance was wasted or destroyed by his wife. By and by his better nature found room for the expression of a passing thought. It was when he remembered how harshly
he had spoken to Clara—how harshly
and how foolishly.

"After all, the price of a few goblets
isn't worth the ill words I've spoken—
And yet she might be more careful."—
The enemy was arguing now.—"Times are harder than they used to be. It costs me a good deal more to live. Every broken goblet counts."

But by this time he was at the store,
and under the pressure of the business of the counting-room his trouble was forgotten.

At eleven o'clock he and Ben Lawson went out and got a glass of ale. Ben paid the bill. Ben was the entry clerk,
and was a jolly good fellow.

At three o'clock the duties of the counting-house were closed, and Harry and Ben went out for dinner. It was Harry's turn to pay for dinner. As they entered the cafe they met a mutual friend,
and Harry invited him to join them.

It was a very nice dinner, and they washed it down with champagne. Harry was brushing the crumbs from his lap
with a napkin, when he lit one of the delicately cut and tinted glasses, and knocked it from the table.

"Put it in the bill," he said to the waiter. And the event seemed to trouble him no more than might have resulted from the dropping of a pin.

The bill was brought—six dollars and seventy-five cents.

"That's seventy-five cents for the champagne glass," suggested Ben.

"Yes," answered Harry.

"Egad," said Ben, with a laugh, "suppose a fellow's wife was to break such a thing at home, wouldn't she get a lecture on carefulness?"

"And," added Bart Sawyer,—the friend, who was a married man—"suppose one of our wives was to ask for six dollars to be expended just as this six dollars has gone?"

"I fancy I see her getting it!" returned Ben.

"And that ain't the worst of it," pursued Bart, who was free enough in the admission of his faults away from home
—how we do snap the poor women up for spending money any way. Yesterday
I found my wife with a new bonnet on "Fifteen dollars thrown away," I told her; and she had a good cry. And yet, to come right down to the honest truth, I suppose I spend more for wine and cigars
in the course of the year than my wife ever thinks of spending for dress in the same length of time."

"Zounds!" exclaimed Ben, with an emphatic slap of his hand upon his knee,
"you're right, Bart. Fact is, we spend money for our own amusements without thinking; but when we come to pay our wives' bills, we count the cost."

"We pay them very much as we pay our taxes," added Bart. "What do you think, Harry?"

Harry Thurber had been reflecting;
and when he looked up, the usual smile
was gone from his face.

"You are right," he said.

"This very morning I made a brute of myself at home over a broken goblet;
and here I spent enough for this dinner
to pay for all the glass that Clara ever broke in her life."

"But it won't do to tell her of it,"
said Ben.

"No," retorted Harry; but I think it would not be a bad idea for us all to shift
the scene of fault-finding. Let us keep our frowns and complaints to bear company with our own foolish expenditures,
and save the sunshine of our free hearts
for home consumption. For one, I'm bound to try it."

"Egad!—and so will I," responded Ben Lawson.

"Count me in," added Bart.

"Now mark," said Harry, impressively
"we are not to find fault with our wives
on account of expenditure until we have found occasion to reduce our own expenses
within the limits of our absolute needs for comfort and convenience. If there is need of retrenchment, we will set the example
before we preach. Are you agreed?"

And the other two answered—Yes!

"And we will be checks upon one another," said Bart. "He that breaks
the faith shall confess."

And they agreed to this, also.

And the result was a most favorable
one. There were three happier families in the city from that time. There were three homes into which the spirit of discord seldom found entrance. And furthermore when the wives discovered that their husbands were really and man-fully trying to lift their heads above the pressure of unnecessary expense, they cheerfully seconded the effort. They did it of their own accord, and they did it right willingly. And thus, imperceptibly, the very shoal and quicksand upon which
so much of domestic peace had been wrecked became the ground upon which the hearts of husband and wife were united in a common cause—a cause which had in view a safer home, and a better and happier life.

A NEW CATECHISM.

Whom did Adam marry, and when did he marry her? One Eve.

What was her bridal dress? Barely nothing.

Not even a ribbon? No, she had no need of one; she was a rib bone herself.

When Adam and Eve were in the garden, what time did they give their commence picking apples? In the Fall.

What was the first step they took in the sugar business? Raising Cain.

Why didn't Cain make good sugar?
Because he wasn't Abel.

Spirit, as well as sugar, comes from above—what evil resulted from this Cain's spirit? Abel got slewed.

What reason have we to suppose that Cain also got slewed? He went immediately to the land of Nod.

Who was the wisest man? Knower.

What did he know? He knew enough to go in out of the rain—Manhattan Homestead.

CURIOUS MUSICAL TOYS.

The Jesuit Moimburg makes mention of a golden tree in the possession of the Emperor Theophilus, laden with artificial birds, which produced a concert similar to the song of nightingales, and thereby astonished all Constantinople. Cornelius Drebbel, a Dutch mathematician, made a musical machine which would itself up
at sunrise, and played a continuous symphony so long as the rays of the sun fell upon it. Vaucanson, acting on this idea a little later, produced his flute-player, whose renown was no less than the famous duck. The artificial duck, it is well known, plumed herself, quacked, waddled, devoured, and even digested
food, by means of a chemical solution by which the interior of the machine was charged. Every one has heard of Matzel's automaton chess-player. This,
however, has ceased to be a mechanical wonder or marvel; it was only an ingenuous deception. Matzel's automaton trumpeter was first brought out in Paris in 1808. It was exhibited in England, together with his chess-player and speaking puppets, about forty years ago. The trumpet playing was very good.

TRYING THE LOT.

A tall, long-legged Yankee from up country, distinguished by a little head perched on a crane's neck, accompanied with a swallow-tailed coat and pantaloons that refused to be exhaled down to his ankles, boots shining with tallow, and hat that seemed over a half inch of brim, stalked into a city hotel lately, to get what he called a "fancy dinner." Being seated at the table, and asked by the servant
what he would have:—

"Wall, I swan, I don't know," said he, casting his eyes down the long array of fricandeaux, cotelettes, ragouts, "kick-shaws" on the bill of fare, which compounded him with their variety, while he despaired of grappling with them all.

"What would you take, squire, if you were in my place? I can't eat all of I never was to have another meal of vittles
from now till the snow flies."

"Wouldn't you like some soup?" said
the waiter.

"Wall, squire, your 'bout right, I reckon; bring on your soup, and then I'll pitch into your bill vittles. You tax all the same, they say, and it's hard choosin', so I'll jist try one plate through the lot—if I bust."

HOW TO GIVE CHILDREN AN APPETITE.

Give children an abundance of outdoor exercise, fun, and frolic; make them
regular in their habits, and feed them
only upon plain, nourishing food, and they will seldom, if ever, complain of a lack of appetite. But keep them over-tasked in school, confined closely to the house the rest of the time, frowning down
every attempt at play; feed them upon
rich or high seasoned food, candies, nuts,
etc., allow them to eat between meals and late in the evening, and you need not expect them to have good appetites. On the contrary, you may expect they will be pale, weak, and sickly.

Don't cram them with food when they don't want, or have no appetite for it—such a course is slow murder. If they have no appetites, encourage, and if need be, command them to take exercise in the open air. Don't allow them to study too much, and especially keep them from reading the exciting light literature which so much abounds in our bookstores and circulating libraries. In addition to securing exercise for the children as above,
change their diet somewhat; especially if they have been eating fine flour, change
to coarse or Graham flour.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

The Cleveland Herald makes the following truthful observation concerning country papers, and the duty of giving them wholesome support:—

The local paper is an absolute necessity to the county and community where it is published. All the city papers cannot supply the place of the home paper.
That should be the first love of every man, for with the paper the locality is identified. The paper gives the county and town where printed much of their importance in the world, and gives in detail the local news, which cannot be gained by any other source. Every day's issue of the paper is so much local history, and the rise, growth and development of the town and county can be measured and recorded only by the local newspaper that is constantly gathering its items. People do not properly appreciate their home newspaper. They measure the value of a paper too much
by the number of columns it contains.
The home paper at any price is the cheapest paper one can take, for in it is found the information to be obtained from no other source.

HOW TO SELECT HINGES.

The following simple method of selecting right from left-handed loose jointed
butts or hinges, may be useful to many,
as it has often saved considerable trouble
and annoyance in sending inexperienced
persons to the stores for such articles:
Take up the closed hinge from the counter
and open it from you, holding it in both hands; if you wish for right handed ones
hold fast with the right hand, letting go the left. If the hinge remain intact it is right handed, but if it fall to pieces, or apart, it is left handed. Holding fast with the left hand and letting go with the right, will prove which are which, by a similar test.

I have seen many a score of people
puzzled to tell one hinge from another,
until I showed them the above simple plan, when it was a mystery no longer.

SATURDAY, AUG. 26, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

SCHOOLS, TEACHERS, ETC. The public schools in this place have had a long and good vacation, and no doubt many of the teachers and scholars, and particularly the parents, will be glad when school begins. Vacation ends next Saturday, and those who have not enjoyed the time should do so with a heart and a will the few remaining days. There will be some changes in teachers and scholars. Some old familiar faces have left and new ones will come in to occupy their places.

We learn that Miss Jennie Butler, the Assistant at the High School, has left to attend to more pleasant duties, and Miss Sarah A. Barnes has accepted of the situation. Miss Barnes was formerly Assistant in the Coddington Grammar, but recently has taught at Braintree.

Miss Hattie H. Morse, a graduate of the High School, and more recently a graduate at the Normal School at Bridgewater, has accepted the charge of the West Bridgewater Grammar School, at a salary of about $500 a year. She is a very fine scholar, and a daughter of Mr. Stephen Morse, Jr., of this town. She commenced her labors at that place on Monday last.

WITHDRAWN. The omnibus, which has run from this village to connect with the Steamer Massasoit, has been withdrawn the present week, for want of patronage. The good accommodations given by the Old Colony railroad, together with low fare, has drawn most of the travel. Persons visiting the city on business usually take the shortest, quickest and cheapest route. Which leaves the steamboat only those who travel that way for pleasure. It is a delightful trip, to any who enjoy a short sail on a steamer, and it is surprising to us that more of our citizens have not improved it.

A SAD AFFAIR. A large party from Boston, was enjoying a picnic at Lovell's Grove, North Weymouth, on Thursday last, when their pleasure was turned to sorrow, by one of their company being dangerously shot. It appears that Mr. H. Atwood, who resides at the Grove, was having some little trouble with some of the visitors, when his eldest son rushed into his house, seized a gun and threatened to "shoot some one," which aroused several of the party who attempted to take the weapon away, when young Atwood shot one of them through the back. He was near his victim, and the whole charge of shot entered near the shoulder, making a hole large as an English walnut. The wounded man was brought to this village for surgical aid, but it was thought best by the physicians here, that he should be carried to the hospital in Boston, as his recovery was thought doubtful. Young Atwood gave himself up, and was taken before a justice in Weymouth yesterday afternoon for trial.

NOT SOLD. Some of our readers not being well posted in streets and residences at Wollaston Heights, supposed from a notice in our columns last week that I. W. Thayer, Esq., had sold the large and handsome estate occupied by him on the Heights which he values from $12,000 to $15,000. But it is not so. The estate sold was on Newport Avenue, and only brought some three thousand dollars. He is anxious, however, to sell his residence, being desirous to leave the place; and we learn if it is not sold in a few weeks, he will dispose of the land in small lots for building purposes.

RELIGIOUS. The relation as pastor and people, between Rev. George W. Skinner and the Universalist Society in this place, terminated the present week. The church which has been closed a few weeks will be opened to-morrow afternoon. The pulpit will be occupied by Rev. George Newcomb, a native of this place. He has lived in South Carolina for many years, but no doubt will be well remembered by many of our citizens.

STOUGHTON. A serious shooting affray occurred at Stoughton, on Sunday afternoon last, between two Irishmen, named Scannell. David was eating dinner at his mother's when Charles came in and a tussle ensued, which resulted in David shooting his brother with a bullet, through the lower part of the bowels. Which we learn has resulted in his death.

SUDDEN DEATH. Mr. Hugh Gulliver who resided at the west part of the town, died very suddenly on Monday evening last. He went to get an armful of wood near his door, when he fell and quickly expired. Dr. Underwood was called, but before he arrived Mr. Gulliver was dead. He was that day apparently as well as usual, and his death is supposed to have been caused by heart disease.

QUINCY BRASS BAND. At a meeting of this organization, held a few evenings since, the following gentlemen were elected its officers:—

Director.—George Monk.
Leader.—Francis P. Loud.
Standing Committee.—Richard G. Elliott, L. C. Badger, and Oscar Carver.
Clerk.—Stephen Pennington.

Never has the Band been blessed since its organization with such a fine list of officers. Men so capable of filling their respective positions with honor to themselves and credit to the Company. Its Director is a gentleman of truly musical genius, and is so well and favorably known to our citizens, that nothing we can say will add to his already well earned fame. Its Leader is an excellent musician, and one who would do credit to any band. His tendencies are to harmonize and draw its members closer together, and at the same time to fill each and every one with a feeling of pride, which induces him to do his best to advance its organization. With such gentlemen at its head the future of this association must be onward and upward. The Band at the present time is somewhat in debt, and to free them from this encumbrance, one of our citizens has started a subscription paper to aid them. The paper has been headed by Mr. Henry H. Faxon with $100.—Mr. Robertson and other influential gentlemen have subscribed liberally. With proper encouragement our citizens may have in their midst one of the finest bands in the State.

ROBBERIES. There appears to be a few thieves left in our midst. A small currying shop adjoining the one occupied by Mr. John Page, Jr., was entered on Wednesday night, by the use of false keys, it is supposed, and robbed of unfinished calfskins, valued at $135. A lot of finished skins were left unattended. The business was conducted by Capt. William Boyd and Mr. Patrick Doherty. We learn that the garden of Mr. Eleazer Frederick was entered a few nights ago, and a large lot of good squashes were stolen therefrom.

Also, the orchard of Mr. Charles L. Pierce, near the Canal, was visited and one tree, of very fine peaches, nearly ripe, was completely picked and carried away.

OMITTED. The usual notice of closing the stores in this place at an early hour, during the fall and winter months, came so late we were obliged to omit it until next week.

We have several interesting letters from Correspondents which will receive our earliest attention. One foreign Communication, from Edinburgh, which will appear next week.

WE ARE SORRY TO LEARN that Mr. Jacob F. Eaton, one of our well-to-do farmers and ice dealers, lies dangerously sick at his residence. His recovery is thought to be very doubtful.

A WISE SUGGESTION. An article in the Patriot, a few years since called attention to the fact that a large quantity of gravel was being removed from North Quincy, to the Dorchester side of the river, for building roads and other purposes, and suggested the importance of the town of Quincy purchasing some of the cheap gravel lands in that vicinity, for the purpose of grading and widening roads in that part of the town; and at some future time to replace a part of the rickety structure over the Neponset river with a solid road bed. The importance of that suggestion is now apparent from the great increase in valuation. Since that time a large amount of real estate in that part of the town has changed owners. A large tract of hilly land, containing about four acres, situated a short distance from Hancock Street, westerly from Atlantic Station, which could have been bought for about $1,500, has recently been sold to a gentleman from Boston for $8,500.

WOLLASTON. Union Chapel, at Wollaston Heights, is already becoming too strait for the growing numbers who worship there. A large and convenient Church edifice is contemplated, which will be long grace these beautiful heights. The Sabbath School already numbers about sixty. Next Sabbath evening, at 7 1/2 o'clock, occurs its monthly Concert, at which Rev. Mr. Howe of Cambridge, will speak. Subject, "Look not on the wine when it is red, &c."

DROWNED. Timothy R. Wales son of Nathaniel Wales of Stoughton, the U. S. Assessor, was sailing with two other boys on Lake Anthony, near the Vineyard Camp Grounds on Saturday last, when the boat was upset by a flaw of wind, and he was drowned. It was thought that he became entangled in the eel grass. The body was recovered after several hours' grappling. The mother and sister were temporarily living upon the ground, and the father was expected on the evening boat to spend the Sabbath. The terrible bereavement cast a deep gloom over all who gathered upon the grounds.

For the Patriot.
"STILL THEY COME."

And that redoubtable old villain, Macbeth, trembled as that cry came in from the "outer wall." But "Mac" had reason to shake in his shoes, for they who "still came" upon him were armed enemies. With us it's different. There is little occasion indeed to fear when they come, and still they come! coming! Is there indeed no bottom to Mr. Faxon's pocket, nor any limit to his liberality? Is there indeed a fatheadless depth to either? Or like "the widow Cruse's jug of oil" are they miraculously prevented from failing?

We are led to the above by the constantly recurring notices, that so continually leak out, (and it is but charitable to suppose that the half is not told,) of the donations of Henry H. Faxon, Esq., to every kind of beneficent institution.

Not long since the Temperance Alliance voted thanks for his bounty. Four weeks ago fifty dollars were acknowledged from him, by the Hingham Sabbath School; the ensuing week, the echo reached us from Hyde Park; last week, St. John's School had substantial reason for taking up the refrain; and now a vote of thanks from the West Quincy Sabbath School, for a gift of fifty dollars from the same gentleman, accompanied by a letter, couched in the most elegant and kindly terms.

And still Mr. Faxon moves among us, as modest and unobtrusive as ever; always cheerful, always prosperous; a remarkable illustration of the words of the wise man "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty."

If there is one man more than another who deserves well of this community, that man is Henry H. Faxon.

WEST DISTRICT.

Carpet Buyers will do well to examine the stock of Messrs. George W. Chipman & Co., Boston, before purchasing.

Summary Intelligence.

One of the articles which Paris exports largely is the fan, the importance of the exportation being about 2,000,000 yearly.

Utah has about 80,000 Mormons, and about one-half of them are of foreign birth.

The festival given Emperor William by Berlin on his return cost the city $100,000.

A. B. Raymond of Weymouth, who was injured in the knee while playing base ball in North Bridgewater, two weeks since, will be lame for life in consequence.

It is estimated that there are forty thousand citizens of the United States in Europe this summer. They will spend at least a hundred millions of dollars while absent.

It is estimated that within the past hundred days not less than one million dollars in gold has been expended in Texas, west of the Colorado, for beavers, stock cattle and horses.

There was a heavy frost on Mount Washington last Sunday morning, the telegraph wires being covered to the size of a man's arm and broken twice near the summit.

The trains on the new road from Cohasset to South Duxbury began to run regularly last Monday. Much interest was manifested along the line.

The cost of repairs on the Boston Theatre for the last season was over fifty thousand dollars.

Plate glass of the largest size is now manufactured in this country, of a polish, finish, and clearness equal to the best French glass.

The shoe business in North Bridgewater is getting back to its former active condition, nearly every factory having all that it can do to fill the current order.

The shipment last week amounted to 1520 cases.

At a recent meeting of the First Congregational Society in East Weymouth, it was voted unanimously to extend a call to the Rev. E. P. McIlroy to become their pastor.

In the States of Iowa and Indiana about two hundred women are working farms on their own account.

The Raleigh, N. C., Sentinel vouches for "a pea-pod, of the common cornfield pea species, two feet two inches long, grown near the city."

Cucumbers thirty-six inches long are exhibited at Wyandotte.

THE NEW RAILROAD.

A meeting of the corporators of the proposed Plymouth County Railroad was held at the town hall in Hingham on Saturday last. The meeting was called to order by David Whiton of Hingham, and R. T. Fogg of South Scituate was chosen secretary. James M. Jacobs, of Boston, was elected chairman. The following named corporators were present: David Whiton, James M. Jacobs, John Federhen, Andrew C. Cushing, Amasa Whitling and E. T. Fogg.

It was voted to accept and adopt the charter of the Plymouth County Railroad, which begins at Wollaston in Quincy, passes Quincy Point, North Weymouth, West and South Hingham, Queen Ann's Corner, West Scituate, to Scituate meeting-house. The following named persons were voted in as associates: Ebel L. Ripley, Joseph Jacobs, Albert Whitling, David Cushing, Jr., Alfred Loring, David Torrey, Jr., George H. Torrey, Crocker Wilder, Jos. Lane, Perez Simmons, Joseph Jacobs, Jr., Starks Whiton, Elijah Shute, Joseph H. Curtis, Andrew Cushing, Charles Whitling, William C. Wilder, Hawkes Fearing, Loring Jacobs and Seth Sprague. E. T. Fogg, Amasa Whitling and Alexis Torrey were chosen a committee to nominate a board of twelve directors, and report at an adjourned meeting. Perez Simmons, Hawkes Fearing and H. Farnam Smith were chosen a committee to prepare a list of by-laws and present the same at an adjourned meeting to be held at the same place, Saturday, September 2, at 4 o'clock, p. m.

COMMON QUESTIONS.

The questions now most common are—
What shall we eat and drink and wear?
In answer to the first we'll say—
Eat what will in the stomach lay;
Drink nothing that will intoxicate
Or morbid appetite create;
So reasonable prices are
Take them to RICHARDS' in Dock Square.
He'll furnish them a suit so low,
That you will be surprised, we know,
And other boys you'll send there, to,
Since so much better they can do;
So reasonable prices are
At RICHARDS', 25 DOCK SQUARE.
August 29.

The Very Best Church Music Book

Just Ready.

The Sacred Crown:

A Collection of New Hymns, Tunes, Anthems, Sentences, Notes, &amp; Chants.

For Public and Private Worship.

Together with a complete and Practical System of Elementary Instruction, written expressly for the work; a large collection of four-part songs, Duets and Choruses for Singing schools and Musical Conventions.

By H. F. Hedges.

The well known Author and Conductor of "Associate Edition of the very successful work, "Jubilate Deo," &amp;c.

One of our most popular New England Teachers.

Price $1.00; $1.25 per dozen.

The authors have spent two years in writing, arranging and selecting for this work, which, in addition to their best efforts, has a larger number, a greater variety, and a better selection of contributions than any previous Music Book of a similar character has produced. We have secured the services of a large number of Teachers and Chorists, and special terms made to Teachers and Chorists. Send in orders by mail postpaid on receipt of $1.00.

Lee &amp; Shepard, Publishers, Boston.

All that lot of land situated in the Northern part of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on Grove Hill, so called, bounded as follows, viz.:—Southerly on Church Street, there measuring 250 feet, more or less; Westerly by an irregular line on the Salt marsh of John J. Glover, or by whomsoever owned, and running from Church Street to Walnut Street; Northerly on Walnut Street, 350 feet, more or less; and Easterly on said Church Street, bounded as follows, viz.:—measuring 180 feet, more or less; containing 5,545 square feet, more or less, and containing 2,810 square feet of land situated in the Northern part of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, as described in a plan of lands at North Quincy, Nov. 5, 1864, to be sold at Public Auction, on SATURDAY, the thirtieth day of September, next, at ten o'clock, in the afternoon, on the premises, in Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, as shown on said plan; and Easterly on lot No. 18, measuring about 85 feet; and Easterly on lot No. 18, on said plan, 115 feet; and containing 2,810 square feet of land situated in the Northern part of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, as described in a certain mortgage thereof, made by Patrick Farrell to Edmund B. Taylor, dated Nov. 5, 1864, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Liber 389, Folio 291.

For the Patriot.
THE SPEAR PICNIC.

The thirty-second annual gathering of the descendants of the late Seth Spear, who passed from the mortal to the spiritual many years since, came off on the 17th inst. One hundred assembled on the ground of Mr. Littlefield, formerly the homestead. Mr. Luther Spear, aged eighty-four, the only surviving son, was present and seemed to enjoy the pleasant memorable day as well as the younger members. Some three bushels of clams with the fixings, made a most delectable chowder, which was catered by one of the party with the aid of helping hands from the merry group; which soon disappeared to gratify the sharp appetites of the sea shore visitors. Then the sail in the fine yacht John Adams was a very jolly but not a very breezy time. The long tables under the old tree were loaded with much to tempt the merry party. With a cup of good tea the other luxuries disappeared as though there had not been any chowder. After a social hour around the festive board, enlivened by jokes, the party began to separate for their respective homes, well satisfied with the picnic and the very pleasant day.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT. Last Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Benjamin Clapp, of Dorchester, with her daughter and child, of Milton, while riding out, were thrown from their buggy by the fright of the horse.—Mrs. Clapp struck on her head, and was badly cut and bruised, and lay insensible for half an hour. She was conveyed to the residence of Mr. A. Hobbs, and medical aid obtained. Later in the afternoon she was able to be removed to her residence in Dorchester. Her daughter received a slight wound and bruise. The child escaped unhurt.

PERSONAL. The French Consul at Boston, M. Nettemer, and his wife, are residing in Quincy for a few days, the guests of Earl Marble, on South street.

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

THE Trustees of the FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY,
would take this opportunity to inform the
public, that several large and valuable donations
of books have already been made to the Library,
by the Adams Literary Association, by the Adams family, Dr. Stinson, and others, amounting to about twelve hundred volumes.
It is believed that many of our citizens have not been made aware of the existence of this institution, and that they would be glad to have
it. It is not convenient, to notify the Trustees, they will be called for. By thus doing, this institution, free to all, will be greatly benefited.
C. A. FOSTER,
Quincy July 1. Sec. Trustees Public Library.

Poetry.

[From the Boston Transcript.]
MUSICAL MUSINGS.

BY JOHN J. GLOVER

An old, familiar song of youth
Comes floating on the breeze;
But strange lips speak the well-known words,
And strange hands sweep the keys.
A tidal wave from memory's sea
Breaks o'er my pulsing soul;
It hurls me back to bygone scenes
With force beyond control.

In fancy I can grasp the hands
Of long-lost friends again;
The voice so dear, yet so long mute,
Takes up the sweet refrain.
But pensive twilight kindly draws
Her veil of dusty gray,
And hides the holy tears of thought
From vulgar gaze away.

Thus often moves athwart my mind
Associations' train;
And sighs of yore bring back old friends
Linked in a golden chain.
Oh! would that all the chords of life
In melody could sweep;
No note discordant e'er could thrill
Our heart-strings centered deep.

Alas! such undeveloped soul
Sinks, in a diff'ring strain,
The harp-strings of its fellow-life
With flashing of its brain.
Shall never pure accord return
To echoes on this shore!
Or must we wait the blissful sphere
Where discord is no more?

North Quincy, Mass., August, 1871.

Interesting Selections.

BAKED PEACHES. Cut the peaches
in two, remove the stone, having first wiped the fruit well. With a paste cutter (if you want something fanciful, otherwise simple squares will do) cut some slices of bread. On each piece place half a peach, skin side down, dust well with sugar, put a tiny piece of butter on each, and bake slowly. When done, dish them and turn the juice over, if any—Otherwise add a drop of pears and serve warm. Apricots and plums may be served likewise.

A state fair is a queen; an agricultural fair is a farmer's daughter;
a church fair is a person's wife; a soldier's fair is the best-looking girl he can get hold of; a charity fair is a female pauper;
and the most unpopular fair in the universe is boarding-house fare.

A noble anger at wrong makes all our softer feelings warmer, as a warm climate add strength to spices.

A head properly constituted can accommodate itself to whatever pillows
the vicissitudes of fortune may place under it.

Prentice says man was the chief consideration at the creation. Woman was only "a side issue."

Rehearse not unto another that which is told to thee, and thou shalt fare
never the worse.

It is as great mercy to be preserved in health as to be delivered from sickness.

A newly-fledged Philadelphia
doctor recently settled in Havana, Ill.,
and the first case he had was a boy, who,
while shelling pop-corn, got a kernel in his windpipe. The doctor examined the case carefully, looked at the patient's tongue, and then told the father of the boy
to build a hot fire. When that was done,
the doctor told them to take the boy and hold him over the fire until the kernel got hot enough to "pop out." The old man went up stairs and got his shot-gun,
but while he was loading it the doctor escaped.

Not many years ago a certain
Vermont church was in need of a pastor.
One Sabbath the minister supplying the pulpit, well known for his eccentric turn of mind, prayed for "a man for the Lord" in this fashion: "Send us not an old man in his dotage nor a young man in his gossamerhood, but a man with all the modern improvements."

"Come, don't be timid" said a couple of foolish snobs to two mechanics;
"sit down and make yourself our equals."
"We should have to blow out our brains
to do that," was the reply.

"This is capital ale!" said an old
toper; "see how long it keeps its head."
"Ay," said a bystander; "but consider how soon it takes away yours!"

Bible promises are like the beams of the sun, which shine as freely in at the window of the poor man's cottage as at the rich man's palace.

Weigh every step you are about to take whenever the passions become involved. How often do things assume a different aspect when they are fairly considered.

up an old grammar, which one of the children dropped into the trough, recommends the feed, as he finds that the animal thoroughly minds its steps.

Miscellany.

"DON'T TELL BETSY JANE."

"And, for your life, don't tell Betsy Jane!"

Mr. Nicodemus Harding, having uttered this caution in a low, earnest tone
of voice, alighted from a Concord wagon
in front of his own farm house door, and stood there a few moments in a brown
study, watching the figure of his brother-in-law and lawyer, as he drove back toward the village of W—, whence the two men had just come.

"Don't tell Betsy Jane!"

Now, Betsy Jane was Mr. Nicodemus
Harding's wife—a stirring, notable soul,
who made more butter and cheese, and took more eggs and fowls to the market
in the course of the season, than any other woman for miles around. Strong, healthy and hearty, she "made the house
work fly," to use her own energetic expression; and if Nicodemus Harding owned his farm that day, and was a
"well-to-do," in fact a rich man to boot,
it was owing in no small measure to the skill and energy and economy and general
go-ahead-iveness of his Betsy Jane.

What was it, then, that the ungrateful
man was not about to tell her?

"It would never do, never!" thought Nicodemus to himself, shaking his head,
"She'd be wanting a new carpet, or a new silk gown, or the house all painted over, or some such nonsense. No, the woman is the weaker vessel, and it won't do to trust one to far. Their heads won't bear it."

So Mr. Nicodemus passed through the house, and out towards the barn with the preoccupied air of a hen who has an egg
to lay, and don't know where she can hide
it from the eyes of mankind to the best advantage. The kitchen was empty and silent as he went through it. But oh!
if he could but have seen the buxom,
good looking female who stole silently out of the pantry, and as silently followed him on his way to the barn.

Mrs. Harding came back in about twenty minutes or so, with a face red from suppressed laughter.

"Don't tell Betsy Jane," she said,
giggling into her gingham apron.

"You are a very smart man, Nicode-mus, and my brother, Tim Noyes, is another, and a lawyer, in the bargain—
Don't tell Betsy Jane, indeed! Two wretches, you deserve all you'll get pretty soon."

Betsy Jane said no more, but bided her time. A week passed away, and then brother Tim's wagon drove up again to the door, and Nicodemus stepped into
it, and was off to the village once more.

Nicodemus was bound on business—
"business which a woman could not understand" he loftily exclaimed. He, lord and master, well out of sight, Betsy Jane went about that business a woman could not understand, with a merry twinkle in her bright black eyes.

At 4 P. M., Nicodemus returned home again, looking quite as important as before. He tip-toed along through the kitchen, Betsy Jane watching him from the corner of her eye the while. He passed out into the shed. A fragrant smell of smoke came forward to greet him—an odor of burning corn cobs
gradually curing him.

Nicodemus turned deadly pale, and ran frantically forward, to a large fire smouldering in the ash-house, and a large hen
or two, covered over by blankets, hanging placidly there. The yell he gave brought Betsy Jane from the house instantly, to find Nicodemus groveling before the ash-house door, weeping and wailing and tearing his hair, and uttering yell after yell of despair.

"Why, bless me! what's the matter?
are you in a fit? Let me run for the camphor!" shrieked Betsy Jane.

"Camphor? Bring arsenic? Bring prussic acid! Bring poison of some kind, poison—poison!" yelled Nicodemus frantically.

"Woman, you've ruined me! Twelve thousand dollars in government bonds
did I put in that ash-hole for safety just a week ago, and you've gone and burnt
them to cinders!"

"Pison! pison! And let me get out of the dreary world!"

"Oh—so that was what you were not going to tell Betsy Jane! Aren't you ashamed of yourself, Nicodemus Harding?"

Nicodemus could not answer. He said to have been cast in France in 1476.

It was removed to the tower of London,

in 1684, and returned to Scotland, by
Geo. IV. in 1829, amid great rejoicing.
The crown room contains the regalia of the old monarchs of Scotland. The crown was on the head of Robert Bruce, Queen Mary, her son James VI, and her grandson, Charles I. The sword was a gift of Pope Julius II to James IV.
The castle is garrisoned now by a Scotch regiment, dressed (or rather half dressed)
in their highland costume.

But enough for the castle. Turning your eye to left along the brow of the hill, notice the antique Scotch appearance of the old houses, six, eight and ten stories high, and apparently one on top of the other. That is what is called the old town. We are divided from it by a deep gulch through which the railways pass. The large arches support the bridges, which connect the old and new town. That quaint old tower, is as old as it appears. St. Giles Church is contained by Maitland and Arnot in their histories to have been erected in 854.
It has been divided into three churches,
but the old tower stands in all its ancient symmetry. Inside you will be shown the place, where John Knox preached.
Back of this church is the old Parliament
house, and two or three squares beyond,
is the University and the Museum, most practical in its arrangements and collections. The Iron Church comes next to the left, where among other things, stands
the altar at which the actual Annie Laurie was married. Still further down the Canongate, which many Americans claim
as the strangest street in Europe, stands
the house where John Knox lived. Over the door these words appear cut on the stone, "Lufe God abvie al, and yinychbour as yiself." Argyles Balcony, the Tolbooth prison, with the old whipping post still standing on the side walk, the birth place of Scott, the room where Burns first stopped, and many such places, give this locality an historic interest. Canongate, centuries ago, was the aristocratic street of the city. It is anything else now. Yet it is kept quite clean, as Edinburgh, has the name and deserves it, of being the best paved and cleanest city in Europe. Even the lowest classes seem intelligent and obliging.
They also keep the Sabbath with unsurpassed propriety.

The hill or mountain we see to the left is called Arthur's Seat, from which a fine view of all the surrounding country is obtained, well described by Scott, in his "Chronicles of the Canongate." Near the base is the celebrated Holyrood Palace, which has a romantic origin by King David. The most interesting rooms, are the picture gallery, one hundred and fifty feet long, with one hundred and six pictures, said to be of Scottish Kings, who lived from Fergus 330 years before the Christian era. The room of Mary, Queen of Scots, with bed and bedding nearly decayed, and chairs worked by her own hands, and her maids of honor; also the spot where Rizzio was killed. The chambers are all decorated with enormous needle work pictures, with figures life size. They must unmistakably be very old, and yet some colors are quite bright.

The chapel is of interest, as being the
burial place of several crowned heads,
and as a ruin of a mixed Norman and Gothic architecture. The palace fountain, at the entrance is new, but a copy of the old Linlithgow palace fountain, and cost about $8,000. By patting our heads out of the window a little, we can see to the extreme left, Calton Hill. On it, we see the Nelson Monument, one hundred feet high, also the National Monument, begun in 1822, and designed to be an exact model of the Parthenon,
at Athens, as a memorial of those who fell at Waterloo? It is not finished, but gives a very picturesque appearance to hill and city. This small hill, in the heart of the city, also contains Monuments of Dugald Stewart, and John Fairplay; also the old and new Observatory,
below, on the south side of the hill,
stands the High School, built in 1829,
and is a perfect copy of the Greek Architecture. Here Lord Brougham, Jeffray, and Sir Walter Scott, were educated. The large collection of castellated towers, a little nearer to us, belong to the prison. Back of that, is the Burns Monument, in which are the Burns relics.

There is yet more to see, but it would be wearisome, to attempt more now. Edinburgh, is called the "modern Athens,"

and certainly by its buildings, monuments, and natural resemblance, if not by its philosophic advancement, it has prior claims than "the Hub." Had as been my hurried description, I trust that you have seen enough, from "my room at Edinburgh," to desire to be here at the celebration to-morrow, of the one hundredth anniversary of Scott's birthday. If so, "What is it worth?"

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 2, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

A VAGABOND NEGRO. For a few weeks past efforts, thus far unsuccessful, have been made to capture a vagabond negro, who has been prowling about in the swamps and woods in the north part of this town, lying west of the residence of John J. Glover, Esq. He roasts here and there, and other depredations committed on the premises of several residents in the vicinity, including those of Mr. Glover, Mr. Farrell, Mr. Buck on the Granite Bridge Road and others. Articles have also been taken from the Old Colony Railroad. From the premises of Mr. Buck, in addition to fowls, axes, pails, &c., abstracted, the canvass was cut from the top of a wagon standing in his enclosure, portions of which were found in proximity to the negro's camping ground. The Boston Police (of the 16th Ward) have a warrant for his arrest for articles abstracted on that side of the river, and have made several attempts to capture him but he has managed to elude their vigilance, brooding his chickens in the night-time to avoid detection by the uprising of smoke, and concealing himself in the swampy undergrowth upon the near approach of visitors. A white man also was seen associating with him at times. As his camp appears to have been deserted for a week or more, and no further thefts have been committed within this time, it is thought, that in consequence of sharp pursuit, he has changed his quarters for a time at least to some other locality.

ACCIDENT. The daily papers, during the last two months, have been filled with accounts of accidents, happening on land and water. Never were there more lives lost, we think, from accidents or carelessness, in so short a space of time. But the most painful disaster that has happened in this State for many years, occurred on Saturday evening last, on the Eastern Railroad, at Revere, formerly North Chelsea. Two trains left Boston, only some fifteen minutes variation in time—first an accommodation followed by express—and on arriving at Revere the latter run into the former just as it was starting from the depot—killing some twenty-five and wounding as many more. The accident was caused by gross carelessness, not wholly by any one individual, but several were partly to blame. From the Coroner's inquest, there is not much doubt but both Conductors were at fault, but the verdict of the jury has not yet been given.

GRAND EXCURSION. We would call attention to Perham's Grand Excursion to Plymouth on Tuesday next, by the splendid steamer Stamford. This is one of the grandest trips offered our citizens this season, and we doubt not will be well patronized. The sail will be delightful, and the many attractions at Plymouth make it worthy of a visit from any of our readers. We shall endeavor to be present, and hope to see many more from Quincy and vicinity enjoying it. For full particulars see notice in another column.

BRAINTREE. Died at the north part of the town, Mr. Benjamin D. Ryan, aged 71 years, an old and faithful member of the democratic party. His last days were his best; for in them he was led to trust in a merciful Saviour for life beyond the river.

The friends of Mr. John Kimball met at his residence on Saturday last, to unite with him in celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage. Mr. Kimball makes one of eight, who live within a short distance of each other, and who have passed the golden era in their matrimonial life.

The Braitree Brass Band visited Mr. J. E. Holbrook and other friends at Strawberry Hill, last Thursday evening, and after enjoying themselves, and furnishing some very fine music for their friends, returned home about 2 o'clock Friday morning, much refreshed by the chowder, etc., furnished by their hosts.

AUCTION. Joseph W. Lombard Esq., sells on Tuesday next, at the residence of Rev. George W. Skinner, on Mill street a nice lot of household furniture. For particulars see notice.

THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP. The September number of this entertaining magazine is before us. It is very instructive and attractive, and is sold at Southern's periodical store in the Square for ten cents. Quite cheap but very good.

Rev. T. J. Sawyer of Tufts College will preach in the Universalist Church to-morrow afternoon, at the usual service hour, 2 1-2 o'clock.

The Sabbath School will be held in the morning, as formerly, commencing at 10 o'clock.

CLOSING STORES. Some twenty or more persons, comprising most of the dry goods, grocery and other store keepers, in the centre and south part of the town, have signed an agreement to close their places of business, during the fall and winter months, at 8 o'clock each evening, except Saturday.

COMING. Dr. Bragg, who is so successful in his treatment of diseases of the Eye, Ear, Heart, Lungs, Throat, and Catarrh, will be in Quincy, at Hancock House on Monday, Sept. 11th. The afflicted who are suffering from any disease of those organs should avail themselves of his skillful services.

NEW STORE. It will be seen by our advertising columns, that Mr. George Saville has started a new store in the Square, for the accommodation of our citizens, in clothing, hats, caps, boots, shoes, &c. It looks inviting to see an old familiar face once more behind the counter. We well remember the large clothing business he did a score of years ago, when the most of our citizens who were in want of any garments gave him their patronage. Read his advertisements and give him a call, and it will seem like the good old times, when clothing was cheap and plenty.

BASE BALL. The first of a series of three games, between the Aetives of this town, and the Aetives, Jr. of South Weymouth, will be played on the grounds at South Quincy, this afternoon, at half past three o'clock.

Any of our citizens, who use a lead pencil often, will find at Southern's periodical store, an excellent sharpener for eight cents, that appears to be durable and good. We like it much.

FRUIT. Pears in this town and vicinity this season are unusually plenty and good. The grapevines are loaded with handsome bunches, and if the weather continues favorable, there will be an immense quantity this fall. Most kinds have commenced ripening, and some variety will be excellent in a few weeks. The apple crop is nearly a total failure.

THE FOLIO. The September number is upon our table. It contains the new popular song, entitled "Please Let My Brother Go!" by the author of "Put Me In My Little Bed!" also the "Mountain of Ice March," by H. J. Bennett, together with a fine portrait of JESSY LIND. The reading matter is as interesting as usual, George Lowell Austin's story, "Louise and the Wooden Shoe" being concluded in this number. The new humorous writer, Eph Moggins, contributes a funny sketch, and there are several original poems by well-known writers. The Folio is a marvel of cheapness, being sold by all news-dealers at ten cents a copy. It is published by White, Smith & Perry, Boston, at one dollar a year.

For the Patriot.
WESTERN CORRESPONDENCE.

RED ROCK, KS., JULY 31.
Kansas has not only "cattle on a thousand hills," but a thousand cattle on a hill. Abilene, Salina and Brookville, are the great cattle markets of Kansas, if not of the whole Western States. Millions of cattle are driven from Texas to these places, though the business was commenced but four years ago. We have just read the advertisement of a Mr. Forehand in the Salina Herald, who offers 3000 head of Texas cattle for sale. There are a great many others who deal as largely as he. There is a gentleman in this neighborhood, who came from Wisconsin about four months ago. He has bought a thousand head of cattle, built a corral on the government reserve land, and herds them here. He will double his money in one year. Many have made fortunes in this way—it costs nothing to keep them but the herding, some salt, and five hundred pounds of prairie hay to the head, for the coldest weather in winter. One man kept 800 head here last winter without feeding any hay. It is however, better to put up hay. It costs nothing but the cutting and stacking—and can be cut on any of the bottom lands. The cattle are kept here until they are fat and then sold at the same places and sent east by rail.

A gentleman from Milford, Mass., has a large herd on the frontier. He has lately been troubled with a herd of buffalo, that frighten and stampede his stock; and he has captured six buffalo calves, and has them for sale. We could name many others in the business from other States. The best stock fatteners are from Massachusetts. The business requires one's close attention with little labor. When we want something to do, we go hunting buffalo, which gives new life and furnishes plenty of excitement.

We have buffalo, antelope and one elk, in this township; for pets; they are easily domesticated. The buffalo is the most troublesome; being stubborn, and often compelling us to turn out of the road for him. Yet when tamed he is harmless and persists in staying round the door, and will come in and upset things if he can get the chance. The antelope is the favorite pet of all, he will follow one like a dog, and is never in the way. These were all captured young and fed on cow milk.

One of our neighbors went out for a load of wood, and when some distance from his house, found a very young elk, which he took in his wagon and brought home. It feeds well and will eat nothing but milk, warm from the cow. This is the only one I have heard of being captured, though they are sometimes shot for their meat and for the sport; but it is rather expensive on account of the time spent and the travel to get near enough to shoot them. From the Roxbury Gazette.
THE SAILORS' SNUG HARBOR.

Those who were present at the Military Camp at Weymouth recently could have a fine view of the Sailors' Snug Harbor, at Germantown in Quincy, on the opposite side of the channel. This very excellent charitable Institution was founded in 1852, for the benefit of poor and enfeebled seamen retired from the merchant service. It was established by the liberality of the merchants of Boston, and others interested in the welfare of those whose lives are mostly spent on the ocean, with a view to provide food, shelter, clothing, medical and surgical aid and religious instruction, without money and without price, for men who for years have manned our ships, and whose health has been more or less sacrificed by toils and hardships, and exposure on shipboard and in malarious climates, or who are suffering from the infirmities of old age.

The promontory on which the Sailors' Snug Harbor is so pleasantly situated, is about two miles from the railroad station in Quincy—and may be reached by a walk or a ride over a charming and inviting road. There is attached to the Institution about 80 acres of well cultivated land—and the buildings furnish accommodations and comforts, which the beneficiaries, after many years of toil, peril and deprivation, can well appreciate. There are now receiving the benefits of this Institution forty-one individuals, mostly aged men whose brown complexions and furrowed cheeks, and angular features, show that they have had a full share of the "rough and tumble" of life. But they all seem thankful that they have found this haven of rest in their old age—where they can prepare for the last great change.

The Sailors' Snug Harbor is managed by a Board of twenty-five Trustees, of which Albert Fearing is President, J. Francis Tuckerman Secretary and William A. Wellman, Treasurer. This charity is of a character which must commend itself to the favor of a generous public. We learn that its income is not sufficient to defray its expenses, and donations of any amount will be gratefully received.

For the Patriot.
A CELLAR PRISON FOR CHILDREN.

"Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight, Make me a child again just for to-night." Give us back again also, Good Father Time, the school accommodations of those youthful days, when due consideration was paid to the requirements of health, even if our backs suffered by the uncomfortable uprightness of the seats and forms. Give us back the days when schoolrooms were constructed above ground, and God's genial sunshine entered with its cheerful healthgiving influence. Alas! we live in an age, where economy (?) is the transcendent idea in the administration of public affairs even to the exclusion of healthful conditions. If any one doubts the truthfulness of this statement let him visit the cellar of the North District School House and witness the preparations that are being made therein for the accommodations of the children of that District.

As all cannot make a personal inspection of the premises, suffice it to say that the north-east wall of the cellar has been removed to facilitate ingress and egress, and a room six and a half feet in height by actual measurement, is being fitted up for the use of the school. In order to attain even this inadequate height, the floor sills (joists three inches by four in dimension) are embedded in the earth, the latter in most cases coming immediately in contact with the flooring—thus interposing no space of air to prevent the percolation of dampness from the soil. Two sides of the room will be formed of the cellar wall of stone, inclined to gather dampness although they may be sheathed over, the remainder of the cellar being cut off from the other side by an inch partition. No provision for ventilation is made for this room six and a half feet in height, wherein are to be congregated the inmates of the primary school—children of the tenderest years. The only alternative, even in winter, will be to admit the chilling blasts, from the northern points of the compass, directly through an open window.

Verily, school matters are progressing crabfashion in the North District. Two or three years ago the town appropriated some six thousand dollars for the construction of a new schoolhouse in the district, but by some mishap intentional or otherwise, failed to provide for a site. A year rolled on and instead of providing for the deficiency, the entire appropriation was revoked, leaving school accommodations in statu quo. Thus matters have remained until the citizens of the district have been surprised by the sudden disruption of the cellar wall to make a room, as they find upon inquiry, for the accommodation or rather dis-accommodation of their little ones.

Much indignation is manifested throughout the neighborhood and we think the public will say justly, when they take into consideration the height of the room, its entire lack of ventilation, its direct north or north-east exposure, without entry, storm-door, or the like, to break off sudden blasts, its floor laid upon the ground with insufficient drainage, its stone walls, etc.

Various surmises have been raised. Some have ungenerously intimated that the School Committee veiled with continual clamor for increased accommodations have adopted this plan to obviate any future annoyance; relying on its unhealthful conditions to prevent all future increase of population. Others are wondering whether the Board of Health are conniving for a job—and some are querying whether the nomenclature of the school divisions will be changed to Grammar, Intermediate and Cellar. Some in extension, argue the new schoolroom will really be no worse than some habitations that can be found among the lowest class of population.

Jesting aside, the proposed new schoolroom in the North District is vastly below the sanitary standard and quite unworthy of the time-honored town of Quincy.

NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION. The Fortieth Exhibition of the Industries of our land, to be held by the American Institute in the immense structure bounded by Second and Third avenues and Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets, New York, from September 7th to November 4th, promises to be far in advance of anything hitherto attempted on this continent. Artists, Artisans, Inventors, Manufacturers, Horticulturists, and others, are rapidly forwarding their applications for space in which to exhibit something novel, wonderful, beautiful or useful in the various departments. The best and most recent triumphs of American skilled products, as well as the latest and most approved methods of manufacture, in actual operation—will there be seen at their best. It will be a sight that none should miss. The heavy machinery is already being set in place.

Leaders of Choirs and Musical Conventions are invited to examine the new book of Mr. Leonard Marshall, well known as an author and musical conductor. It is highly praised by competent judges.

MASONIC FUNERAL. Mr. Jacob F. Eaton, whom we mentioned last week, as being dangerously sick, expired on Tuesday last, much to the regret and sorrow of a large circle of relatives and friends. He had through energy acquired considerable property and influence; and has held public offices of honor and trust. His funeral took place yesterday afternoon, under the escort of the Rural Lodge of Free Masons, of which the deceased was a member, preceded by the Quincy Brass Band, and was very largely attended.

JUST AS IT USED TO BE.

The girls keep fussing o'er the beaux,
They dress themselves each night and go
To some party, ball, or other spree;
But it's just the same as it used to be.

The old folks send the boys to bed,
But out of the window, over the shed,
They go to the ground for a little spree;
But it's just the same as it used to be.

The damsels old, they fume and fret;
They say they never saw such a set
Of girls as these—"they make so free,"
But they're just like the girls that used to be.

The old men say the boys won't do;
They say they never saw such a set
Of girls as these—"they make so free,"
But they're just like the boys that used to be.

'Tis a new deal in a very old game,
And I think it will always be the same;
So have your fan 'fore youth doth flee,
For it's just the same as it used to be.

HARDENING CUCUMBER PICKLES.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says:—Alum will harden cucumbers. To a gallon of vinegar, add one ounce of powdered alum. If the vinegar is put into bottles tightly corked, and set in a kettle of cold water, with hay or straw between them to keep the bottles from knocking together, and allowed to remain over the fire until the water boils, then removed, and kept in the kettle until nearly cool, the vinegar will keep perfectly clear when used for pickles; and it should be added to them cold. Shreds of horse radish root will prevent all pickles from moulding.

PICKLING CUCUMBERS.

We find the following recipes published as selected matter and uncredited in an exchange. They are reasonable and we give them:

No. 1. Take cucumbers, wipe them clean, and lay them into stone jars. Allow one quart of coarse salt to a barrel of water; boil the salt and water till the salt is dissolved; let it boil long on the cucumbers; cover them up tight and let them stand for twenty-four hours; turn them into a basket to drain. Boil as much best cider vinegar as will cover the cucumbers; wash out the jars and put the cucumbers into them; turn the vinegar on boiling hot; cover them with cabbage leaves and cover them tight. In forty-eight hours they will be fit for use.

No. 2. Pick cucumbers each morning, let them stand in weak brine three or four days, putting in mustard pods and horse radish leaves to keep them green. Then take out and drain, covering with vinegar for a week; at which time take out and drain again, putting in new vinegar, adding mustard seed, ginger root, cloves, pepper and red pepper pods, of each about one or two cucumbers, to suit different tastes, for each barrel.

The vinegar must be changed once, as the large amount of water in the cucumber reduces the vinegar so much that this change is absolutely necessary, and if they should seem to lose their sharp taste again, just add a little molasses or spirit, and all will be right.

The Massachusetts Ploughman says:—The great art in getting good pickles is to have good vinegar to begin with, the best of course being that made of good sound cider. As this is not always at hand it is best to prepare a brine strong enough to bear an egg. When the tub is full of pickles let the brine cover them. Then cover them over with cabbage leaves and a board and weight to keep them down in the brine. When they are ready for use you can freshen them in warm water and put them in a bright brass kettle, with vinegar enough to cover them, and scald them for fifteen or twenty minutes then put them in jars and pour hot vinegar over them. They can easily be flavored with cloves, mace, black pepper, an onion or two, and a little horse radish and ginger. Good pickles are a great luxury.

Sulphur is valuable in protecting grapes from insects.

Anecdotes.

As a number of convicts were recently taken through one of the streets of London, in chains, destined for a transport ship, they were laughing and keeping their spirits up, which latter fact led a gentleman to comment: "Heavens! how these poor wretches be joyous under such circumstances?"

One of the culprits, hearing the remark, wittily rejoined: "Joyous? ay, so we are, sir; and if you would but come along with us, you would be quite transported."

A general rector of a village parish in Minnesota found it difficult to get his salary promptly. Latterly it was much behind. Going to one of his delinquent parishioners in the hardware trade, he looked over all his stock of corkscrews very fastidiously, seeking a large one of peculiar strength and size. To the inquiry, "What do you want of such a thing anyhow?" the answer came: "My dear sir, I want a corkscrew that can draw my salary!"

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

THE Trustees of the FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY, would take this opportunity to inform the public, that several large and valuable donations of books have already been made to the Library, by the Adams Literary Association, by the Adams family, Dr. E. S. Sutton, and others, amounting to about twelve hundred volumes.

It is believed that many of our citizens have bound volumes, suitable for circulation, which they would be glad to donate. All such persons are invited to do so; and if they will leave such bound volumes at the Adams Academy, or, if this is not convenient, will notify the Trustees, they will be called for. By thus doing, this Institution, free to all, will be greatly benefited.

PROGRESS.

Does the earth contain one spirit

Bowed dependent to the dust,

On the midnight of whose vision

Beams no star of hope and trust?

Let that soul but pause and ponder

On the works the past has done,

And in earnest bright and glorious,

For the future shall be won.

For the soul must feel the stirring

Of its destiny sublime,

Who but rightly views the present,

With its earnest heart and mind;

Telling in the earthly vineyard

Many hands have found a place;

Some are reaping to the summit—

Some are at the mountain's base.

Progress is the stirring watchword—

Cheers them upward to the height;

Can't thou pause and play the laggard

With its glories fall in sight;

And while fair, and broad, and glorious,

In our vision we can see,

Still the future brightly stretching

Into fair infinity.

Who shall tell what heeds or barrier</

SATURDAY, SEPT. 9, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

EXCURSION TO PLYMOUTH.

Many of our citizens improved the opportunity offered by Mr. Perham of visiting Plymouth by water, on Tuesday last. The fine Steamer Stamford having been engaged for the occasion, some three to four hundred persons collected at Rowe's wharf, Boston, a little after nine in the morning, where they found everything in readiness for a grand excursion.

A few minutes after the appointed hour for starting, the signal was given, and the Steamer glided from the wharf and down the harbor, as smoothly and majestically as if it were a thing of life; carrying its gay and happy party on one of the pleasantest trips ever enjoyed by any excursionists to that far-famed Pilgrim Rock.

As the boat moved on, we had a chance to pass among the company and see of whom it was composed. Nearly the first familiar face that we noticed was our excellent and worthy physician, Dr. Morrison, who was accompanied by his wife. How fortunate, thought we, accidents are common now days, and his practical skill may be of service; but we were happily disappointed; no explosion or accident occurred to mar the day's journey.

We next met Capt. Lewis Bass, a gentleman well advanced in years, yet as straight, smart and spry as the youngest. Then we noticed still another face more advanced in this rugged journey of life, who has seen upwards of four score years, and who appeared to be enjoying the trip equally as well as the best—few were happier, in our judgment, than Mr. John Souther.

But there were some fifty from this place, and our space or time will not permit even a passing notice of each.

We soon passed Fort Winthrop on our left and Fort Independence on our right, and proceeding directly out through the main Ship Channel, soon passed Long Island, Lovell's, Gallop's and George's Island, and found ourselves at sea. The Stamford which had moved very easily up to this point, now began to toss and pitch a little, which reminded some of the party that the fishes were getting hungry, when quite a number went to the side of the boat and seemed quite disposed to supply them—even to all they had had for breakfast.

Although it was a very delightful and calm day, many of the party were more or less affected by the swell of the ocean. After a sail of about three hours we came to Plymouth harbor, where the Steamer was obliged to move with the utmost caution and slowness, as it was near low tide. We finally reached the wharf which was near the sacred rock, and we went immediately to it on landing. We found it covered with a very beautiful and costly granite Canopy. We now proceeded to the Winslow House, where we found a good dinner ready for the party. This house is very ancient, having been framed in England, and shipped to Plymouth one hundred and sixty-four years ago, by Gov. Winslow. The gentlemanly proprietor, Dr. Seavey, Esq., keeps it in good taste, and makes his visitors feel quite at home. We next visited the Pilgrim Hall, where enough was found to interest us for hours, but time would not permit. We now wended our way to the ancient cemetery, where we busied ourselves in examining the antique gravestones. On one, erected to the memory of Fannie, daughter of Calvin Crombie, aged eight years, we read the following singular lines:—

As young as beautiful, as soft as young,
As gay as soft, and innocent as gay.

Another erected to the memory of a little boy had the following:—

God knows what man he might have made,
But we, he died a most rare boy.

We saw what was said to be the oldest stone in the cemetery, which was erected to the memory of a person who died in 1681.

There is much to be seen in Plymouth that is interesting and instructive, and we would advise our readers, to visit the place, the first favorable opportunity.

The public are truly indebted to Mr. Perham for the many fine excursions arranged and successfully carried out by him, and we hope he may be able to furnish many more.

FAIR. A few of the Misses, who take an interest in the Public Town Library, have collected quite a quantity of fancy, ornamental and useful articles, which they will endeavor to sell at a fair, at the house of Mr. S. F. Guild, on Spear street, this afternoon and evening. Visitors will find many chromos, some bronzes, and other articles well worth their attention. We hope our citizens will by their presence and patronage encourage these young Misses, and reward them for their labor.

BLEEDING KANSAS.

RED ROCK, KS., AUG. 19.

The rich and unoccupied prairies offer such inducements to the emigrant, that they come here pell-mell, by thousands. Very few understand the homestead and pre-emption acts, and the old settlers are anxious to get all comers to settle near them, to enhance the value of their farms. As a natural result a great many mistakes arise. Some in the haste to gobble up the best land, get their claims located miles from the place they intended, and give the government land agent great trouble to set them right. Sometimes two lay claim to the same lot and have law contests over it, and frequently spend more than the claim is worth. A man took a claim, a short time ago, under the pre-emption act but left a screw loose somewhere; a second party hearing of this, took advantage of it, and jumped the claim. No. 1 said he was a poor man, and had not money to spend in a lawsuit, and thought the cheapest way to rid himself of the man, and of expense, would be to shoot him. So taking the law in his own hands, he goes deliberately up to the man and tells him to leave or he will shoot him; he refused to leave and was shot dead on the spot, and buried by him.

The sympathies of the neighbors were for No. 1, and no notice has been taken of the shooting affair, and I doubt if there ever will be.

We are not entirely free from mob law yet,—being near the frontier we hear of rough times. Early in the spring three thieves, murderous wild Indians came to a settlement about fifty miles above here, and after lying in ambush awhile managed to steal and get away with three horses, some provisions and other things. News of the affair spread as by telegraph. The settlers rose as one man, pursued and overtook them, took the stolen property, and left poor Indian in a horizontal position.

The eastern people have far too much sympathy for the Indians. It seems to me, if the Government could leave the settlement of the Indian troubles, to the settlers that they would make shorter work of it. Government has been very lenient towards them,—supplying them with the best of arms, ammunition, &c., which they use to shoot unoffending settlers. Not a year passes without its massacres. Families who have lived here three years have suffered untold miseries. Sons and daughters, husbands, wives and neighbors have been murdered. I could fill your paper with accounts that I have heard of their murders and massacres.

The Pawnees are a half-civilized tribe living on a reservation, and supposed to be friendly, but facts prove them to be very different. They are great thieves and robbers. The Government built good stone houses for them; but when they come into possession, they put their ponies into them, and live in bush themselves. About eighty of them made a raid through this county in June, 1866. Mrs. Tosier, a lady from Maine, informs me that they came to her house, and compelled her to cook all the provisions she had, which they devoured like dogs,—eating and oiling their hair out of the same plate. After taking whatever they wished they started off, without doing any further injury,—leaving them to breathe freely again.

Thank my good stars those scenes are passed, never to be re-enacted in this place, and towns and cities are springing up like magic. More anon. C. C. F.

PERSONAL. Rev. George Newcomb, our late townsman, who is on a visit to Quincy, is looking remarkably well. We are pleased to learn that President Grant has appointed Mr. Newcomb, Collector of the U. S. Customs, at Beaufort, South Carolina.

The rate of taxation in Lynn, this year, is $19.60 per thousand. Three dollars higher than they are here. In Portland, $25 on a thousand; and we notice by statements in our exchanges that the inhabitants of many towns and cities are burdened with taxes as high or higher than they are in Quincy.

THE FALL TRADE. Business in Boston has begun to be quite active and there is a prospect of a good trade this fall. The rush from the mountains and seashore to the city and suburbs has been greater the present week than usual. It is said that all the summer hotels have done a large and profitable business. The Profile House, one of the largest at the White Mountains, and which looked to us, a few weeks since while stopping there, as if it had been added to, at least a dozen times, is to be enlarged during the coming winter. The house is but three stories high, but covers immense grounds, which makes it more comfortable for weary travellers to find their "sky parlors," after a long day's journey among the mountains.

For the Patriot.

NOTES FROM CAPE COD.

Till lately we supposed the Cape a mere sand bar, with little or no attractiveness to the summer traveler. The past year has corrected the impression. We see now why the trains over the Old Colony and Cape Cod road are steadily increasing in number and length. Aside from the pleasures of boating and bathing, fishing and sailing, are delightful rides and places of historic interest which must prove entertaining to all.

COTTAGE PORT.

One of these places which combine the loveliness of the country with the charms of the sea. You leave Boston, 8 A. M. or 4 P. M. and leave the cars at West Barnstable, 69 miles from Boston, and take seven miles ride in a pleasant carriage and over a smooth road to the Santuit House, on an elevation by the sea. The next three weeks, by the way, are the finest season to enjoy this resort. Sunday last was as perfect a day as one can imagine. From the broad piazzas and eastern lawn the sunrise and moonlight views were delightful. The Indian village, Kanomet and Wakobey Lakes are in the vicinity within easy ride. The beach is free from rocks, the slope very gentle and the water warm on account of the sheltered situation. Hon. Charles Sumner, U. S. Senator Hooper, Col. Codman, Prof. Child of Harvard University, Drs. F. E. Hale, and Phillips Brooks, and many more prominent visitors have been here for a longer or shorter time. At the home of Geo. G. Lowell Esq., whose hospitalities we tasted, we found two sets of ancient Dutch tiles brought from Nantucket and many other unique decorations interesting to the antiquary. The Marshpee Indians here their religious services a few miles from here every Sabbath. Freedom Hall is opened also and many city pastors have preached. The Union Church was opened also yesterday for the first time since its enlargement, and some lectures are expected in aid of the society, the first of which is to be on the 18th. Then there is Martha's Vineyard, Falmouth and many other places about here which Eastman's new book on the New England coast describes and which presents peculiar charms to the traveler who wisely defers his excursions to the month of September with its cooler air and brighter skies. Santuit House, Sept. 5. VISITOR.

CAUCUS. The following delegates were chosen at the Democratic caucus, held at Lombard's Hall, to attend the State, County, Councilor and Senatorial Conventions:—

At Large.—John Q. Adams, Delegates.—W. S. Patten, James T. Penniman, W. A. Hodges, Ralph Lowe, George Cahill, John H. Dea, E. S. Fellows, Patrick H. Lacey, George Hobart, George Beard, C. H. Curtis, and Wm. Parker, Jr.

CLAMBAKE. Tirrell & Sons, together with their workmen and a few invited guests, had one of the best clam-bakes at Rock Island, on Thursday last that has taken place in this vicinity, it is thought by good judges, for many years. Every thing was cooked in the best manner under the guidance of an experienced hand, and was highly praised.

Rev. T. J. Sawyer of Tufts College will preach in the Universalist Church, in this place, to-morrow afternoon, and at North Weymouth in the evening.

AFFLICTED. As announced Dr. Bragg will be in Quincy at the Hancock House, next week, Monday, Sept. 11th. Those who are desirous of consulting him should make their preparations accordingly.

The capital of the Bank of Montreal is to be raised to $12,000,000 which will make the bank the third largest in the world, coming after the Bank of France and the Bank of England; $10,000,000 is the largest capital of any American bank.

The greatest mining firm in the world is that of John Taylor & Sons England, who have mines in all parts of the globe, and in Great Britain alone employ 56,000 men.

Very recently, Martha Walker, a young Englishwoman, climbed the famous Matterhorn, over 14,700 feet high, in company with her father, aged 65. The Matterhorn is one of the most difficult of all the Alpine peaks to ascend, and has rarely been attempted by a woman. The lady is well named, having climbed Monte Blanc, Rosa, and other peaks with little fatigue.

The rate of taxation in Hyde Park this year is $10.50 on $1000. Amount raised by taxation this year $63,000. The number of polls is stated at 1507, a gain of 243 over last year. Three years ago when the town was incorporated, the number of polls was 774.

Summary Intelligence.

Butter took a fall at St. Albans, Vt., on Tuesday, the decline being fully two cents on all grades. The extremes were 16 and 29 cents.

A woman named Miss Halle smuggled thirty bundles of human hair, worth $2,000, into New York from Germany last Saturday, and now lies in durance vile.

A New York oculist charged a man $1000 for taking out an eye. The patient "couldn't see it."

New York averages about one hundred marriages per week now, and expects to do better as the season progresses.

There is a baby at Ballville Ohio, four weeks old that weighs less than two pounds. At the time of its birth a lady's finger ring was slipped over its hand and arm to the shoulder. Hundreds of people have been to see it.

It is stated that the receipts of the Mount Washington Railway this season are already upward of $30,000.

A Pittsfield man recently inquired at a shoe store in that town for a boot case, but could not find one long enough. He wanted one five feet and a half long, and finally let out that it was for a coffin for his father.

Nine million dollars of debt was disposed of during August, which is a good exhibit for dog-days.

At the conclusion of a recent funeral service in Gloucester, a white dove suddenly made its appearance in the room and after making the circuit of the apartment, alighted upon the head of the rector who had conducted the exercises, and remained there until removed.

Visitors to the top of Mount Washington, this summer, have bought snow-balls at ten cents apiece, and threw them at each other. The snow-balls are made by the enterprising proprietor of the Tip Top House, after the snow-equalls which occur now and then during the summer.

The English papers say that Queen Victoria is troubled with visions of the poor-house, and the table spread for her servants reminds them very forcibly of that pleasant abode.

A bag of cotton, lately dug out of the fortifications near Corinth, Miss., where it had been buried for ten years, was sold at Memphis, the other day, for $16.50.

A train recently ran 132 miles in two hours and fifty minutes, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, recovering fifty minutes of lost time.

SICKNESS. Fevers and other diseases have been quite prevalent in this place the past few weeks. Wm. S. Morton, Esq., has been very sick with typhoid fever and has lost it is said over sixty pounds of flesh; but it was thought yesterday that chances of recovery were in his favor.

Mr. Samuel Curtis has also been quite dangerously ill at his father's residence the present week, with typhoid fever, but we are happy to learn that he is thought out of danger.

Probate Court will meet at the Selectmen's Room, in this place, on Wednesday next.

We invite those in want of Furniture of any kind, to call and examine our stock, and think it would be to their advantage, for the following reasons:—

1st. We purchase our lumber from the mills at the West, where it is taken direct from the forest; and import our Upholstery goods from the manufacturers in Europe, thereby saving the profit of the Importer and the Lumber Dealer.

2d. We have double the quantity and variety of goods, and nearly double the room to display them of any Furniture house in Boston, thereby offering purchasers a better chance to suit their taste.

3d. Our rent is cheaper than that of any other Furniture house in Boston, considering the amount of goods sold, and as our sales are large we can afford to sell at a small profit, and are willing to do so.

POLITICAL.

Gen. Butler is hard at it. He has visited many cities and towns in the State, and at nearly every meeting has received crowded houses. He is bound to sink or swim. A man of his energy, tact and shrewdness will certainly attract a large vote, but the probability is, from present indications, he cannot receive the Republican nomination. The first political flag raised this season was at Charlestown, the present week, for Benj. F. Butler.

LECTURE.

DR. GEO. FERRARD, of "Waka-to-ka," White Chief, as he is known among the Indians, will deliver an interesting and instructive lecture, entitled the Plains and Rocky Mountains, at

REVERE HALL.

On Saturday Evening, Sept. 9.

In which he will give descriptions of the country, its resources, advantages, &c. The Dr. has been for many years upon the frontiers, and in the mountains, as hunter, trapper, guide, &c. He will give thrilling biographical sketches, and adventures in the life of his almost life long friend and companion, Kit Carson. This lecture has received the most flattering endorsements of the press wherever delivered.

Tickets 25 Cents. Children 15 Cents.

Doors open at 7½. Lecture commences at 8.

THE PLYMOUTH COUNTY RAILROAD.
An adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Plymouth County Railroad was held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the town hall, Hingham. Mr. James M. Jacobs presided, and Mr. C. T. Fogg officiated as secretary. The following named gentlemen were elected directors: David Whiton, A. T. Whiting, James M. Jacobs, Boston; Albert Fearing, E. F. Dunbar, Ebed L. Ripley, Hingham; A. O. Cushing, Amasa Whiting, South Hingham; Charles O. Grove, West Scituate; Perez Simmons, Henry J. Curtis, Hanover; E. J. Fogg, George H. Torrey, South Scituate; Alex. Torrey, North Weymouth; John Q. Adams, H. Farnam Smith, Quincy; Everett Torrey, Charlestown.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the directors at once proceed to get subscriptions and take measures to proceed with the survey of the road. Another meeting will be held in Boston in a few days to elect a president, to further complete the organization of the company, and to take steps toward the prosecution of the work.

Witch Hill. Our former townsman Rev. A. Mudge has written and J. P. Mudge of Boston has for sale the history of the Witchcraft delusion at Salem. The "Witch Hill" is handsomely printed and illustrated and the record appears to be an impartial and candid one. Both old and young will be instructed by reading it. We visited the locality last week, described as the Gallows Hill with new interest.

In the U. S. Circuit Court on Wednesday, before Judge Clifford, in the case of the Hartford and Erie Railroad Company, it was ordered that the "petition in review be dismissed." The Company, having availed itself of a final resort, is therefore adjudged bankrupt.

Some queer scenes ensue in Wyoming, where the women vote, serve on juries, etc., like their lords and masters. Recently six married ladies and as many gentlemen were impounded upon a murder case, and it became necessary to lock them up all night. Three of the husbands stormed and raged at the judge and half a dozen children made the court house ring with their cries, but the judge was inexorable, and put them under lock and key.

Fulfilling a Vow. A woman passed through one of the streets of New Bedford, on her knees, the other evening, bearing three lighted candles in each hand, and accompanied by a religious on each side, the operation being a religious penance in fulfillment of a vow for the safe return of her husband from a whaling voyage.

Notice to Mariners. An act of Congress, dated February 28, 1871, which is an amendment to the Signal-light Law of 1864, requires, for the better security of life and property on the water, that in addition to the regular signal lights now in use, all sailing vessels must be immediately provided with a Torch Light, which, on the approach of any steamer in the night time, they must show upon that part of the vessel towards which the steamer is approaching. Any master who fails to comply with the above notice will be subject to a fine of $200, for which his vessel is made liable.

Deaths.

In this town, on the 24 inst., Mrs. Margaret Kirwan, aged 65 years.
On the 5th inst., James A. son of Mr. James N. and Mrs. Ruth R. Harris, aged 7 months and 15 days.
In Charlestown, on the 7th inst., infant daughter of Mr. Warren W. and Mrs. Vianna M. Spear, aged 1 week.

Special Notices.

NOTICE. The Fourth Anniversary exercises of the West Quincy Sabbath School, will be held next Sabbath, Sept. 10th, 1871. The public are invited.

A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN. The perceptive faculty of women is usually keener than the same phrenological organ in men. Woman knows that beauty rather than genius is worshipped by the former sex. A man may talk with his lips of the latter to his lady-love, but the keenness of the woman knows that he is thinking of the former in his heart. All women have an innate desire to please their beaux. They are fond of admiration, hence one of their longings is to be beautiful. The grand secret of female beauty is health—the secret of health is the power to eat, digest and assimilate a proper quantity of wholesome food. Take VINEGAR BITTERS. It will cleanse the stomach, tone the vital organs, give a perfect digestion, purify the blood, clear up the complexion and produce a state of mental and physical electricity which gives symmetry of form, bright eyes, white skin, glossy hair and a genuine type of female loveliness which no cosmetic can compare with.

New York has a State prison convict worth $150,000.

COMMON QUESTIONS.

The questions now most common are—
What shall we eat and drink and wear?
In answer to the first we'll say,
Eat what will in the stomach lay;
Drink nothing that will intoxicate
Or morbid appetite create;
And when the Boys need Clothes to wear
Take them to RICHARDS' in Dock Square.
He'll furnish them a suit so low,
That you will be surprised we know,
And other Boys will send there, too,
Since so much better they can do;
So reasonable prices are
At RICHARDS', 25 Dock Square.

Poetry.

From the Saturday Evening Post.
TO THE LITTLE GIRLS.

O little girls! your years are few,
Your lives are fresh and cheery;
You have not yet learned what it is
To be heart sore and weary.
You see the shores of womanhood,
Toward which your harks are sailing,
And deem it is an Eden-land
Of pleasures never-failing.

Ah well! I would not break one dream,
I would not dim one vision;
But, O my children, do not think
The fields are all elysian.
Remember there are thorns sometimes
Among the brightest flowers,
And do not be hasty to bid
Farewell to Childhood's hours.

But while your little harks are yet
Afloat on Youth's calm river,
Go lift the heart and bend the knee
To God, the gracious Giver!
And if the wily serpent comes,
Oh! let him find you kneeling,
That he may turn in fear away,
God's word's power fear revealing.

THE CHECK REIN.

It is a disputed point whether the use of the check-rein is useless, or of so much inconvenience to the horse as to amount to a cruel infliction. In considering this question, we should remember that the check-rein is not the same thing under all circumstances. A high-bred, highly fed and pampered carriage-horse under the control of a check-rein, cannot be considered in the same light as a hard-worked and broken-spirited cart-horse. The one needs the restraint of the check-rein to bring him under that complete command without which it would be unsafe to drive him. The position of the head is not in this case any source of pain or inconvenience, for the exertions of the horse are only very slightly taxed to draw the light carriage and its occupants. On the other hand, a horse taxed to its utmost to draw heavy loads over roads where the footing is far from secure, (as on the slippery street of a city,) is never found to be so tightly reined up as the showy horse attached to the elegant carriage; and he has, therefore, a greater command over the position of his head. Horses used for heavy work, as drawing wagons or carts in cities, and plows and harrows on farms, very rarely, if ever, are found hampered with a tight check-rein. And it is in the case of these horses that the greatest complaints are made. Consequently these complaints are to some extent ill-founded. The fact is, the check-rein, under some circumstances, is as necessary to the control of the horse as the bit and bridle, and the rest of the harness. It is only when a hard-worked, heavy-laden brute is too tightly reined up that it becomes a hindrance to his power of working; and the owner of such an animal, if he knows any thing at all, would not permit him to be so inconvenienced by it as to impair his usefulness.—Hearth and Home.

TO KEEP BUGS OUT OF PEAS.
When ripe and shelled, pour boiling water on them, and let them stand in the water not less than five minutes; this will kill the germ of the bug and not in the least injure the germ of the pea, as I have proved from years practice.—H. J. Eaton, Delaware, O.

Muck should never be taken to the field direct from the swamps. It should be exposed to the atmosphere for six months or more, the longer the better, and composted with lime or unbleached ashes.

A New Hampshire man spent $500 on his strawberry patch this year, and got 29 boxes of the fruit.

Inedotes.

A SUBSTITUTE. "Do you believe in the rod as an instrument of discipline?" asked a mother of a school teacher in Nevada, to whom she had taken her unruly son.
"No, madam."
"Oh, I'm so glad! What do you substitute for it?"
"The revolver, madam."
Exit mother and unruly son.

Why is the tolling of a bell like the praying of a hypocrite? Because it is a solemn sound by a thoughtless tongue.

A sea-captain, trading regularly to the coast of Africa, was invited to meet a committee of a society for the evangelization of that benighted country. He was asked, among numerous questions touching the habits and religion of the African race, "Do the subjects of the King of Dahomey keep Sunday?"
"Keep Sunday?" he replied.
"Yes, and everything they can lay their hands on."

Teacher—"Tommy, what does h-e-i-r spell?"
Boy—"Dunno, sir."
Teacher—"Why, you nunsuck, what have you got on your head?"
Boy—"I dunno, sir, but I think it bites a flea!"

THE HALL TREADLE!

For Sewing Machines

AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age, using one or both feet or either alternately. With this Treadle the machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking needles or thread, consequent upon the reversal of the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as used in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use, plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at

34 TEMPLE PLACE, BOSTON, MASS.

The object in establishing this Institution was to obtain the greatest perfection in the preparation, practice and use of Vegetable Remedies, and to secure a permanent place where Families, Invalids, or any person could obtain the best medical advice, and such remedies as each might require, without the use of poisonous drugs.

Dr. Greene has been Physician of the Institute since its foundation, now more than twenty-five years. Few men have had so large experience in the treatment of chronic diseases. Dr. Greene is in his fifty-fifth year and has devoted his life to this branch of his profession, and his success, we believe is without parallel.

Among the diseases to which he gives special attention may be noticed Cancer, Scrofula, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption, Heart Disease, Neuralgia, Asthma, Nervousness, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Spinal Diseases, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Complaints, Pains in the Stomach, Erysipelas, White Swelling, Salt Rheum, Cancer, Dropsy, Kidney Diseases, Seminal Weakness, &c.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 16, 1871.

"Born to no Master, of no Sect are We."

TRIP TO NEW YORK.

After printing the Patriot on Saturday last, we packed our valise and about four and a half o'clock started for Gotham in company with Mr. John Arnold, our excellent grocery clerk at Mr. Grey's, by the way of the Old Colony—taking the splendid steamer Providence at Fall River. We found the boat loaded with passengers, many returning from their summer tour to the White Mountains and other popular places at the north.

This route has long taken the lead in fine steamers and excellent accommodations, but still its managers are indefatigable in their endeavors to please the travelling public. We found in addition to an excellent band, a large collection of Canary birds, which filled the saloon with their sweet notes. Never did we enjoy a trip over the Sound more; and we would impress our readers, to improve the first favorable opportunity they may have of visiting New York by this pleasant route.

The boat landed us safely at the pier, foot of Chamber street, the next morning at 7 A. M. In company with Mr. Arnold we wended our way to French's Hotel, near the City Hall, where we found our carriage manufacturer, Mr. C. Philip Tirrell, enjoying a morning nap. After indulging in a good breakfast, we started in their company, for Greenwood, a most lovely city of the dead, in Brooklyn. It is, as far as our knowledge goes, the largest and handsomest cemetery on this Continent. We saw many elegant monuments erected, but none looking prettier or more enduring than those from our own granite hills. They are becoming more and more popular daily, and are preferred by many to marble. The excellent polishing touches given them of late add much to their attraction. After several hours' walking quickly saw, we returned to New York.

Satisfying our inner wants we again started in the horse cars for Central Park, some five miles up the city. As we left the cars we met Messrs. William Derry and George Willett, two young men of this place, who had brought out a vessel load of granite for Greenwood Cemetery.

We found the Park crowded with people, never did Boston Common on a Fourth of July contain one-half so many. There were thousands in carriages rolling over the fine drives, in all the luxury imaginable, while thousands who had no fine span to drive, graced the walks in their Sunday best. A large number of swings have been erected for the pleasure of the children, but these were in this holy day unmovable—fastened by a chain. But we saw a lot of "wooden ponies" or "flying horses," carrying precocious loads of little ones round and round the circle. For the life of us, we could not see how one was more justifiable than the other. Our companions, getting somewhat weary, thought they would like a ride, but wanted something better than wooden horses.

Around the cages of wild beasts near the Arsenal, the largest crowds were found. Here the visitor finds the old grizzly and other bears, lions, wolves, tigers, eagles, ostriches, monkeys, panthers, and many other rare and curious creeping things. At the ostriches' yard we heard the following:—

"What's them, daddy?" cries a youngster, staring open-mouthed at the fine ostriches.

"Them's camels," replied the man after a little hesitation.

"No, they ain't," put in a sharp retort Arab clad in hopeless rags, but keen as a razor. "Them's burds, and they feeds on stones and old iron."

As the sun was sinking we returned to our hotel somewhat tired. After supper we stepped into some of the churches near by, but found them not crowded, although the city papers mentioned the return of many of the prominent ministers, invigorated in mind and body by their summer's vacation.

On Tuesday we visited the fair given by the American Institute, on Sixty-third street, and spent several hours most pleasantly. It is impossible to begin to tell the readers of the Patriot, what we saw there; suffice it to say there was a large collection of new inventions, fancy and useful articles, worthy the visit from any of our readers who may happen to visit the city. The fair continues until the fourth of November.

The papers were full of notices, concerning the stupendous frauds committed by the City Government; and they were the popular topic of discussion among the masses. Hon. Robert B. Roosevelt the Democratic member of Congress from the Fourth District of that City, says that the debt of New York is not less than $200,000,000, which is 26 per cent. of the assessed valuation of its real estate. Of this enormous burden, more than $163,000,000 or over four-fifths have been added since Jan. 1, 1869, under the administration of the Tammany Ring. Never have we seen New York cleaner than it is at the present time. Which is owing no doubt to a dread of Asiatic cholera which has threatened them with a visit.

We would be pleased to give our readers more particulars of what we saw and heard in this famous city but time and space will not permit.

BOLD BURGLAR. There was one of the most daring and successful robberies, that has ever occurred in this place, on Tuesday night last. The residence of Mr. Richard Newcomb, on Washington street, was entered between midnight and five o'clock the next morning, and most completely ransacked. Over three hundred dollars, in cash, was taken besides watches, jewelry, and a whole week's ironing, which hung on a horse in the dining-room.

There were six adults in the house asleep during the robbery.—Mr. Newcomb, his wife, two sons and two daughters. The way in which the rascals entered the premises is yet a mystery. In their movements through the house, they were very bold; entering the sleeping apartments of Mr. Newcomb and also his sons; examining the pockets of the clothing, which was partly on the bed and on chairs near the bed. They took all the cash they could find, besides keys which they used to unlock desks, trunks and drawers in the sleeping rooms, where they found considerable money, including seventeen dollars or more in silver coins. It almost appeared by their movements that they knew just where to find their booty. Mrs. Newcomb who rose about five o'clock in the morning, found a window open and a lot of silver plated forks, spoons, &c., in a chair near the window, which makes it appear that the rogues left in a hurry. A valuable gold watch chain belonging to Mr. Newcomb was found on the ground near the window, which they accidentally dropped in their haste.

Several suspicious persons were seen prowling about the streets that evening and also a suspicious looking team from the city. The team was last noticed by one of our citizens who was returning from Boston, about five o'clock the same morning. It was going toward the city and had three men in it. The wagon had a name on the side by which it has since been identified, and its driver, who proved to be a Spaniard has been arrested. The Police of Boston, think they know who his companions were, and if the Police are not mistaken, they are two of the hardest customers in the city. If so, they will be shrewd enough to keep the stolen articles out of reach of the Police, and it is rather doubtful if they are brought to justice.

STILL AT LARGE. Since our last notice of thefts in North Quincy, other depredations have been committed.—Some fifty fowls, it is stated, have been stolen from Mr. Sullivan, living near the residence of W. B. Duggan, Esq., and a boat belonging to Mr. Cyrus Balkam was also taken from the banks of Neponset river and has not since been heard of.

According to latest accounts, the thieving party has increased its numbers, two negroes and one white man having been seen by parties berrying. They have been seen and heard prowling in the night time around residences and along the highways the present week. The flashing of dark lanterns has also been noticed.

Efforts to capture them have been made from time to time by officers from Neponset, North and Centre Quincy, but thus far unsuccessfully.

FAIR. The annual Fair by the Norfolk Agricultural Society, which usually attracts a large number of our citizens, is to be held next week, as will be seen by their notice in our columns. Those that do attend generally have a good time, and we hope to see still more present on Thursday and Friday next, than on any previous occasion.

FATAL RESULT. We learn from the Boston Herald that William Donovan, who was shot by Mr. Atwood at the Grove, in North Weymouth on the 25th of last month, died at the City Hospital from his injuries on Wednesday evening. Mr. Atwood who immediately after the affair gave himself up to Sheriff White of Weymouth, was acquitted last week by the Grand Jury, they not finding any bill against him as evidence showed that it was done in self-defence.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT. A man named Alex. E. McDonald, living in Boston, jumped from a freight train of the Old Colony and Newport Railroad as it was passing Harrison Square, on Monday morning, and was instantly killed.

BRAINTREE.

FIRE. On Friday morning the eighth inst., a small dwelling house belonging to Mr. Alva Morrison, and situated near his factory was burned. The fire had gained such head way that but a part of the furniture could be saved. The house was occupied by Mr. Jackson. The cause of this fire is unknown.

CAUCUS. At the Republican Caucus held on Saturday evening last the following delegates were chosen:—

To the State Convention, F. A. Hobart, Asa French and A. Morrison.

County Convention, E. F. E. Thayer, S. W. Hobart and J. R. Frazier.

Councillor Convention S. A. Bates, H. Faxon and A. S. Morrison.

Senatorial Convention, J. A. Arnold, R. Porter, J. T. Stevens, F. A. Hobart and H. Abercombrie.

FATAL ACCIDENT. On Monday last, a son of Mr. Wilson, at East Braintree, aged about twelve years, fell from a pear tree, distance of ten feet. When taken up his neck and arm were both found to be broken. He lived but a few moments after the accident.

CAUCUS. At the Democratic Caucus, Monday evening, the following delegates were chosen:—

State Convention, A. C. Drinkwater, Geo. Thayer, Lewis Thayer, Elisha Thayer Robert Bestie and A. T. Pratt.

County Convention, S. W. Hollis, Elisha Thayer John Stoddard, E. A. Newton, Lewis Thayer and Ansel Clark.

LECTURES. The lectures last Saturday and Monday evenings, at Revere Hall did not draw such a crowd as was anticipated, especially upon such a subject as Dr. Ferrard presented. His lectures on the "Far West," were very important ones, and to the young enterprising men of this part of the country, were very interesting. He gave an excellent description of the Rocky Mountains, together with some of his exploits, during some forty years of his sojourn in and around that country.

In his remarks on that territory, he gave some vivid accounts of the advantages a poor man gains in that climate, where the climate is regular, no colds, no rains, and no sickness incident to this country, but a place, where with a little industry a man can gain a comfortable living; nor need he put himself down to farming altogether, for the prairie and the mountains abound with all kinds of game.

We are sorry that more did not attend his lectures, for they were about a place we hear so much and know so little, that we expected to see the house crowded, with anxious listeners, grasping every word he uttered. The death-bed scene of "Kit Carson," together with his Epitaph were very affecting. Taking it all in all he gave a very good description of the Rocky Mountain country.

FAIR. We take pleasure in calling attention to the seventh annual Fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society, which will be held at their grounds in South Weymouth, on Tuesday and Wednesday next. Chester's celebrated troupe of gymnasts and acrobats will give a very exciting entertainment on Wednesday, which will be plainly visible from all part of the grounds. We hope that a large number of our citizens will visit this Fair to see the display of flowers, fruits, vegetables, stock, &c.

ACCIDENT. As Mr. William Garrity was returning from Boston, with his express wagon, on Monday afternoon, when near the residence of Mr. Edmund Taylor, in the north part of the town, he was seriously injured. Having on a very large load, he thought he would get off to see that all was right on the back part of the wagon. In attempting to jump, the leg of his pants caught on the stump, throwing him to the ground, the team passing over one of his legs, bruising and mangling it fearfully, although fortunately breaking no bones. He was conveyed to his residence and Dr. Gordon was called who dressed the wounds, and he is as comfortable as can be expected.

STATE CONVENTION. The Democrats of this State held their convention in Springfield, on Thursday, and made the following nominations for State officers. Governor.—John Quincy Adams, of Quincy. Lieutenant Governor.—Samuel O. Lamb, of Greenfield. Secretary of State.—Luther Stephen, Jr., of Hingham. Treasurer.—Levi Heywood, of Gardiner. Auditor.—Phineas Allen of Pittsfield. Attorney General.—William Wirt Warren, of Brighton.

In addition to the regular proceedings the convention elected the following gentlemen as delegates to the national democratic convention to be held in 1872. Josiah G. Abbott, Charles C. Greene, George W. Gill, and George M. Stearns.

The State election in Maine and California have gone Republican.

CONCERT. There will be a Sunday School Concert in the audience room of the Orthodox Church to-morrow evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock. Recitations by forty children, singing, and an address by L. W. Anderson, Esq., of this place, will constitute the exercises of the evening.

NEPONSET. We learn from one of our exchanges that:—The Neponset Club, Thomas F. Temple, trustee, has bought of Henry W. Hunt 4814 square feet of land at Neponset, being part of the old Ide House estate, on the north-west side of Taylor street, close to Neponset avenue, for the sum of $1,323.85.

By an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that there is a call for a meeting in Revere Hall, on the 21st inst., to inaugurate measures to aid and contribute to a State Fair for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

SALE. The beautiful estate of Henry Curtis on Franklin street, was sold at auction on Monday last, to George H. Locke, Esq., for $5,400.

STATE FAIR

FOR

Our Dumb Animals.

A STATE Fair will be held in Boston DURING THE TWO WEEKS AFTER THANKSGIVING, in aid of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. To carry out this Fair, a General Committee of ONE THOUSAND LADIES has been chosen, including members from nearly every town in the State.

In addition to the usual articles solicited for Fairs, donations are requested of all the products of the soil, FRUIT and VEGETABLES, and BUTTER and CHEESE, and all manufactured articles. Animals contribute largely to the cultivation and making of these articles, and the Society that seeks to protect them may well ask that they be remembered. A SINGLE BARREL OF APPLES, POTATOES, or other fruit or vegetables may send a small donation, but no one need hesitate to contribute on that account. Free service, Pickles, and Dried Fruit are solicited. Articles may be sent to the General Committee in the several towns to the Executive Committee of the Fair, 46 Washington Street, Boston. All persons interested in the above object are invited to assemble at Faneuil Hall on THURSDAY next, Sept. 2 at 2 o'clock P. M. Quincy, Sept. 16.

JACOB F. EATON,

Poetry.

For the Patriot.
TO J. J. G.

I have often like you, friend, heard music
And listened with a heart that was
That in friendship's full-chorded swell,
I have heard the stars that are gone.
Yes, tonight, we were singing an old song,
With our two youthful voices near,
And just where we came to the chorus,
I wished that a voice were here.
Its fulness would make the song grander,
As it rose with the breeze of eve,
And the words to the heart with more power
If a friend could sing with us, I believe.
And often when Annie, the youngest,
Cried, "Mamma come play me a song,"
I think of the hours in the twilight,
When I poured all my soul into song.
And said till the stars were dim,
Each heartstone and homestead we knew,
And the star-light to me seemed like bright eyes,
Watching o'er me where'er I might go.
My heart toward the whole of Creation,
Was aglow with a feeling divine,
And it seemed as if all were Angels,
If only the true light could shine.
Twas the harmony rose in my spirit,
That made me see clearly and plain,
And I pray in my soul to inherit,
In real life that music again.
Its seeds are sown round in our pathways,
If our eyes were bright 'stead of blind,
There's a heart 'neath the hardest face hidden,
Which musical cadences find.
A trace to the false of Creation,
Let's seek for the good and the true,
And the league upon league may divide us,
True friendship will ever be new.
New Haven, Sept. 5, 1871. H. B. E.

Farmers' Department.

FIREPROOF WASH FOR SHINGLES.

A wash composed of lime, salt, and fine sand or wood ashes, put on in the ordinary way of whitewashing, renders the roof fifty per cent. more secure against taking fire from falling cinders, in case of fire in the vicinity. It pays the expense a hundred-fold in its preserving influence against the effects of the weather. The older and more weather beaten the shingle, the more benefit derived. Such shingles generally become more or less warped, rough, and cracked; the application of the wash, by wetting the upper surface, restores them at once to their original or first form, thereby closing up the space between the shingles, and the lime and sand by filling up the cracks and pores in the shingle itself, prevents its warping.

A USEFUL TABLE.

A practical, as well as a scientific farmer, says the following table, will aid farmers in accurately estimating the amount of land in different fields under cultivation.

He says any piece of either of the following dimension will contain just one acre.

5 yards wide by 968 yards long.
10 yards wide by 484 yards long.
20 yards wide by 242 yards long.
40 yards wide by 121 yards long.
80 yards wide by 60 1/2 yards long.
70 yards wide by 69 1/2 yards long.
60 feet wide by 726 feet long.
110 feet wide by 363 feet long.
120 feet wide by 369 feet long.
240 feet wide by 185 feet long.
250 feet wide by 181 1/2 feet long.
440 feet wide by 90 feet long.

A farmer who has had large experience in feeding cabbage and turnips to cows, says his practice is to feed immediately after milking—never before—and he has never been troubled with the milk being flavored. He also says he feeds turnips whole with the tops on, as there is no danger from choking when fed in this way.

Incidents.

Two friends met in the street. "What a shocking bad hat you wear!" exclaims one of them.
"My dear friend, I wear it only because I love my own liberty."
"But what on earth has your liberty to do with the hat?"
"Oh, a great deal. My wife has sworn that she will never walk out with me as long as I shall wear such a hat."

A little girl in Philadelphia was re-proved for playing out doors with the boys, and informed that—being seven years old—she was "too big for that now."
"But with all imaginable innocence, she replied:—
"Why, the bigger we grow, the better we like 'em."
"Grandma took time to think."

"You'd better look out for your boss's feet above here, mister," said a ragged boy to a Brantree traveler.
"Why?" said the gentleman, nervously pulling up.
"Cos there's a fork in the road there," was the candid reply.

A little shaver going through the streets of Bridgeport with his father on Sunday, met a dog with a muzzle over his mouth, when the father said: "What has the dog got?"
The youngster replied, "I guess it's a hoopstick."

THE HALL TREADLE!

For Sewing Machines

AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age—using one or both feet or either alternately. With this Treadle the machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as used in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use—plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at

KEATING & SPEAR'S

Furniture Rooms, who are the agents for Quincy.

K. & S. will apply this Treadle to machines at short notice, and warrant it satisfactory. They also Repair Sewing Machines, and furnish Oil, Needles, and findings for various Machines.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN MEDICAL INSTITUTE

54 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

The object in establishing this Institution was to attain the greatest perfection in the preparation, practice and use of Vegetable Remedies, and to secure a permanent place where Families, Invalids, or any person could obtain the best medical advice, and such remedies as each might require, without the use of poisonous drugs.

Dr. Greene has been Physician of the Institute since its foundation, more than twenty-five years. Few men have had so large experience in the treatment of chronic diseases. Dr. Greene is in his fifty-fifth year and has devoted his life to this branch of his profession, and his success, we believe is without parallel.

Among the diseases to which he gives special attention may be mentioned Cancer, Scrofula, Catarrhs, Bronchitis, Consumption, Heart Disease, Neuralgia, Asthma, Nervousness, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Spinal Disease, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Complaints, Pain Stomach, Erysipelas, White Swelling, Salt Rheum, Canker, Scalds, Eclampsia, Hysterical Cases, Seminal Weakness, &c.

Dr. Greene's Medical Pamphlet, descriptive of diseases and their proper treatment, will be sent free to invalids.

PUBLIC TOWN LIBRARY.

THE Trustees of the FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY,
would take this opportunity to inform the
public, that several large and valuable donations
of books have already been made to the Library,
by the Adams Library Association, by the Adams family, Dr. Stetson, and others, amounting
to about twelve hundred volumes.
It is believed that many of our citizens have bound volumes, suitable for circulation, which they would be glad to donate. All persons are invited to do so; and if they will leave such bound volumes at the Adams Academy, or, if this is not convenient, will notify the Trustees,
they will be called for. By thus doing, this Institution, free to all, will be greatly benefited.

Poetry.

MY CHOICE.
Which of the two do you love the best?
Was the question that came to me,
As I robed for the night in snowy white,
My darling knelt by me.
Which, if the father's hand
Were to beckon me away,
And the summons be "Thy best beloved,"
Which of them would you say?
And I drew my little ones closer,
As I sat in the twilight dim,
And wondered, if he were to ask me,
What should I answer him.
Maid is gentle and loving,
With willing hands and feet,
With curious thoughts, and questions wise,
With womanly ways and sweet.
And roguish hazel-eyed Minnie,
While the shadows deepen and darken
Into the evening gloom.
The childish voices petition,
As they fold their hands in prayer,
The heavenly hand to lead them,
The heavenly love to care.
Then, as they throw around me
Their arms, and clasp me tight
The sweet lips murmur, "We love you;
Good night, mamma, good night."
I cannot choose between them,
Father, oh I spare the thought,
Which of my darlings is dearer,
Which one I love the best.

Interesting Selections.

SNOW-BALL CAKES. One cup sugar,
one of buttermilk, one of butter, tablespoonful soda, the whites of three eggs beaten to a froth; bake in small tins—
L. E. K., No. Fairfield, O.

CATSUP. One gallon of tomatoes, four tablespoonfuls of cayenne pepper, four of black pepper, three of mustard, three of aleppo, three of cloves, one-half pint of vinegar. Boil six hours.

BONE FELON. Of all painful things, can there be any so excruciatingly painful as a bone felon? We know of none the flesh is hot to the touch, and this malady is quite frequent, and the subject of much earnest consideration, we give the latest recipe for its cure, which is given by that high authority, the London Lancet: "As soon as the disease is felt,
put directly over the spot a fly blister
about the size of your thumb nail, and let it remain for six hours, at the expiration of which time, directly under the surface of the blister, may be seen the felon, which can instantly be taken out with the point of a needle or a lancet.

If you are going to help a man,
be about it; promise assistance after a while is considered a debt.
Kind words are more precious to heart the poorest heart, than all the blessings the world can give.

There is a purple half to the grape, a mellow and crimson half to the peach, a sunny half to the globe and a better half to man.

A distinguished actress was lately introduced to a lawyer in Yorkshire, who was not at all backward in sounding his own praise. "He is a very smart man,"
an acquaintance remarked soon afterwards. "I know it," she replied; "he told me so himself."

Cover closely all cisterns, rainwater barrels, and other vessels containing water, and fill up all holes where water is inclined to stand. By thus propagating no "wiggles-tails" you will have no mosquitoes. These precautions are good as a sanitary measure, too.

When Charity walks into the lowest places of want, we see the beautiful purity of her robes most distinctly.

If the right foot itches on the bottom, you are going where you are wanted; if the left foot, where you will not be welcome. Bathe your feet every morning, and they will be sure not to itch; and if you stay at home, you certainly will not go where you are not welcome.

KNOWLEDGE. All who are desirous of realizing pleasure, who wish to make life worth having, who wish to live for a purpose worth recording, and who wish to think thoughts, will resolve,
and perform acts worth remembering,
let them do all they can to obtain knowledge.

FRIENDSHIP. Prosperity is no just scale; adversity is the only balance to weigh friends in.

We should care less about growing old, if others did not see it.

It is usual with obstinate persons to regard neither truth in contradiction nor benefit in disputing. Positiveness is a certain evidence of a weak judgment.

Miscellany.

AND THEN.
"Florence, I am sure you wrong yourself! You have a heart, and too late,
perhaps, you will find it out."
There was a mournful tenderness in Amy Chester's voice, which caused her sister to look up hastily.
Amy, in her earnestness, had rested
her hand lightly on her sister's arm, and a mist of sadness veiled her beautiful blue eyes.
"Richard's love is not a common love,
my darling; nor is his honest preference to be despised. Some other man may win you for his wife, Florence, but not one will ever woo you so royally as Dick Pennoyer!"
"He woos me as other men woo," I suppose, with sweet words and occasional caresses, for which we must be grateful!
And I acknowledge the fact that I shall miss him when he is gone. But—" "
"Oh, Florence, you do love him, then;
Recall him before it is too late! He loves you well enough to come even now
at your bidding."
"You did not let me finish my sentence," said Florence, with a smile. "If he should win, how would he wear me?
Not like a jewel of which he might justly
be proud; not like a flower perfumed
with its own rare purple; but as some modest daisy whose modesty is its only charm, and which must be content to bloom unseen in the shadow of his royal robes!"
"And what happier destiny than that,
dear sister? You will be enshrined in his heart, and his love will make your life all golden-flood of glad days, so ripe
with all sweetness that you will never miss
the sorry adulation of the careless crowd,
or care for the garlands they would wreathen you!"
"I care very little for the purple robe, if there be no broodery on it; nor
for love, if it came alone to the feast!
No, Amy—your sweet teasing is useless—
I shall marry Silas Martindale!" Amy's lips quivered, as they always did when her heart was in a tumult.
"Why, Florence?"
"You want me to enumerate my reasons, dear little gossip? Well, in the first place he is rich, and I can have all my heart desires in the way of luxurious surroundings; you know I am not like you, Amy, and I could not endure
the touch of a hand soiled with the dust of machinery."
"But you have endured it!" ventured Amy.
"Yes. But you don't understand the difference between a lover and a husband.
The one washes his hands and puts on perfumed gloves before he ventures into your presence; the other could—well,
come in his shirt sleeves if he felt like it;
and that would do away with all the romance!"
"Florence! Dick Pennoyer would never do that!"
"Literally, perhaps not. But there would be a hundred ways in which I should know that my husband was once
a working-man."
Amy was silent, though her brave heart throbbled with indignation.
"And then," continued Florence,
"Mr. Martindale is not only wealthy, but his connections are good—such a family
as I should be proud to acknowledge;
but Dick Pennoyer's sisters have actually worked in a mill, and even more, one of them does fine sewing for old Mrs. Martindale! Very probably she may do it for me when I am married!"
"I will waste my breath on you no longer, Florence, but the time will surely come when you will regret this decision.
You may have fine jewels, fine dresses,
fine carriages, and fine friends; and you may have a heavy purse, yet not a light heart. When you are tired of all the glitter and show, what then?"
Was it only the wind that blew across her face as Amy opened the door and passed out, or was it a sudden hint from the unseen world that lies about all of the dreariness of a life without love—
Years afterwards Florence Martindale remembered the impression of that moment, and could have answered the question. For she married Silas Martindale as you have foreseen.

She became the mistress of his fine
house, and his many servants, yet not one among them was so completely a slave as she.

Strangers looking in her beautiful face,

thought her a proud woman, and well
content; only Amy studied her gravely
and wonderingly feeling that she was
often unhappy in spite of the luxuries
with which she was surrounded.

For eight years she endured her bondage. At the end of that time all the world knew that it was a golden tie
which had united them, and not the
dear love which binds in one, two married
lives.

There was a terrible accident on the railway—a single night of terror in which despair of her husband's life, and a wild
hope of freedom were strangely mingled.

And then it was all over, and Florence
Martindale was a widow.

It is terrible to be alone with a great grief shut in from the light and warmth
of the pleasant social life to which one has grown accustomed; to be haunted by the great phantom of a lost happiness
which we know can never return! yet I think it was more dreadful for Florence Martindale, shut up for three gloomy months with an accusing conscience.

When the three months were ended,
she threw open the shutters of the great
house, opened her doors to merry company, and appeared among her guests in the gay colors which she used to wear, herself gayest among the crowds which gathered to welcome her return to their little world.

It was one night in early Autumn, when her house was full of company, that she met Dick Pennoyer.

He had risen steadily in his chosen profession; had won well-deserved laurels from his fellow-citizens, and had been in Washington two winters.

She had heard his name often, and her heart throbbled tumultuously at the thought that at length she was free, and could afford to marry the man she had always loved.

The music was at its merriest and the dance at its gayest, when Mrs. Martindale found an opportunity to leave the room, and by a roundabout way reached the conservatory, where she was sure she had caught a glimpse of Dick Pennoyer's handsome figure.

But some one was with him, and she paused, undecided how to act. The second person was a woman, who stood with one little white hand on her companion's arm. The rustle of her dress betrayed Mrs. Martindale's presence, and turning suddenly, Amy Chester stood revealed to her sister's eyes.

"Amy! Is it you? I have been looking for you everywhere. Some of your friends are going and have asked for you."

Perhaps even then Amy had been holding out to him a shadow of hope—
his face was so bright and glad—and if it were so, she would give him an opportunity to ask the question again, to which she had given such scornful answer
nine years before.

"One moment, Amy," Dick Pen-noyer said, taking the little hand in his own. "You must know, Mrs. Martindale, this dear little woman has been making me a half-promise, which only awaits your sisterly sanction to seal it—
I love her, and want her to be my wife!"
For one moment, Mrs. Martindale forgot herself. The earth seemed to reel under her feet, and she caught at a flower-stand to keep from falling.

"Florence, are you ill?" exclaimed
Amy, springing to her side. "Forgive
me that I did not notice it sooner."

thought her a proud woman, and well
content; only Amy studied her gravely
and wonderingly feeling that she was
often unhappy in spite of the luxuries
with which she was surrounded.

For eight years she endured her
bondage. At the end of that time all the world knew that it was a golden tie
which had united them, and not the
dear love which binds in one, two married
lives.

There was a terrible accident on the

Amy, springing to her side. "Forgive
me that I did not notice it sooner."

"No, Amy," she said, while a crowd
of lonely anticipations swept over her,
making her shiver even in that warm
perfumed air.

"I am not ill—only faint. The rooms are so close. If you will only go in and take my place while I get a breath of fresh air, I shall be well enough. And I congratulate you both on the happy years
before you."

They went in together into the warmth and radiance, while Florence Martindale stood alone under the light of the stars,
disappointed in the best hope of her life.

She never married again, and in the quiet, lonely life she led for years afterward, many a time the words which Amy had spoken to her so long ago, came with a sorrowful meaning which she had learned too well to understand.

MY FIRST BUFFALO HUNT.

RED ROCK, KS., SEPT. 1.
While sitting at my door one evening,
two horsemen came riding up, and after an exchange of compliments, broached
the subject of a buffalo hunt. We agreed to go, and the next day set about making arrangements; having secured the services of an old hunter and government
scent as a guide, and all being in readiness, nine men with four two-horse wagons started from Red Rock, Nov. 25th.

After half a day's ride we left the settlement and launched out on the broad prairie, following the course of the Saline river. We camped on Wolf Creek, for the night, picked out our horses, and after supper listened to tales from the old hunters, of hair-breadth escapes, and of the large numbers of buffalo killed by each.
About twelve o'clock we all retired under our blankets, sleeping soundly until daylight.

Leaving the Saline, after breakfast,
we followed up Wolf creek that day,
found nothing to shoot except one skunk
and two grouse or prairie chickens; at night we camped on the bank of the creek, and being told the danger of an attack by Indians, we set a guard and picked out our horses close to camp;
the night passed slowly with those unacquainted with hunting. The infernal coyotes kept up a serenade, barking,
snapping and snarling all night long.

Leaving the camp we crossed the open plain to Cobert's creek, (so called from a man of that name, who was murdered
there by Indians,) crossed from there to the Saline river. Saw antelope and vixen, and shot seven turkeys. Early the next day saw one stray buffalo, and at noon, with our glass, saw a large herd
coming towards us.

NEW YORK STATISTICS. New York island has an area of twenty-two square miles and twenty-nine miles of water front. The streets, roads and avenues measure four hundred and sixty miles. Two hundred and ninety-one miles of the streets are paved; one hundred and sixty-nine miles unpaved. Nineteen thousand gas-lights are burned every night. Beneath the surface of the city there are three hundred and forty miles of Croton water pipes and two hundred and seventy-five miles of sewers. The number of constituents is nine hundred and forty-two thousand, two hundred and fifty-two. One thousand horse railway cars, two hundred and sixty-seven vehicles, about twelve thousand licensed vehicles, and quite as many more private vehicles continually traverse the thoroughfares. It is claimed that 40,000 horses are constantly stabled or used within the city limits. On the 25th of May, opposite the City Hall, to report the number of vehicles that passed and repassed exclusive of omnibuses, from 7 A. M. to 7 P. M. They reported 16,246. During the ten months preceding May 1, 1871, two hundred and eighty-four million dollars worth of foreign merchandise, exclusive of specie, was imported into this city. During the same period, New York city paid the Government one hundred and twenty millions of dollars for duties on imports; and the value of exports, exclusive of specie, was two hundred and fifty-one millions.

A Boston firm has agreed to take 5000 tons per year for three years, of what is known as "chips," from the owner of the marble mountain at Cape Breton, to be ground up for Paris white and other paint. At the end of three years, the firm has agreed to take 10,000 tons each year. These "chips" were formerly considered as waste material.

Out of the three hundred and seven millions of people carried on English railroads in 1869, only seventeen were killed by causes beyond their own control, while in the streets of London one hundred and forty persons were killed, and it is estimated that the orange-peel on London pavements kills more than all the English railroads.

A resident of Taunton, Massachusetts, has obtained his ice for summer use, for several winters past, in the following manner: Procuring about fifty empty flour barrels, at a cost of twenty cents each, he gradually pours in water until each contains a solid mass of ice. The barrels are then put away in his cellar and entirely covered with sawdust. As ice is required, a barrel is tapped.

COUNTING THEM. The Postmasters are now counting all the letter stamps which they cancel, having commenced July 1st, and are to continue until January 1, 1872; this step is necessary, so that salaries may be correctly and accurately adjusted. To make everything as perfect as possible the Post Office Department particularly requests that no letters be given to route agents except in cases of absolute necessity.

COAL. The production of anthracite is nearly two millions of tons short of what it was last year. This difference, it is believed, may be nearly or quite overcome before the close of navigation. The short supply of both anthracite and bituminous coals up to the present time is only about a million and a half of tons, and this difference, no untoward event happening, will very probably be made up before the end of the year.

Poetry.

PULL YOUR OWN WEEDS.

If you've weeds in your garden, my friend, I pray,
Do not stand looking over the fence
To your neighbor's dominions—just over the way—
Your weeds are the most consequence;
Uproot them, while yet there is daylight to work,
Tear them up, seed and branch, from the soil;
They are sure to do mischief, so pray do not shirk;
You'll be amply repaid for your toil.
This advice would apply to the garden of life—
Tis so seldom we see our own weeds—
For watching our neighbor, or worse yet, his wife,
And counting their many misdeeds,
We pass our own follies, our faults we disguise
In the garments of selfish conceit!
We're ever perfection (in our own eyes),
Our neighbor may take a back seat.
Let us pull our own weeds, and work with a will,
While yet there is one to be found,
Not point over the way in derision until
We have carefully killed our own ground;
For watching the faults of others we see
Not the ones in our own hearts so free;
Let us pull for ourselves, let others' weeds be,
Till we clean our own garden of life.

SWEET POTATOES.

The sweet potato is one of the most delicate and nutritious of our vegetables. When ripe and properly cooked, it is entirely wholesome, though still not so perfect a food as the fruits and grains. There is as great a variety of excellence in it as in the Irish potato. It should be mealy, though it must not be expected to burst and fall to pieces. If, when carefully cooked, it has a uniform semi-transparent look, like a boiled turnip or squash, it is either a poor variety or immature. When others can be had, these are no more endurable than a "soggy" Irish potato, and should not be served. If mottled with mealiness, they may pass, but the best are mealy throughout. It is not easy, without experience, to judge between cooking; but those which are plump, short and pointed, with a uniform clean, yellow color, are probably good. They are rarely pared before boiling. One reason is, that they do not pare easily; another is, that if boiled in iron, they turn dark. For the same reason, they should not be probed with an iron fork. They can be steamed, and come out bright. This, indeed, is the nicest way to cook them. They cook a little quicker than Irish potatoes, and the same care is requisite to stop the cooking as soon as they are done. Then peel, let them dry out a little, cover close and serve warm.

If any are left, they can be sliced and browned on a griddle, (not fried—that makes them indigestible,) or warmed up in milk, barely enough to cover them; cook until they begin to break, and then mash and stir until very little of the milk is visible. This also makes a very nice dish with half or more Irish potatoes. No salt is necessary with sweet potatoes however served, and I am told that they are commonly eaten in the South without it.

Baking is considered the most stylish way of preparing them, and if they are inclined to be watery, it is the best way. Time them carefully, that they may not have to wait on the rest of the dinner, but if they must wait, open the oven. Do not probe them with anything, it injures their appearance; try them with the fingers, through a cloth napkin, if your fingers are tyros. Any that are left can be warmed up for breakfast or lunch, by simply putting them in the oven again, or they are quite eatable cold.

If they are good, and yet too small to be presentable, steam, peel, slice, and put them with about equal quantities of well-cooked onions, or better still, white turnips; cover with white sauce, and serve warm. Or cold sweet potatoes may be served by steaming, and utilized in this dish. Or if not wanted at once for any reason, slice them up and dry them. They are too good to be wasted.—JULIA COLMAN, in Moore's Rural New Yorker.

Incidents.

An Irish commodore being confined to his bed by a severe fit of the gout, some sweeps were employed to sweep the chimneys of the house next door to him, and one of the boys, by mistake, came down in the commodore's apartment. The boy confused at his mistake, seeing the commodore in bed, said:
"Sir, my master will come for you presently."
"Will he?" said the commodore, leaping out of bed; "I beg to be excused staying here any longer, then," and immediately ran down stairs.

Can you tell me, my little fellow, when Rome was built?
"In the night, sir."
"In the night? Impossible! The men couldn't see to work."
"Well, you don't catch me—Rome wasn't built in a day, anyhow."

An Irish jockey elated with his success at winning a race, observed:
"By my soul, I'm first at last; I've always been behind before."

THE HALL
TREADLE!

For Sewing Machines
AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age—using one or both feet or either alternately. With this Treadle the machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking needles or thread, consequent upon the reversal of the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as used in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use—plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at
KEATING & SPEAR'S

Poetry.

OLD TIME AND I.

Old Time and I the other night
Had a carouse together:
The wine was golden, warm and bright—
Aye! just like summer weather.
Quoth I, "Here's New Year come again,
And no farthing richer."
Time answered, "Ah, the old, old strain—
I prize thee past the pitcher."

"Why measure all your goods in gold!
No rope of sand is wealthier:
'Tis hard to get, 'tis hard to hold—
Come lad, fill up your beaker.
Hast thou not found true friend more true,
And loving ones more loving?"
I could but say, "A few, a few!"
So keep the liquor moving."

"Hast thou not seen the pros'p'rous knave
Come down a precious summer?
His cheeks disclose? 'I have, I have!'—
'Well, surely, that's a bumper!'"

"Nay, hold a while, I've seen the just Find all his trifles grow dimmer."
I would but say, "A few, a few!"
So keep the liquor moving."

"'Tis not because to-day is dark;
No brighter days before 'em;
There's rest for every storm-tossed barque."
"So be it! pass the foam!"

"Yet I must own I should not mind
"Labor and wait, and you may find—"
"Hillo! an empty pitcher."

Interesting Selections.

FRUIT CAKE. Four eggs, one and a half cups of molasses, one and a half cups of sugar, half a cup of milk, two-thirds of a cup butter; use Horeford's flour; if not use cream of tartar and soda with the flour. All kinds of spice and fruit.

WHAT THE MATTER WAS. During a steam voyage, on a stoppage of machinery, considerable alarm took place, especially among the female passengers. What is the matter? what is the matter? exclaimed one more anxious than the rest.

After a short pause, a hoarse voice replied: "Nothing, madam, nothing: only the bottom of the vessel and the top of the earth are stuck together."

How different is the view of past life in the man who is grown old in knowledge and wisdom from that of him who is grown old in ignorance and folly.

"Tom," said a man to his friend, "I think it highly dangerous to keep the bills of small banks on hand nowadays."

"Tim," answered the other, "I find it more difficult than dangerous."

A young bachelor in Jersey City was urged to marry, but he replied: "I don't see it. My father was a single man and he always got along well enough."

A sarcastic young lady says she never was so much in love with a man that two rainy days together in a country house would not effectually cure her.

"CUNNING" SAYINGS. Our little four-year-old remarked to her mamma on going to bed, "I am not afraid of the dark."

"No, of course you are not," replied her mamma, "for it can't hurt you."

"But, mamma, I was a little afraid once, when I went into the pantry to get a cookie."

"What were you afraid of?" asked her mamma.

"I was afraid I couldn't find the cookies."

THE PRICE OF POULTRY. A gentleman being asked "what was the price of ducks?" confessed that he could not tell: for he had been out that very day with his wife, and she had purchased no fewer than three ducks. First, there was "a duck" of a dress; secondly, "a duck" of a parol, and thirdly, "a duck" of a bonnet.

A woman should always remember that her clothes should be in expense and quantity proportioned to her own circumstances, and not those of her neighbor.

A Low Bid. Just as an auctioneer was saying "Gone!" a few evenings since, his audience went through the floor into the cellar, but happily without hurting any of them. The auctioneer, as soon as he found his legs, remarked that the accident would enable him to sell lower than before, and called for a bid, and they bid him "Good night."

A teaspoonful of mustard, mixed with four ounces of hot water, will remove obstinate biccough.

To cure dyspepsia—close all the outer doors of a four-story house, open the inner doors, and take a long switch and chase a cat up and down stairs till she sweats.

It is said that nails may be prevented from rusting by being heated on a shovel, and thrown when smoking hot into a vessel of coarse oil or melted grease. Cut nails are rendered so tough by this process that they will outlast any kind of wood, even if buried in the ground.

Great designs require great considerations.

Miscellany.

FRED'S FOLLY.

"Mutton? Yes; a small piece—Thanks. No gravy, I am Sidney-Smithian in that direction. Last fellow though, Mrs. Leigh, I can assure you, that I should have expected to see married."

"Indeed!" exclaimed my pretty hostess.

"Yes. I am afraid that he needs the curb."

"Not my doing, Tom, I promise you," said my old friend Leigh.

"How can you talk so, Fred?" said Mrs. Leigh; who, by the way, really was about as nice a little body as ever joined a husband in doing the hospitable to a bachelor friend.

"Fact," said Leigh; "regularly trapped; and then bullied into it by stern parents—dreadful father, fierce mother."

"What a shame, Fred!" remonstrated his wife, trying hard to frown him down, but it was quite a failure, for she only succeeded in imparting quite a charming pout to a witching little face. "What will Mr. Scribe think?"

"Think! Why, that he's a lucky fellow to have escaped the snares, traps, and beguilements of the female 'sect' for so long. Make him careful in the future not to walk into a pitfall as I did?"

"What sort of a trap was it?" I said, laughing.

"What sort? Why, my dear boy, they—"

"Whom do you mean by they?"

"What, that wife of mine, and her dear papa, and her sweet mamma—"

Took me into the Peak Cavern, Derbyshire, you know, and there, on the border of the river Styx, so treated me, that I felt it was all over, and I succumbed; for anything like opposition must have resulted in imprisonment in the dreary hole—perhaps obliteration; so I yielded, and a month after I was led to the altar, and sacrificed."

"Fred!"

"Well, my dear, we were married, weren't we?"

"Why, yes, of course; but how can you keep on talking such stuff?"

"Yes, you may call it stuff; but it was very solid reality. Look here, Tom; you know I told you I was going to stop at the Morris's?"

I nodded, at the same moment taking side glance at the fair head being shaken, and the pretty girlish face trying to telegraph in mobile expression divers threatenings to my friend if he were not silent; but he kept on.

"Well being in Derbyshire, of course they took me to see the lions."

"Such delightful trips we had, Mr. Scribe!" exclaimed the lady.

"I have not the slightest doubt thereof," I said; and the bonny cheeks became tinged of a brighter pink.

"Took me to Chatsworth," continued Leigh, "Dovedale, and other dales out of number; while as to the hills, I was half ruined in boots. Kinderscent, and Brampton Edge, and Loos Hills, and Wind Hill, and Mam Tor; they might have all been called Wind Hill, for I used to be like an exhausted receiver long before I could get to the top."

"His behavior used to be shameful, Mr. Scribe," exclaimed my hostess; who, finding telegraphy of no avail, now took up Leigh's own weapons to attack him in his turn. "He would always be trying to lose papa and mamma."

"Hark at that!" cried Leigh, appealing to the ceiling.

"And wanting to sit down and rest behind rocks and Druid stones."

Again Leigh turned his eyes up to the gasseller; this time also to raise his hands.

"And whenever I was really almost too much exhausted to go on," continued Leigh, "They urged me with the sharp points of their sunshades, or the old gentleman prodded me with the ferule of his umbrella. But I suffered it all, my boy; meaning not to be taken in next time, and to get my visit over as soon as possible. I went with them to see the Blue John Mine, and the Speedwell Canal; and on another day, after a sort of picnic dinner in Peveril Castle, we went to 'do' the Peak Hole."

"Do you remember how much champagne you drank that day, Fred?" said Mrs. Leigh.

"No, my dear; but not much. There were only two bottles, and your father was there—four in party."

"But you know that papa never touches it, on account of his gout."

"Well, never mind that; your mamma does. Well, Tom, as I was telling you, we went down to a place where there were a lot of fellows in the great opening, which they had turned into a workshop for spinning string; and here we were joined by a guide with a bag, who came and gave us each a dirty little tin candlestick with an extremely consumptive-looking dip; and after lighting us up, he took us along in and out of the vilest, dampest, muddiest, most cellar-like hole that ever existed in the bowels of the earth. As for Nelly here, she would keep slipping about every five minutes, on purpose—"

"For shame, Fred!"

"And I had to hold her up. The old gentleman grew quite enthusiastic about the beauties of the dirty tunnel—what he called stenic effects; and then he kept on mumbling away about alluvial deposit, and the action of water upon carboniferous limestone—dissolving it away to form caverns; and he was going on at a tremendous rate in one passage, when the old lady—I beg your pardon, Nelly, I meant my mamma-in-law—who is stout, became a fixture in a narrow part between two rocks; and ideas, of course, presented themselves as to the possibility of her being extricated, and whether she would continue to stop the way, until, in despair, we nibbled her to pieces with penknives. I don't think I was much alarmed; but somebody here pretended to be—horribly, and tried to hang back."

"Of course Mr. Scribe will know how much of this to believe," said Mrs. Leigh, with all the dignity that she could assume.

I bowed in reply; but, perfectly unmoved, Fred went on with his narrative.

"Being anxious, I pressed on, and the old lady having been holed out, minus a few feathers, we went again to the main route, and continued our course to a place where the ruffianly guide, who was evidently in the pay of the family, extinguished our lights as he took them away, making an insufferable odor of hot mutton-chops. While standing there in the dark, listening to the whispering of voices, and a creepy, dripping, murmuring sound of flowing water, I shivered with dread, wondering what was to come next; when—"

"I declare, Fred, that I really will not stay," cried Mrs. Leigh, rising, and making toward the door.

But only to be stayed by her husband, who darted before her, turned the key, drew it out, and then walked leisurely back and re-seated himself.

"Better sit down again, dear," he said coolly.

"Don't believe a word he says, Mr. Scribe," said Mrs. Leigh, pouting.

"Let's see, where was I?" said Fred.

"O, I know; I was wondering what was to come next; when—"

"Is there much more of it?" I said, by way of a reprieve for the lady; "for I find it rather prosy."

"Truth, sir, truth," continued Fred, perfectly unruffled; "we're just coming to the marrow now. When as I said before—when there, in the midst of that horrible, fear-engendering darkness, my heart leaped to my mouth, and I thought that I should have dropped, for I felt a pair of arms tightly clasp me, and before I could shriek to the guide for aid, I was—ah, Tom, how can I tell you? how can I give utterance to the horror of those dreadful moments?—I was actually kissed."

"I could not cry out, I could not breathe; only struggle to free myself, and listen to the heavy throbbing of my heart, when a sonorous echoing voice exclaimed: 'In this part of the cavern are displayed the wondrous wuckins of nature, as—'

"I heard no more of the speech, for a brilliant glare, as of electricity, dazzled my eyes, and everything was illumined by the blue light the guide was burning by displaying to me not the 'wondrous wuckins of nature,' but on the dingy umber rock, the clearly defined black shadow of myself struggling in the arms of a female fiend—at least, it appeared like one—and her father and mother looking exultingly on; though fortunately the guide's back was turned."

"O Fred, I declare!" exclaimed my little hostess, blushing tremendously.

"Don't interrupt!" said Fred pompously; and then he went on: There

THE LATE WILLIAM S. MORTON.

When our paper went to press last week, we announced the decease of one of our prominent citizens, William S. Morton, Esq., but were obliged to defer a more extended notice.

He died at his residence in Quincy, Sept. 21st, at 5 P. M. He was born in Roxbury, Sept. 22d, 1809, and expired at the completion of his sixty-second year. Having fitted for college at Phillips Academy, in Exeter, he graduated at Harvard University, in 1831, in the same class with Wendell Phillips, Mayor Shurtleff and others. After availing himself of the advantage of foreign travel, he began the study of Law in the office of Sidney Bartlett, Esq., continued those studies in Hopkinton, N. H., and commenced practice at Amherst, N. H., in the Office of Hon. Perley Dodge, who at that time entered upon the position of Clerk of the Courts in that locality.

Mr. Morton soon afterwards removed to Quincy and continued his residence here from 1840 until the time of his decease. During this period and in the practice of his profession he discharged the duties of office as a magistrate, and for a portion of the time as Commissioner of Insolvency, Trial Justice, &c. He was also connected with many business organizations of a local nature.

He was the first named of the Corporators in the charter of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., in 1850, and soon after was chosen its president which office he held till the time of his decease. He lived to see that institution one of the most substantial of our New England offices. He brought to the discharge of the duties of his office a spirit of fairness, combined with a commendable fidelity and promptness.

Mr. Morton is also the first named in the act of incorporation of the Mount Wollaston Bank, in 1853, and was for several years a director, and also, we believe, one of the trustees of the Quincy Savings Bank.

He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1850, and at times represented his town in the General Court. As member of School Committees, presiding officer at public meetings, a trustee of Milton Academy, and in other local offices and trusts, he was an active and useful citizen. The cause of popular education was to him a theme of attractive and abiding interest. To encourage the progress of the public schools and promote the improvement and education no less than the enjoyments of the young, was a marked characteristic of his nature, and in these he manifested an interest akin to that attachment which he ever clung to the memories of Old Harvard, and the loved reminiscences of that honored University. Of good culture, literary tastes and varied acquirements, with a mind well stored with classical knowledge, few were better versed in the poetical literature and works of romance and fiction of the last half of century.

In his college days he cultivated his taste for poetry and as his acquaintance with the works of the most approved authors increased, in fact, during his whole life, he was a frequent contributor of poetical effusions for the public journals, which in their composition were mostly fluent, melodious and graceful, and there was a charm and pathos in the style and metre of the versification, which although perhaps not evincing any very original style of thought, yet inducing the service of his pen whenever there was an occasion of local interest.

Of a genial temperament his hospitality was generously bestowed. Compassionate in his feelings, his sympathies were ever active and his sensibilities acute. Unassuming in his deportment and free from ostentation, the rich and poor all met with like reception at his hands. Impatient of faults which he discerned in others and though sometimes wanting in a just discrimination when he indulged in severe denunciations where others would have bestowed only mild rebuke, yet it more often happened that while others censured indiscriminately he was the first to throw the mantle of an enlarged charity over the infirmities of human weakness.

Seeking happiness in the calm of domestic life, it was in the family and social relations that his endearing qualities were fondly appreciated. A good son, a kind and affectionate husband and father, the family circle to whom death has so often brought the most severe affliction, deplores the present loss.

Imbued with a spirit of lofty patriotism, few were more zealous than he to sustain the honor of the flag in the great struggle for the preservation of the Union. He was unremitting in his efforts to advance the national interest, his heart was in sympathy with the great national heart and he regarded the final triumph worthy of the sacrifice of the best and purest blood in the land.

And when the hour came that those of his own household, actuated by a clear perception of duty and animated with a high resolve must forsake the studies of school and University to join the ranks and mingle in the life of the camp, his heart kindled anew with a resigned enthusiasm to prove himself worthy of such an offering. Sincere in his attachments, companionable with old and young, compassionate in his feelings, of strict integrity, actuated in his conduct by noble impulses, not elated by prosperity, with warm heart and generous hand, the memory of Mr. Morton will not soon fail. Firmly attached to the institutions of free government, and as firmly to the principles of his profession as a conservator of those institutions, he has passed from the toils and temptations of life, and is at rest—for in his genial spirit

"Tears always morning somewhere; and above
The awakening continents from shore to shore
Somewhere the birds are singing evermore."

The subject of our sketch was a lineal descendant of George Morton and his wife Sarah, (the sister of governor Bradford), who arrived at Plymouth in the ship "Ann," Wm. Pearce, Master, about the middle of July, 1623. The "Ann" was the third ship that arrived, and Mr. Morton brought with him his wife and four children, one of whom was Nathaniel Morton who was afterwards Secretary of the Colony and author of "New England Memorial," a brief Ecclesiastical history, &c. Mr. Morton and Mr. Hathaway are named as "two of the principal passengers" who arrived in the "Ann." Thus tomb inherits tomb, and sad memories recall the words our departed friend himself has written:

"Twilight shades are gathering round me
And the night is coming on,
Peering from their homes of azure
Gleam the star fires one by one;
As I sit in silence lonely
Musing o'er the dying day,
With its shadows come the memories
Of the dear ones passed away.
On the farther shore united,
They have met and will not part,
Clinging to each others bosoms
Hand to hand, and heart to heart;
Radiant in that land of glory
Waiting for our angel train;
Death! for me thou hast no terrors,
I shall meet my loved again."

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

Through the kindness of Henry H. Faxon, Esq., we accepted an invitation to attend the State Convention at Worcester on Wednesday last. Being not much of a politician, we must admit it was our first visit to a Convention of this kind. Leaving Quincy at 7, we arrived in Boston in season to take a special train which left at 8. The fare, having been reduced one-half, was for the round trip,—up and back—but $1.35. The train was well loaded with delegates and others, mostly gentlemen, anxious to witness the excitement which was expected at the Convention that day. After a quick and pleasant ride, occupying one hour and forty minutes,—we arrived in sight of Worcester, a smart growing city in the centre of the State, having a population of about forty thousand. We were surprised to find an old, shabby depot, for the accommodation of passengers, in a city of such pretensions, but such is the fact.

We wended our way with the crowd to Mechanics Hall, only a few steps from the depot, and there found an immense gathering,—the largest that had assembled there at any State Convention for years.

Those who were not delegates were busily engaged in procuring tickets to the galleries, but not one in a dozen was successful. At a few minutes past eleven the meeting was called to order by Dr. Geo. B. Loring,—a handsome man, well built and of noble proportions, and a perfect picture of good health. His voice was musical and attractive, and whilst he was one of the best speakers we listened to in the Convention. The meeting was temporarily organized by the choice of Dr. Loring as chairman and Geo. S. Merrill as Secretary.

A Committee was then appointed to report a list of permanent officers of the Convention. The Committee made their report and Hon. Geo. F. Hoar of Worcester was chosen President with a long list of Vice Presidents and Secretaries.

A Committee was chosen on Credentials, whose business it was to see what delegates were entitled to seats. This Committee was busily occupied over eight hours in attending to the duties assigned them; in this time but little could be done to advance the work of the Convention. During this long interval Dr. Loring read a letter from Gov. Claflin declining a re-nomination. At the conclusion of the letter, the Doctor in a neat speech also withdrew his name as candidate for the office. Several hours later Hon. A. H. Rice, of Boston did the same thing, and received immense applause. This left but two candidates in the field,—Wm. B. Washburn and Benj. F. Butler.

During the time occupied by the Committee of Credentials, the Convention took several recesses of an hour or more in length, giving the delegates a grand opportunity to get their dinner and tea and to promenade the streets.

At last the Committee was prepared to make their report, and when the Convention had acted upon it, it was near eleven o'clock. Then a vote was taken by Counties to see who should be the candidate for Governor, which resulted as follows:—

Whole number of votes	1116
Necessary for a choice	559
Alexander H. Rice had	1
George B. Loring	8
Benjamin F. Butler	464
William B. Washburn	643

The announcement was made at twenty-seven minutes past twelve o'clock, and it was received with enthusiastic demonstrations of rejoicing both on the floor and in the galleries.

It was then moved that the Hon. William B. Washburn of Greenfield be declared the nominee of the convention; and the motion was almost unanimously carried, there being only one or two faint voices in the rear of the hall.

The other candidates nominated were as follows:—
Lieutenant Governor,—Joseph Tucker, of Lenox.
Attorney General,—Charles R. Train, of Boston.

Secretary of State,—Oliver Warner, of Northampton.
Treasurer,—Charles Adams, Jr., of North Brookfield.

Auditor,—Charles Endicott, of Canton.

A PLEASANT OCCASION. The Tiger Engine Company had their annual parade on Saturday last. The day was pleasant and the occasion one highly creditable to its officers and members. The Company started for the railroad depot about nine o'clock, preceded by the Quincy Brass Band. They were dressed in their new uniform and made a very fine appearance. On the arrival of the Washington Company, from Woburn, they opened ranks, and received their guests, and then started on a march to the Point and Neck, and arrived at their engine house a little before eleven, where a breakfast had been prepared by the ladies. The tables were finely decorated with flowers and bountifully loaded with the good things that satisfy the appetite, which were partook of with a relish after a long march. Many thanks were expressed to the ladies who had done so nobly on this occasion.

After having a good rest, the Companies were again formed, and another pleasant march through some of the streets was enjoyed. On arriving in front of the Town Hall about four o'clock, they received the Engineers, Selectmen and other invited guests and proceeded to the Hancock House, where an excellent dinner was found, to which all were invited to partake. After ample justice was done to the loaded tables, Wm. W. Penniman, Esq., Captain of the Tigers, in a few fitly chosen words made a very neat and appropriate speech, thanking those before him for their presence, and hoping they had had a pleasant and social time.

Mr. John H. Dee, the toast master of the day was introduced who read the following toasts:—

1. "Our Honored Guests,—May they remember with pleasure their visit to Quincy."

This toast was responded to by Chas. E. Taylor, Captain of the Washington Company, of Woburn.

2. "Our Honorary Members,—It is with pleasure we meet them here to-day."

Responded to by Wm. Parker, Jr.

3. "Our Engineers,—Always prompt in the discharge of their duty."

Responded to by Amos M. Litchfield.

4. "The Press,—The stay and the lever of popular government, may it unlock the bars of ignorance and oppression, and cast abroad the rays of truth and toleration."

Responded to by George W. Prescott.

5. "Our Honored Townsmen,—The board of Selectmen."

Responded to by E. W. Underwood.

6. "Our Honored Guest,—Mr. Faxon,—Always ready to assist the poor and needy."

Responded to by Henry H. Faxon.

7. "Mine Host of the Hancock House,—Ever ready to respond to the demands of the public."

Responded to by Samuel T. Allen.

8. "Short shoes and long horns to the enemies of the firemen."

Responded to by Wm. C. Baker, First Assistant of the Washington Company of Woburn.

The Companies again formed into line and marched to the Tiger Engine House, where the ranks were broken, and a little rest enjoyed previous to the evening concert, which commenced about seven and continued until after eight. The Woburn Company was then escorted to the depot from whence they took their departure for home, no doubt well pleased with the day's entertainment.

Both companies are deserving of great praise for the orderly and gentlemanly manner in which they behaved throughout the day. Messrs. Wm. W. Penniman, Jos. W. Hayden, Warren Dunbar, Geo. H. Hobart and Louis Frederick,—officers of the Tiger Company,—were highly complimented for the manner in which they received their Woburn friends. May other fire companies in this place take pattern from the Tiger boys and not be found wanting.

The Band on this occasion did nobly. They showed that the few weeks that had passed since their reorganization had been well improved, and that Quincy can look forward to the time, when they will have as good a Band as any country town in the State.

NARROW ESCAPE. Mr. George W. Kenison, who resides on Washington street, in this place, had a remarkable escape from broken bones, if not instant death on Saturday last, while making some repairs on the roof of his barn. One of the boards of the staging on which he stood, broke, precipitating him to the ground, a distance of some fifteen feet. In his fall his breast came in contact with a board fastened to steady the staging, which snapped like a pipestem, but in some measure eased his fall, otherwise he might have been seriously injured. As he struck the ground a rusty nail driven into a piece of wood, was forced into the side of his head nearly a quarter of an inch, causing the blood to flow freely. The noise occasioned by his fall attracted some persons to the spot, where he was found insensible in which state he remained for some time. Although severely bruised and strained he is able to be out of doors and hopes by careful attention to soon be as smart as usual.

DEER ANIMALS. It will be seen by an advertisement, that at a meeting held in Revere Hall, on Thursday of last week, a committee was chosen to canvass the town to solicit aid in contributing to the success of a State Fair. Everybody who deprecates cruelty to animals will find an opportunity to aid in this good cause, as it belongs to no party or sect.

We have received from a Correspondent a very able article on our late townsman,—Wm. S. Morton, Esq., which we will publish next week.

Summary Intelligence.

The increase of overland freights will stop the large shipment of grapes arranged for the early part of the season.

More than ninety thousand pieces of baggage passed through the Boston station of the Old Colony and Newport Railway during three months of the season just ended.

The brick market is overstocked, and New York manufacturers will soon suspend work for the season.

John Slidell left no will, and as there are no heirs to his confiscated lands in Louisiana, our Uncle Sam intends to take possession.

The town of Stratton, N. H., has four farms that have never been owned out of the families of their present owners.

Hay is declining rapidly in many sections of New Hampshire. It is difficult to get twenty dollars a ton for it.

The grasshoppers have done more damage in Maine than in all the other States put together.

An enterprising citizen of Cheyenne started the milk business two years ago with two cows, and delivered the milk on foot. He has now 300 cows and a two-horse wagon.

A gentleman of Dubuque sent up a little red balloon labeled so that it should be known who sent it, and where from. In less than a week he received a letter from Akron, Ohio, that it had arrived there, five hundred miles from where it started.

Eighty-four tons of grapes passed over Vineland Railway last week.

The number of Confederate flags in possession of the government at Washington is five hundred and forty-two.

The National Granite Bank OF QUINCY.

A DIVIDEND of six per cent. of the Capital Stock of this Bank, was declared this day; payable on and after October 24, 1871.

HOUSE for Sale, or one half to let, on Edwards St., contains fourteen rooms, arranged for two families. Hard and Soft Water, and plenty of excellent fruit.

Enquires on the premises of CHARLES F. DERRY.

Quincy, Sept. 30.

ACCIDENT. A bright, active little son of Capt. James Newcomb, of this town, was badly injured by chopping his left hand while splitting wood on Tuesday morning last. Having commenced the day as all boys should, that is, work first and play afterwards, he went into the cellar with a new axe, and in attempting to split a stick, unfortunately struck his left hand below the knuckle joint of his fore finger, cutting through the bone, and nearly severing the finger. Dr. Underwood was called and under his skillful treatment the wound was soon dressed, and we hope that in a few weeks Johnny will be able to do justice to his unfinished work.

STATE FAIR

Our Dumb Animals.

A meeting held at "Revere Hall" on the afternoon of Thursday, Sept. 21st, to consider the subject of the State Fair, to be held in Boston, in aid of "The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," a Committee consisting of the following persons, was chosen to canvass the town in behalf of the cause for which the Fair is to be held.

DR. & MRS. W. L. FAXON,
JESSE BUNTON,
CHAS. E. MITCHELL,
W. ABERCROMBIE,
MRS. M. E. LUNT,
AMUEL KELLY,
MRS. JOHN FLOYD.

This Committee are expected to make their Report at an adjourned meeting, to be held at Revere Hall, SATURDAY EVENING, Sept. 30th, at 7 o'clock.

A full and punctual attendance is earnestly requested.

Taylor's Flour, $9.50 per Barrel.

We have sold this flour since July of 1870, and in no instance does it fail to give entire satisfaction. In fact so popular has it become with our Customers, both at Wholesale and retail, that we have ordered the miller to ship us, and are now receiving, 500 barrels per month instead of 400 as at first.

Taylor's Flour is ground from the best Southern Ohio Wheat, by a Miller of long experience with the most improved machinery who selects only the head of the Bolt for his Flour, thus securing as good a barrel of flour to families at $9.50 as is usually sold at $10.50 to $11.00 per barrel. 25 cents allowed on flour to pay express out of town. Use one barrel and you will never use any other kind when you can get this.

LECTURE COURSE. We are pleased to learn that a Committee of responsible gentlemen have made arrangements, which will enable our citizens to attend a series of first class evening entertainments, without the trouble and expense of going to the city.

The course will be opened on Thursday evening, Nov. 9th, by Mr. H. C. Barnard, whose name is a guaranty for music and fun, such as everybody likes.

This opening will be followed at intervals of a fortnight by lectures and a reader of acknowledged reputation.

Fuller particulars will be given next week. We hope that our people generally will give a hearty and generous support to this enterprise, and secure for themselves the enjoyment of some pleasant and profitable winter evenings in our new and agreeable lecture hall.

A FREE RIDE. Monday next, the cars are to commence running between Boston and the west part of the town. This road will be a great advantage to the citizens of that district, as it certainly brings Boston a half hour nearer to their homes. An invitation to a free ride to and from Boston on Monday, has been extended to the citizens in that vicinity, and will we doubt not, draw a large crowd to fill the new cars.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE. The Democratic State Committee, have received a letter from our townsman John Quincy Adams, Esq., accepting the nomination for Governor.

DEATH OF AN AGED DIVINE. The Rev. Joseph Richardson of the first Parish at Hingham, died Monday morning at the age of 94 years. He graduated at Dartmouth College in 1802, and among his classmates was Rev. Brown Emerson, D.D. of Salem, who survives him. He studied divinity with Rev. Henry Cummings, D.D., of Billerica, and was ordained pastor of the First Parish in Hingham, July 3, 1803.

RESOLUTIONS. At a meeting held by the Democratic Town Committee, on Thursday evening, the 28th inst., the following resolutions on the death of two of its members were passed:

Whereas,—It has pleased an all-wise Providence to take from amongst us, two of our members, Jacob F. Eaton, and Samuel Curtis, who have been active and honored members of our body, be it

Resolved,—That we cordially condole with their bereaved friends in the affliction that it has pleased God to visit them with, and we tender them our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved,—That a copy of these Resolutions be sent to the families of our deceased friends, and be published in the Quincy Patriot.

Per order of the Democratic Town Committee.

W. S. PATTEE, Chairman.

GEORGE CHILL, Secretary.

Poetry.

A PROVERB.

There is a proverb in a heathen tongue,
Which often strikes as much more sublime
Than sayings which a wiser day had sung,
And well to be remembered in our time.

"Tis this: 'All persons carry two huge sacks,
One behind, in front the other rests;
One holds their own faults—this is on their back;
One holds their neighbors'—this lies on their breast."

So they look down and see each neighbor's ill,
And cry, "This foul!" but all the while are blind
To their own faults, which, growing daily, fill
That base burden which rests on behind."

Farmers' Department.

YOUNG FRUIT TREES.

We esteem fall planting much preferable to spring planting, because cultivators have usually more leisure to plant trees properly, and there is not so much danger from the tree starting before transplanting from the nursery, as in the hurry of the spring season. But we find still another advantage in the selection of fruit trees which will do well to note. Young trees are much better than old ones. We would never plant out a standard pear tree over two years old nor a dwarf tree over two years old, also. If any one will observe the usual method of digging three year old trees from the nursery, they will find the roots greatly mutilated, and fully one-third are lost when the tree is at last dug from the ground. To counterbalance this loss, the top of the tree must be cut back in the same proportion; and when this is done there is little if any better stock left than is found in a good two year old tree.

Where a person has ground in abundance, and can afford to wait patiently, we would recommend one year old trees. We do not lose three per cent. in transplanting one year old trees, while older ones suffer fully twice as much.

MANAGEMENT OF POULTRY.

Solon Robinson, in his book, Facts for Farmers, says: "If you don't want hens in mischief, feed them; and at times when it is really necessary shut them in a poultry yard and feed them: and adopt this simple rule for feeding fowls, known to most housewives in the country who have charge of poultry, but it may be useful to amateurs, and as it is very short we print it. Here it is:—Don't feed too much. That is all; though we may add that food should never be given to fowls unless they are hungry enough to 'run crazy' after it; and just as soon as they stop running crazy, you stop throwing feed, and never—no, never leave feed lying by your fowls 'for them to eat at leisure.' This same rule does pretty well for all other domestic animals—children included."

MILKING STOOL. A western milker writes to a New York paper as follows: "I make my milking stool of a board or plank two and half feet long and eight inches wide, with two legs in one end and one in the other. The end with the leg is put under the cow, to set the pail upon to keep it out of the mud or dung, and bring it nearer the cow's bag, while you sit upon the other end. This is a great improvement upon the common short stools, and though a small matter, is of considerable importance in a dairy country like New York. Try it and you will never use any other."

Incidents.

At one of the stations on a certain railway, recently, an anxious enquirer came up to the door of the baggage-car and said, "Is there anything for me?" After some search among boxes and trunks, the baggage man rolled out a keg of whiskey. "Anything more?" asked the wet grocer.

"Yes," said the baggage-man, "here's a gravestone that goes with that liquor."

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Partridge, looking up at the column of the Place Vendôme during her late visit to Paris.

"The pillar of Napoleon," she was answered.

"Well, I never did!" she exclaimed; "and that's his pillow—he was a great man to use that! But it's more like a bolster."

"Professor," said a student in pursuit of knowledge concerning the habits of animals, "why does a cat, while eating, turn her head first one way and then the other?"

"For the reason," replied the professor, "that she cannot turn it both ways at once."

"Waiter, I should like a clean napkin—this looks as though it had been through the dock."

"Can't change my dear sir, always give second-hand napkins with single fish-balls, sir."

Said a gentleman to a lady "I wonder you have never made a match. I think you need the brimstone."

"No, not the brimstone," she replied, "only the spark."

THE HALL TREADLE!
For Sewing Machines
AND other light Machinery, where foot power is used, is admitted by all to be one of the greatest inventions of the age—using one or both feet or either alternately. With this Treadle the machine can only be run in the right direction, thus preventing the danger of breaking needles or thread, consequent upon the reversal of the proper motion, and there is no need of starting it by moving the balance wheel with the hand. Any machine can be run with the same exertions as in walking, which is very slight compared with the rocking motion of the old crank Treadle. It needs only to be tried to be appreciated. It can be applied to any Sewing Machine in use—plain or cabinet. It can be seen in operation at
KEATING & SPEAR'S
Furniture Rooms, who are the agents for Quincy.
K. & S. will apply this Treadle to machines at short notice, and warrant it satisfactory. They also Repair Sewing Machines, and furnish Oil, Needles, and Findings for various Machines.

POSITIVE MEDICAL INSTITUTE
34 TEMPLE PLACE, BOSTON, MASS.
The object in establishing this Institution was to attain the greatest perfection in the preparation, practice and use of Vegetable Remedies, and to secure a permanent place where Families, Invalids, or any person could obtain the best medical advice, and such remedies as each might require, without the use of poisonous drugs.
Dr. Greene has been Physician of the Institute since its foundation, now more than twenty-five years. Few men have had so large experience in the treatment of chronic diseases. Dr. Greene is in his fifty-fifth year and has devoted his life to this branch of his profession, and his success, we believe is without parallel.
Among the diseases to which he gives especial attention may be noticed Cancer, Scrofula, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption, Heart Disease, Neuritis, Asthma, Nervousness, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Spinal Diseases, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Female Complaints, Faint Stomach, Erysipelas, White Swelling, Salt Rheum, Canker, Deafness, Kidney Disease, Seminal Weakness, &c.
Dr. Greene's Medical Pamphlet, descriptive of diseases and their proper treatment, will be sent free to invalids.
Address, DR. GREENE, M. D.,

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their Worth.
Full Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY?
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Bitters have a most beneficial effect.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Pure Ram, Whisky, Proof Spirit, and Refine Liqueurs distilled, aged and blended to please the taste, called "Tonic," "Appetizer," "Restorer," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, Preserved from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER AND A LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Remedy and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bowels are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Biliousness, Headache, Neuralgia, Palsy, Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by "Vitiated Blood," which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulder, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the Regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the liver and bowels, which render them of most efficiency in cleansing the blood of all impurities, imparting new life and vigor to the whole system. POISONED BLOOD, Eruptions, Tetter, Itch, Rheum, Pimples, Spots, Pustules, Psoriasis, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scours, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One Bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or sores; cleanse it, when you find it thick and clammy, when it renders the system impure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circulars sent each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

J. WALKER, Proprietor, R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 24 and 26 Commerce Street, New York.
